Presidents Address Ag Progress Luncheons

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.)—Two presidents, an FFA president and a university president, were among the speakers at luncheon meetings at Ag Progress Days this week.

Mark Timm, national FFA president from central Indiana, spoke about the future of agriculture at Youth Day on Wednesday. And Joab Thomas, Penn State University president, addressed the governmental luncheon on Thursday.

Timm said young people have the ability to see what the future holds. But he said the top selling slogan on T-shirts showed an attitude problem. In Japan the top selling slogan is "We're Number 1. But in the United States the top selling T-shirt says "Underachiever and proud of it".

"We have an attitude problem with that," Timm said.

"We should be proud of the visionary thoughts we have. The future of America is in agriculture. But in education, we need to rede-

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The dairyman of the future will walk out to his paddocks to let his herd back to the holding area for milking.

While the cattle are moving ahead of him, he will kneel down to inspect the grasses in the paddock just grazed.

Depending on the height of the plants, their condition, the time of the year and the weather, he will make a decision to either continue to graze the paddock with his high producing herd, bring in his lower producing herds, let the pasture regenerate itself, or to increase the stocking rate.

To the dairyman of the future, such considerations will be second nature, according to researchers.

There are other things this future herdsman will contemplate.

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — "Ag science touches your life," Penn State's 1991 Ag Progress theme promised.

And the largest outdoor agricultural exposition did touch thousands of peoples lives from August 13 to 15.

Although the official count was not in by the time this paper went to press, according to a Penn State electronic technician who has worked a number of the events, there were more cars Wednesday parked in the fields than there has been for half a decade.

Tours, exhibits, and demonstrations focused on how agricultural research helps not only farmers but ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Want crop quality? Manage the water.

"I am very distressed by the fact that homemakers go to the grocery store and buy California produce that's lying there right alongside of Pennsylvania produce, and the only difference is quality," said Dr. Albert R. Jarrett, Penn State professor of ag engineering. "But out there they manage all of the water, and they get the quality because they manage the water."

Jarrett spoke to visitors on Thursday afternoon at an Ag Prog-

You'll Get Higher Test Weights With Hoffman 89 Wheat

And we've got university trials to prove it

It's a fact. In 1989 and 1990 trials conducted by the Pennsylvania State University, Hoffman 89 wheat topped the field everytime.

In Centre County, its two-year average test weight of 58.4 lb/bu beat the average by 3.5 lb/bu. And in Lancaster County, Hoffman 89 posted an average 54.8 lb/bu test weight compared to a field average of 51.0.

With test weights like these, you'll get full price for every bushel of wheat you produce. And that's money in the bank. Talk to your Hoffman sales representative today, or call Hoffman Seeds toll free: 800-776-7929.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

AUG. 19-25, 1991

National Aviation Week.

Aug 19, 1812, the USS Constitution sinks the HMS Guerriere in a short battle off the coast of Nova Scotia, raising national morale after the fall of Detroit Aug 19, 1871, Orville Wright is born at Dayton, Ohio Aug 22, 1865, William Sheppard of New York City patents the first soap in liquid form Aug 24, A D 79, Mount Vesuvius erupts, destroying the cities of Pompeii, Herculaneum, and Stabiae Success is a journey, not a destination

Ask the Old Farmer: Our newly purchased older home has stains in the bathtub from a previously leaky faucet Nothing we've tried will remove the stain Can you help? T B , Maine

Try scrubbing the stain with powdered lemonade-flavor Kool-Aid and a damp sponge Or you can make a paste of fresh peroxide and cream of tartar, cover the stain, then drop two or three drops of ammonia onto the paste Leave it on for an hour, then wash off

Home Hints: Apply hair spray to door hinges to eliminate squeaking

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Thundershowers are ending as the week begins, but intermittent showers remain throughout the week Cooler temperatures prevail

Greater New York-New Jersey: Sunny and hot, then heavy rain and cooler to finish the week Four inches of rain expected this month, 3' above average in the south

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Cooler temperatures and cloudy skies, with light rain in the south After midweek, it's rainy throughout the region and seasonable

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Mostly showers, with rain in the south Temperatures are mild Late in the week the heavier rain shifts to the west

OPINION

Respect Slow-Moving Farm Vehicles

In the Lehigh Valley, within several weeks' time, three grain combines were struck on the highway. In one case, it was a hit-and-run accident.

According to Robert Leiby and David Dunbar, extension agents, most farmers are familiar with the slow-moving vehicle (SMV) signs developed by the American Society of Agricultural Engineers and required by the motor vehicle codes. But perhaps some drivers on the highways are not aware of their meaning and importance.

What does the law say? The SMV emblem must be visible from the rear of any farm tractor, tractor-towed vehicle or implement, or self-propelled "implement of husbandry" that is operated on a highway at 25 miles per hour or less. The emblem is a fluorescent yellow-orange triangle with a dark red reflective boarder. It's about 14 inches tall and it should be mounted with base at bottom and point at top, two to six feet above the road surface. It must be completely visible to vehicle drivers approaching from the rear. The SMV emblem does not replace other warning devices such as tail lamps, flashing lights, or reflectors.

Our urban and city drivers should be taught that a slow-moving vehicle is not much different from a stationary object. The SMV emblem, by itself, won't prevent farm vehicles from being "rear ended". Driver attitudes and skills reflecting good judgement, concern for safety, and courtesy are needed. And of course the drivers need to be sober and alert when they are at the wheel.

Combines are operated from mid-June until Thanksgiving. But other farm machinery is moved on the road anytime of the year. If our non-farm neighbors want to continue to enjoy life in or near the country and if they want to keep open space by preserving farmland, they need to drive country roads in ways that allow farmers to move their equipment safely.

Editor:

Now that the dust has settled and the cheap shots have been taken, I think it is appropriate to add a sense of balance to the sense of ire expressed across this state regarding the recently passed budget and tax increase.

My association, the Tobacco and Candy Distributors, along with our customers, took one whale of a hit on the cigarette taxes. And, my members were also hit in the business tax category, too.

Having said that, I think it is important to reflect on the fact that our legislators were loathe to raise taxes. Our Executive Director and I talked to scores of legislators and one thing became evident: the State was in a mess, regardless of who caused it, and the legislature had to fix it, even if it meant jeopardizing their legislative careers.

I was struck by the courage and resolve of these men and women as I saw them, over the months, wrestle with their consciences over whether to do what was politically correct or what was morally

NOW IS THE TIME

To Consider Emergency Pastures

The recent dry weather is causing livestock farmers to consider ways to produce more feed.

One possibility is an emergency pasture consisting of brassicas. The brassicas are a family of plants that include rape, kale, turnip, and swede.

They contain high levels of crude protein and digestible energy. The fiber content of brassicas is very low. This means animals being fed brassicas as forage should receive supplemental hay so that the brassicas do not make up over two-thirds of the animal's diet.

Brassicas may be seeded in August for fall or early winter grazing or green chopping. Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, offers the following planting recommendations: Seed in well-drained fields and do not seed deeper than ½ inch. In sod, a herbicide that will suppress the sod is desirable and apply 75 pounds of nitrogen per acre to stimulate growth.

To Be Cautious When Selling To New Customers

I have received reports where some farmers are having trouble collecting money from farmers and brokers after selling crops.

When doing business with someone new, take time and check them out before delivering them your crops. As a business doing business with another business, you should ask for several credit references, some business references, and a bank reference.

Ask these references how promptly are bills paid, how they would rate this person as a client, and if there has been a problem with bad checks.

When selling anything, make sure payment terms are discussed and written down. Send bills out immediately and state on the bill the balance is due in so many days and a set interest charge will be added on any unpaid balances after 30 days.

These terms must be stated on the first bill. By doing some advance checking on new customers, you could prevent a lot of problems in the future trying to collect an unpaid bill.

To Clean Fan Louvers

As many times as we talk about the importance of keeping fan louvers clean and open, especially in hot weather, I am amazed to find many farmers are not doing this.

The past week I visited three poultry farms where fan louvers were not clean and were not reducing the amount of air the fans could move. On one farm, we increased the amount of air each fan was moving by 100 percent. This translated into the birds receiving 5 cubic feet of air per minute (cfm) per bird instead of 2.5 cfm per bird.

As we use larger fans with a higher cfm rating, the importance of clean louvers becomes more important. A 15 percent reduction in fan efficiency on a 10,000 cfm rated fan is 1,500 cfm, while on a 20,000 cfm fan the reduction is 3,000 cfm.

Improperly maintained fan louvers are decreasing fan efficiency by at least 15 percent. With 20 to 30 fans per house, this is a sizable reduction in the amount of air being moved.

On extremely hot days, clean fan lovers is the difference between losing animal performance and animals and not. During hot weather, fan louvers should be cleaned at least twice a week. If you are unable to do this, you might want to consider switching your gravity shutter louvers to power louvers.

Reports I have received from poultry producers showed that those who had clean louvers and were providing 5 to 6 cfm per bird did not experience any additional mortality and saw very little drop in bird performance.

With the hot days of August before us, take time and clean and repair your fan louvers so you will receive the maximum performance from your fans and animals.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

PROMISES, PROMISES!

August 18, 1991

Background Scripture: Nehemiah 9:38; 10:28-39.

Devotional Reading: Deuteronomy 30:15-20.

I once had a parishoner who told me he had never joined the church because he didn't believe in making commitments that he wasn't sure he could keep. It was ironical because he was a faithful participant in my church, though he never actually joined. He came regularly to church school and worship, gave liberally, pitched in wherever he was needed, loved God and witnesses to what God had done for him.

Lots of Christians, I've found, resist tooth and nail the challenge to make commitments. I'm not thinking of just commitments to the church's budget — although that is certainly a prime example — but any kinds of commitments or promises. I have known people who haven't wanted to have their children baptized becaused the parents regarded the baptismal vows as "too demanding."

THE UNCOMMITTED LIFE

I'm sure this is hardly a new phenomenon, but in our own era it is a growing problem. Since the 1960's, many pursue the uncommitted lifestyle. This is the reason for the decline of marriage and the home.

I don't know of anything that can long survive without commitment, including a society which tolerates those who want to be uncommitted. Nations, schools, cultural institutions and churches simply cannot survive without people making and keeping promises. This is particularly true of the Judao-Christian religious tradition. Judaism first and Christianity after it began as religions of commitment.

In its earliest form, the covenant that God made with Abraham and his descendants was that he would be their God and they would be his people. Later, Moses and his successors added the laws to this covenant relationship. Whenever God wanted to remind the people of what he had done for them, he would speak about their covenant. Unfortunately it was a rather one-sided covenant: God always kept his promises, but the people frequently failed to keep theirs.

IN, BUT NOT OF

In Nehemiah 10 we see the people amplifying the covenant with the Lord. They make certain promises to buttress their side of the agreement. They promise to avoid mixed marriages with the non-Jews who live in the land. Apparently they believed that mixed marriages would bring pagan influences and practices into their homes and communities. They wanted to keep free of these.

This is one of the biggest problems that face us today — how to be in the world without becoming of the world. How to maintain our Christian spiritual values in the midst of a culture that is blatantly materialistic. How to keep the church unstained by godless values and lifestyles. It isn't easy and sometimes we lose this battle.

(If you question that, ask yourself how much secular values predominate in the way we run our churches: what's the "best church"? The "biggest church," of course! Who's the "most successful minister"? The one with the "biggest church," to be sure!)

Breaking our promises to God is an offense against him. Failing to make promises is probably an even greater one.

Talk to a seed corn salesman, and he'll sell you more seed corn. Talk to Agway and we'll show you how to make more milk, more profitably, more often.

Like you, we know there's more to making milk than just growing corn. Your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson has everything a dairy farmer needs to succeed.

Of course, it includes seed corn. But not just one. We offer over 20 hybrids specifically bred for high yields in your local growing conditions. And we offer more than just one brand seed corn, too. Only Agway lets you choose from an outstanding selection of Agway varieties as well as DeKalb, the country's other leading name. Your Agway representative can help you develop the most cost-effective ration balancing program for your herd size, forage quality and milking goals. And he can help you get more milk per acre out of every ton of corn you ensile with products like Silage Fresh Plus. So cows will get more of the dry matter and protein energy they need to produce.

If you want to know about corn, talk to a seed corn salesman. But if you want to know about making more corn, milk and money, talk to an expert in the field. Your Agway Farm Enterprise Salesperson.

WHO SHOWS YOU HOW TO MILK THE MOST OUT OF AN ACRE?

My corn acres are planted to hybrids that pass my test.
I've learned over the years that almost everything works better if I have a plan; and that includes deciding which hybrids should go on the bulk of my corn acres. That's why no new hybrid makes it into my "permanent" lineup until I've seen it on my own farm for at least two years.
Take my Jacques 7820, for example. I started with it because it looked good on a neighbor's place all season long. Well, the two years I tested it were about as different from each other as any two years could be. But both times, 7820 was right up at the top in yields and acted like it was bred just for those conditions.
That made me wonder if I really needed to do my own testing — but I like the extra level of confidence it gives me.
Don't get me wrong. I trust the results of Jacques own testing program. But the hybrids I plant have to pass my test, too. Jacques 7820 did.

State Pricing Orders Provide Latest Milk Marketing Drama

KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With any change in federal policy on hold until Congress returns from its summer recess, recent milk marketing developments have been revolved around the various state pricing initiatives in the Northeast.

In Harrisburg, Pa., this week, representatives of various farm groups and state agencies got together to discuss the impact of dry weather with the members of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board. Participants say the process could lead to an increase in the current $1.05 a hundredweight premium the board imposes on buyers of raw milk.

Next week in Albany, N.Y., Commissioner Richard McGuire of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets is expected to hold a hearing to discuss a proposal to revise that state's fledgling raw milk pricing order to include so-called "compensatory payments." That controversial provision has been challenged in court by several processors.

And in New Jersey, where a state pricing order went into effect about the same time as in New York, farmers and processors have locked horns over its scope and its legality.

The various developments reflect the same struggle for relative advantage between dairymen and processors that has been fought in the Northeast since at least the mid-1980s, when over-order pricing efforts began to revive, say observers. But now the struggle is partly obscured behind the complex facades of bureaucratic and legal language.

The surest bet for higher prices remains the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, which has kept a higher price in place than the minimums specified by the federal order system since the fall of 1987. The board's current order extends the $1.05 premium on Class I milk through June 1992.

Tom Kugel, a board spokesman, said this week's hearing was designed to "get the ball rolling" in regard to gathering data on the drought's impact, but it does not indicate that the board will eventually move to raise the premium. In fact, he said, no farm group or cooperative has yet submitted a formal petition to the board requesting such an increase.

"There's a drought out there. But it has not yet reached a point where actual dollar figures have been put together to establish needs," said Janet Carson, a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Farmers Association. "And until the board sees that, you're not going to get any change in the price."

In New Jersey and New York, on the other hand, the focus is on the very future of state pricing orders, not on whether they will respond to farmers' drought stress.

In New York, two separate legal suits have been filed by five processors challenging the compensatory payments clause in the interim emergency order issued May 23 by McGuire. That order covers milk marketed in June and July. A separate final order — without the controversial clause — was issued by McGuire for the 12 months beginning Aug. 1. The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency has requested the reinclusion of compensatory payments in this final order, according to Gregg McAllister, an agency spokesman.

Under its compensatory payments clause, the state claims the right to charge dealers who sell raw milk produced and processed elsewhere but sold in New York (and thus who are not subject to the state's Class I premium) to make up any difference with the retail prices charged by those processors subject to the premium.

Until the issue is resolved, compensatory payments from June and July are being held in escrow. McAllister said this affects roughly seven of the extra 57 cents a hundredweight due New York producers for their June milk.

The battle is even broader in New Jersey, where some of the same processors are challenging the entire basis of that state's premium pricing order.

New Jersey Gov. James Florio issued an emergency order May 31 to provide a premium of a $1.05 a hundredweight on all Class I milk sold by the state's dairy farmers. The state government subsequently made the interim order permanent for the 10-month period from Aug. 1 to May 31, 1992, according to Vin Samuel, an economist in the Dairy Division of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture.

The New Jersey Milk Industry Association, a trade group representing the interests of firms that handle 70-80 percent of the milk processed in the state, has filed suit against the ag department's decision. The suit, filed in the New Jersey State Appellate Court, seeks to overturn the order on grounds that it was not justified. The suit also asks for a stay on the collection of the premium pending a final ruling on the pricing order's legality, according to Don Wettlin, president of the dealer's group.

Neither legal issue has yet been decided by the court, Samuel said last week. In the meantime, the department has determined and processors have paid out the premium for the month of June.

However, Samuel said, two processors — which other observers identified as Tuscan Dairy Farms of Union, N. J., and Johanna Farms of Flemington, N. J. — did not pay the full $1.05 premium on top of the required federal order Class I price. Rather, those processors put a portion of the required funds in escrow pending a resolution of the court case, he said. A third processor — identified by others as Farmland Dairies of Wallington, N.J. — paid the premium in several installments, Samuel said.

Johanna and Tuscan, both of which are owned by John Labatt Ltd., a Canadian conglomerate, are two of the principals in the one New York suit. Farmland has its own suit in New York. Together, these firms dominate fluid milk processing in the region and there are those who question whether this concentration of market power is good for the dairy farmer.

Herdsman Of The Future

Should he seed the pasture with tetraploid rye? Mixed rye and orchard grass? Perhaps a little fescue?

According to Penn State University researchers who gave a tour of their ongoing dairy forage experiments during Ag Progress Days Wednesday, the promise of using pasture to provide a substantial portion of feed for high producing dairy herds is looming in the near future.

In fact, in this issue of Lancaster Farming, an article on budgeting feed to improve grazing management by Warren Parker, a researcher on loan from New Zealand, and Penn State staff researchers Lawrence Muller and Steven Fales, is a direct result of efforts to determine methods of getting the most benefit out of a pasture with the least amount of effort.

Ron Hoover shows a bolus that releases a chemical "label" on forage in the cow's rumen so that researchers can determine the amount of digestability of certain pasture forages. Unfortunately, this one was just ejected by a cow, temporarily disqualifying results from testing her manure.

As it is, the economics of using specially planted and monitored paddocks to augment traditional grain and silage diet is still in question.

But, because of experiments conducted within the last several years, indications are good that pasture management will only become more efficient and more widely practiced.

The types of research going on with respect to pastures all center around the larger research with deals with the basics of using pastures to feed cattle, and the nutrient value and digestability of the forages provided.

That larger research serves as the hub of many smaller satellite projects — just as many specific questions arise when a broad question is asked, the course of scientific endeavors follows a similar pattern.

Ron Hoover, a senior research aide who led one group of Ag Progress tour-goers, is involved with variety trials with pasture forages.

The purpose is to attempt to discover which forage cows select over other, which are highest in nutrient value and which produce the most feed volume.

"Some farmers out there know what they're doing with pasture forages, but many are asking about new technologies for fencing, management . . . being imported from New Zealand, Great Britan, and others," he said.

So in order to attempt to see the applicability of these feeding techniques which have been developed in climatically different areas of the world, Penn State researchers began their own trials.

Scientist have gone abroad to study the techniques and learned them; they are now researching them to seek better profit for the Pennsylvania dairyman.

Although specific recommendations will be a little time in coming, Hoover said some things dairyman are widely practicing which can be changes now are increasing stocking rate in pastures, starting cows on pasture sooner in the year, so that they don't get overrun with too tall and too mature plants of little value and interest from the cattle.

In the first experiment Hoover showed the group, a 38-acre area was seeded with 22 varieties of grasses, both forage and turf varieties.

Researcher Dwane Pysher, discussed the project.

Included were 10 varieties of perenial rye — five tetrploid and five diploid — four tall fescues, reed canary grass . . .

The 9-foot, by 90-foot strips of sowed grasses were alternated and repeated four times over the acreage. That was done to increase the randomness of the experiment, which was to determine what cows preferred, and how well it held up, under the conditions of utilization and management indicated by other studies.

The grasses were planted in the fall of 1989. In May of 1990, the grazing began.

Forty-eight cows were pastured in paddocks which were fenced off to ensure that the cows had equal access to similar amounts of the various forages.

The acreage was also managed for spring and summer use. About two-thirds of the pasture was cut and used for haylage.

Prior to the cows being alowed in, the researchers sampled the plants to down within an inch of the ground to determine nutrient value.

Pysher said it is clear that the plants which were grazed grew back faster than those plants which were mechanically cut.

Also, the manure was left in the field. No dragging, as is suggested for parasite control.

The cows were allowed to enter the paddocks from the top of the hill. In all cases, the cows started grazing straight through, from top to bottom. When they got to the bottom, Hoover said they "remembered the better tasting stuff," and returned to it.

In this case, they devoured the orchard grass and used the rye for a bathroom, Pysher said. According to Pysher, 92 percent of the orchard grass offered was eaten.

However, the cows did eat the rye later in the year and the tetraploid rye had the highest nutrient value. But Pysher said that all species were of high quality. They tested out above 20 percent protein, up to around 25 percent protein.

The fescues, which Hoover said are considered "a no-no" for a pasture lived up to their reputation, in that only 65 percent of the tall fescue was used by the cows — except for Barcell tall fescue, of which the cows ate 88 percent.

The dry matter content of the forages are very important. Therefore PSU is looking at the preference of the cow, the amount utilized, the quality of the forage and the amount of dry matter (DM) produced by a forage. Included were aspects also, such as digestability, protein content and percent fiber.

The study was mostly conducted last year, when the region received its expected 27 inches of rain from May to Oct. 16. This year, however, the pastures are at a growth standstill. Hoover said that with the rain deficit as great as it is, Pennsylvania may not see 27 inches of rain during the entire year.

"From my standpoint, it's fortunate," Pysher said. "I can look at how the forages react under stress.

For a farmer's immediate applicability to modifying a pasture for use, Pysher suggested planting a well-rounded variety of forages and going with a program using the plant varieties that offer the most benefits.

The answers Penn State are seeking will provide farmers with the ability to better utilize stocking rate on paddocks, how long an area should be grazed, and which species of plant should be nurtured.

"We feel, based on preliminary information, we will be able to turn a 20,000 pound (of milk producting herd) and maintain that 20,000 pounds," Hoover said.

Somatic Cell Count Limit To Drop

SID BARDNARD
Food Science Specialist

Most dairymen have little difficultry meeting the maximum 1,000,000 somatic cell county (SCC) as now required. Few will have any problem meeting the new maximum of 750,000 SCC per mililiter starting July 1, 1993.

This reduction was approved by the state regulatory delegates at the IMS conference in April and is expected to be approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

Between 10 percent and 15 percent of dairymen now produce milk with a SCC of 100,000 per mililiter or less. They get maximum potential milk production from their cows; use fewer antibiotics and dump less drug residue contaminated milk; and realize highest prices for their low SCC/higher protein content milk.

Herds with 1,000,000 or even 750,000 SCC per mililiter are dealing with mastitis, animal stress and reduced milk production of as much as six to eight pounds of milk per animal per day.

There is no public health concern about this milk following pasteurization. The primary concern is for dairymen who are not getting maximum production and thus have lower income from the sale of milk.

Any dairyman with SCCs above 100,000 per mililiter would realize greater income by reducing it. Those few with SCCs above 750,000 need to start to reduce their SCC.

Ag Progress Examines Methods, Benefits Of Irrigation

ress program that offered information on drip and sprinkle irrigation systems.

Jarrett said that, about two years out of every 10 in Pennsylvania, growers will experience a drought. But a properly installed irrigation system will pay for itself in one year, and sometimes, as in the case of a strawberry grower he knows, in two weeks.

Lose quality, amounts

Five years out of 10, or about 50 percent of the time, growers won't need irrigation, but because of the inconsistency of rain in the season, growers could lose quality and amounts in their crop.

Irrigation involves nothing more than the application of water. The goal, according to Jarrett, is to put water in the root zone. There are two types of irrigation: drip (also called trickle), which drips water from a lateral line either directly on the ground or below it, or sprinkle irrigation, which broadcasts water to the plant canopy.

The rule of thumb, according to Jarrett, is to use sprinkle irrigation when the plant canopy in the field at maximum growth constitutes more than 50 percent of the total land area of the field. If the canopy is less than 50 percent, use drip irrigation.

At this test plot at Ag Progress, peppers are receiving the benefits of water from microsprinklers, which work as both drip and sprinkle irrigation.

A special point source emitter, shown here by Jarrett, helps deliver water directly to where the plant needs it most — the root zone.

Drip irrigation benefits those who grow strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, and maintain orchards (in most cases, orchards using sprinkler systems use too much water because so much of it goes to waste between the rows). For corn or forage crops, sprinkling is the best method.

Advantages

The advantages of drip irrigation include using smaller equipment, lower pressures, and an overall savings in water use. The biggest disadvantage, according to Jarrett, is that the lines can clog.

But to prevent clogging, growers can install inexpensive screen filters (if using well water) or sand filters (if using stream or pond water).

"If you have any kind of biological activity in the water, and specifically if you're using water from a stream, or from a pond, you should be thinking about a sand filtration system," he said.

Ag Progress Examines Methods, Benefits Of Irrigation

An irrigation line can stretch from 100 to 600 feet, according to Jarrett. But if a farmer wants to extend the line beyond 600 feet, there can be severe pressure variations in the line. Growers must be careful to consider slope, water pressure availability, crop type and variety, and equipment used.

Don't think about

"Irrigation is a topic we really don't think about in Pennsylvania a great deal," said Jarrett. "Years like 1988 and 1991, all of a sudden, people say, 'Ah, I wish I'd . . .'" and, all of a sudden, 'I don't know anything about it.' Some years it's important, and other years it's not as important."

Strawberries, turf, brambles, orchards, and vegetable crops benefit from irrigation during a growing season. (Forty percent of all irrigation is on golf courses in Pennsylvania.) During the height of the growing season, plants need an average of two-tenths of an inch of rain a week. So irrigation is a good supplemental source of water.

Those interested in more information about an irrigation system for their farm should talk to their local extension agent.

For those who want to draw water from a pond, stream, or other surface supply of water, a sand filter such as this one (40 gallon per minute capacity) for about $400 is necessary. The filter, according to Jarrett, keeps dirt and other contaminants from clogging the emitters from a drip irrigation system.

Herdsman

He said that he has heard of one man in Bradford County who is currently using the technique to provide the bulk of forage for a herd average 24,000 pounds of milk.

The pasture forage diet is supplemented with a grain feed back at the barn. Next year, Hoover said there going to be looking at feeding pasture forages but supplementing with bypass protein, which seems to be lacking in the pasture forage diet.

To monitor the digestability of the diets, boluses with Cromium Oxide were inserted in the cow's rumen, thus labeling the forage. The manure was tested then and digestability of forages could better be determined.

Drawbacks to pasturing seemed to be on reproduction. It did drop, Hoover said. However, observing heats in pasture may be a problem. "It is an area we need to be concerned about," he said.

In another experiment the tour visited, graduate student assistant Rob Larew discussed his work with white clover varieties.

Larew said that since clover is widely available throughout the world, and it is a nitrogen fixing legume, it became a point of study to attempt to determine which variety would perform best in Pennsylvania.

He started with 100 varieties of white clover, the seed of which he received from New Zealand.

"There is very little white clover research in the the U.S. There is some in the South East," he said, "but we wanted to look at the North East and also look at pasture systems and adding legumes. White clover is capable of fixing 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre," he said.

Larew took a field that was an existing stand of Barcell fescue and drill-planted five different strips of the 100 different varieties, so that there were 500 different lines of clover.

The plants were seeded in spring and some did not do well. By the end of summer and fall, more varieties failed. Over the winter, even more disapeared.

Now with the extreme drought, Larew said he was afraid he was going to lose his entire research project. "At one time, all the white clover was brown," he said. "But after a few light rains, it began growing again."

However, the possibility of dairymen seeding their pastures with some variety of white clover appears very strong.

According to Larew, not only have the cows been eating the clover to the ground, but the native species of clover — commonly called White Dutch — is only performing in the middle of the pack, which means that there apparenlty are other varieties which could supplant the native variety in the pasture.

Equipment for every need could be found at Ag Progress Days this week.

Feed Budgeting Improves Grazing Management

WARREN J. PARKER
LAWRENCE D. MULLER
STEVEN L. FALES
Penn State University

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Feed budgeting is a procedure for planning and evaluating pasture management, and as such, is an aid to improving the efficiency of decisions related to the use of pastures.

Feed planning is equally as important with pastures as with stored feeding.

A feed budget, is a numerical description of grazing management through time. It can be likened to financial budgeting except the feed available (supply) represents income and animal demand or intake represents expenditure.

Just as financial management through time (cashflow budgeting) requires income and expenditure to be balanced, feed budgeting describes how herbage growth and animal feed requirements can be matched through time. If the feed supply exceeds demand a 'surplus' of pasture exists; if animal demand exceeds the feed supply a 'deficit' exists.

Feed surpluses may be expensive because pasture is a perishable commodity that deteriorates through time unless it is utilized by livestock or is stored (e.g. as hay or silage). Similarly, pasture deficits may be costly because livestock production is reduced.

One of the purposes of feed budgeting is to identify the most effective method(s) for reducing the impact of pasture surpluses and deficits on farm profit, animal performance and pasture productivity.

Feed budgets can be used for both short- and long-term planning to determine how pasture should be allocated to the different classes of livestock on the farm.

In this week's article, feed budgeting to develop paddock grazing plans and to estimate rest periods between grazings is discussed.

To explain how grazing plans are developed, let's assume a 2 acre paddock is to be grazed by a herd of 40 milking cows.

The average liveweight of the cows is 1,300 pounds, and milk production per day is 60 pounds. A dry matter intake of 42 pounds is required, with about 15 pounds provided by concentrate. All 27 pounds of forage dry matter (DM) is to be provided by grazed pasture.

The average pre-grazing herbage mass is assessed to be 3,000 pounds of DM per acre. A post-grazing residual dry matter (RDM) of 1,500 pounds DM per acre (i.e. lax grazing) is required to ensure the 27 pounds DM intake per day is achieved.

The calculations to determine how long the cows should spend in the paddock are as follows:

Herbage available/acre = (3000 - 1500)
= 1500 lb DM/a
or 3000 lb DM in the 2 acres.
Grazing duration= 3000 lb DM/(40 cows x 27 lb DM/day)
= 2.8 days

This feed budget, or grazing plan, shows that the cows can be expected to get their forage requirements from this paddock almost three full days. The final day would need to be assessed after day 2. This may indicate that only a half day between milkings would be possible.

By completing a similar calculation for each paddock, the rest period between grazings or rotation length can be estimated, as shown in Table 1.

For simplicity, only three paddocks are assumed in the example.

Let's say that these were scored for herbage mass by eye assessment on April 30 and that the net herbage accumulation rate is expected to be 50 pounds DM per day during May. Paddocks can be grazed for half or full days.

Feed budget calculation to determine the number of grazing days available and the rest period between grazings. A 1500 lb DM/a post-grazing or residual herbage mass is assumed.

Pdk #	Area (acres)	Herbage (lb DM/a)	Grazing days	Dates	Expected herbage (lb DM/a)
1	2	3000*	3.0*	5/1-5/3*	2250*
2	5	2900	7.0	5/4-5/10	1900
3	6	2400	8.0*	5/11-5/18	1500

*Herbage mass present when pastures were scored on April 30.

*Grazing days are calculated as shown in text example.

*The number of grazing days including regrowth (10 days x 50 lb DM/d=500 lb DM/acre) before paddock 3 is due to be grazed. A total of 2900 lb DM/a (2400 + 500 lb DMK/a) should be present for grazing on May 11.

*The amount of herbage that is expected in each paddock after the last paddock (3) has been grazed. In this case about 15 days will elapse before paddock 1 is to be grazed again (15 days x 50 lb DM/ha/d=750 lb DM/a regrowth; to be added to the 1500 lb DM/a residual after grazing).

Notice that the calculations include herbage growth that is expected to occur prior to each paddock being grazed. For example, paddock 3 is not due to be grazed for 10 days. The 500 pounds of DM that should grow before grazing is included in the calculation of grazing days.

The feed budget shows a 15-day rest between grazings of paddock 1 should be possible (i.e. 7 and 8 days respectively in paddocks 2 and 3).

This rest period does not allow sufficient herbage to regrow to maintain the rotation (e.g. paddock 1 with 2,250 pounds of DM per acre will only provide grazing for one full day on May 19). This reflects the high stocking rate (13 acres for 40 cows or 3 cows/acre).

Clearly, changes to grazing management are required to prevent overgrazing, and reduced milk production, especially as herbage growth rates normally decline in the summer.

Increasing supplements, reducing the number of animals grazing, increasing the pasture area, or reducing the time spent grazing are some options available to increase the rest period.

These examples show how feed budgeting can be used to plan grazing.

Notice also how the feed budgets highlight the importance of information such as stocking rate, the amount of pasture available for grazing and herbage growth rates.

The calculations involved in feed budgeting are straightforward and can easily be done with a calculator. Some of your time is required (maybe 1 hour per week) to get the information and complete the calculations, but you will find that this more objective approach to grazing management will help to reduce risk and will increase your awareness of how much pasture the cows are eating.

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Good breeding is what won Randy Balthaser of Hamburg grand champion of the Berks County FFA Hog Show last week at the Leesport Market and Auction.

Randy's crossbred barrow weighed in at 255 pounds and was purchased for $2 a pound by Hatfield Quality Meats, Hatfield. It was the highest price paid for any of the hogs.

Randy, of Bernville R.D. 1, said all he did for his hog, after purchasing him from a good breeder, was feed and walk him. Fortunately, he said, his champion hog had large hams and a long loin, which caught the eye of judge Mike States of Penn Valley Farms, Mohrsville.

Brian Beam of the Twin Valley FFA won reserve champion with his crossbred barrow that weighed 250 pounds. Hatfield Quality Meats also purchased Brian's hog for $1.80 a pound.

Brian Beam of the Twin Valley FFA sells his reserve grand champion market hog to Butch Clemens, president of Hatfield Quality Meats, for $1.80 a pound.

Randy Balthaser of the Hamburg FFA turns over his grand champion crossbred barrow to Butch Clemens, president of Hatfield Quality Meats, for $2 a pound last week at the Berks County FFA Hog Sale in the Leesport Market and Auction.

Butch Clemens, president of the firm, said it's his company's practice to support FFA.

"They're our future," he said of the teens involved in agriculture. He said he reads letters from FFA members thanking the company for purchasing their animals and saying, because of that encouragement, they will continue in agriculture.

"It makes us feel good to do this for these youngsters," Clemens said.

The following is a list of the other FFA members in the show and their FFA chapters: Troy Gelsinger and Tammy Gelsinger, both of Conrad Weiser; Brian Tworkoski, Kutztown; Paula Hunter, Wendy Jesilowski and Richard Kerper, both of Oley.

Tracey Borkey, Leslie Seidel, Brian Gougler, Tammy Balthaser and Jason Balthaser, all of Hamburg.

Jill Burkhart, Twin Valley, and Jason Manbeck, Tulpehocken.

The corn was short because of the drought, but the machines went to work to show off their style.

Officials Select All American Cattle Judges

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Some of the top dairy cattle judges in America will pick the winners during the 1991 All American Dairy Show in Harrisburg, Sept. 23-26.

Organizers of the All American promise tight competition and $80,000 in premiums for the top Ayrshires, Brown Swiss, Guernseys, Holsteins, Jerseys and Milking Shorthorns.

The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show features more than 2,000 of the best dairy cattle from 25 states and Canada.

The Ayrshire show, set for Sept. 25, is to be judged by Wayne E. Sliker of St. Paris, Ohio.

Mr. Sliker is a well known Brown Swiss breeder and has claimed many prizes by exhibiting his Top Acre cattle in the All-American Brown Swiss Show.

Mr. Sliker is also known for his work with Modern Associates, offering personalized service in livestock merchandising.

The Eastern National Brown Swiss Show, scheduled for Sept. 24, is to feature Dr. David P. Dickson as judge.

Dr. Dickson is a professor and extension dairyman at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His involvement with the Brown Swiss show helped bring many top judging teams to the intercollegiate contest.

Mark Erdman of Chenoa, Ill., has been selected to judge the National Guernsey Show on Sept. 25. Mr. Erdman has been a long time breeder and exhibitor at the All-American.

On Sept. 26, Paul King of Moorefield, W.Va., is to judge the Eastern National Holstein Show.

Mr. King was owner of Kingway Farms in York, Pa., for 27 years. He has been a very active judge, working numerous shows including the Peru National Show. He has also served as an associate judge for the three national Holstein shows. This is Mr. King's first national show in the U.S.

Assisting Mr. King as associate judge is to be Dr. Gary W. Rogers, a professor of Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State University.

Dr. Rogers grew up on a dairy farm in eastern Tennessee and has judged many regional shows in the southeastern United States. Dr. Rogers judging experience also includes high individual honors at the National FFA contest in 1979 and the National Intercollegiate Contest at Madison in 1981.

The Mid-Atlantic Regional Jersey Show is to be judged by Paul Chittenden of Schodack Landing, N.Y.

Mr. Chittenden grew up on a Jersey farm and has operated Dutch Hollow Farm for 16 years. Dutch Hollow Farm is a family farm which averages 16,000 pounds of milk for the 140-cow herd.

Judging the Milking Shorthorn Show is to be Dr. J. Lee Majeskie of College Park, Md.

Dr. Majeskie is an extension dairy specialist for the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension System. He has also been a strong supporter of youth programs in Maryland and serves as coach for the Maryland 4-H dairy judging team.

Judges for the All-American are selected from a list of qualified judges recommended by All-American Dairy Show exhibitors and breed associations.

All-American Adds Genetic Awards Programs

HARRISBURG (Dauhpin Co.) — The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, in cooperation with Sire Power and Atlantic Breeders, has added two new genetic excellence award programs for the 1991 show to be held Sept. 23-26 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

The new programs will recognize genetic quality as well as type quality with two Pennsylvania artificial breeding cooperatives providing the awards and prize money.

The new competition is designed to stimulate and recognize the mating expertise of the herd owner, breeder and exhibitor.

Show manager Charles Itle headed a planning committee that included Steve Neely from Sire Power, Thomas Smith from Atlantic Breeders, Ken Raney representing the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, and Dr. Larry Specht, Penn State University's Dairy and Animal Science Extension specialist.

The committee established the contest format and set the guidelines for the most accurate animal appraisal.

The first new program, sponsored by Sire Power, is the Genetic Index Award. This award will be presented to the animal with the highest genetic index in each female class in each breed regardless of placing. July 1991 USDA-AIPL summaries and the appropriate type information from each breed will be used to determine the winner.

The second new program, sponsored by Atlantic Breeders, is the Genetic Challenge Award. The top three scoring females in each Holstein class, using a special formula to calculate show ring and index score, will qualify to participate. From that group, three animals in each division (senior and junior) will be chosen to receive the Genetic Challenge award and prize money.

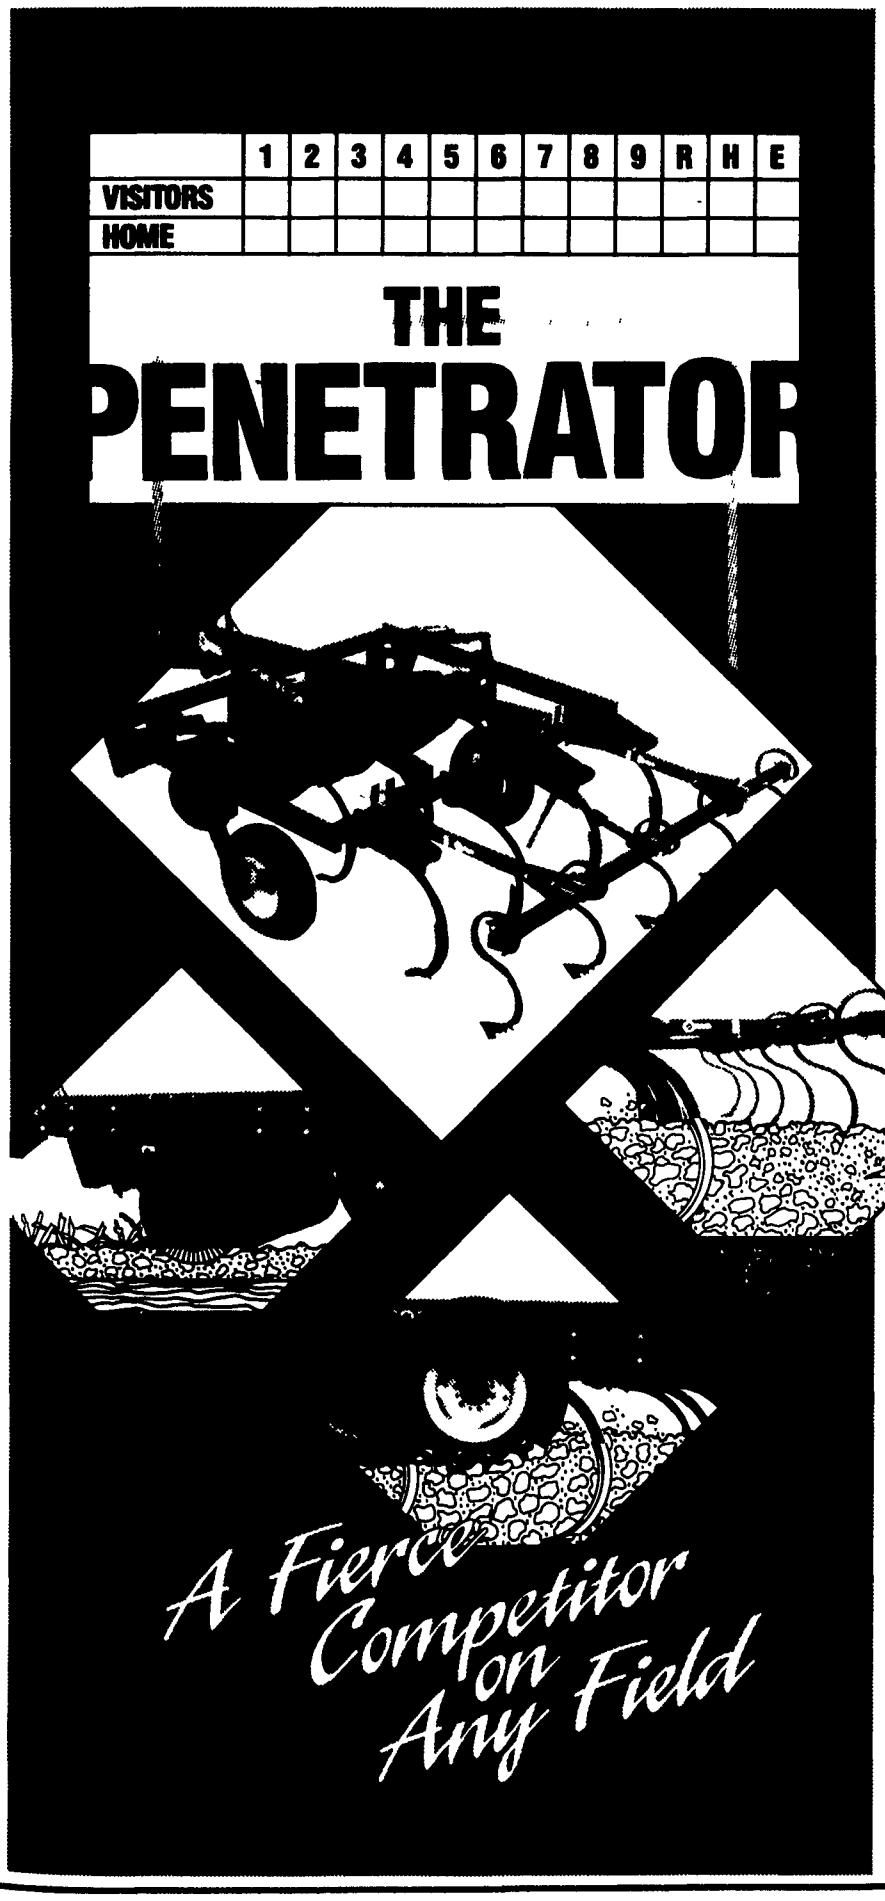
The senior division will be comprised of all Holstein females whose own production and type data are included in the calculation of their genetic index, while the junior division will include all other females checked into the show.

July 1991 indexes will once again be used and qualified animals must return to the ring to receive premiums.

Obie Snider, president of the All-American, said he is excited about the new programs.

"They will return an economic emphasis to the show which had been lost," he said. "The valuable cow today is the complete cow and we need to recognize those animals that combine the best of type and production. The ability to translate information quickly has made this program viable. The All-American plans for it to be a success well into the future."

For more information, contact the show manager at (717) 787-2905, or write to the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, 17110-9408.



No matter what shape your field is in, signing up the Penetrator® from Unverferth will make you a winner in the tillage game.

After all, when you use the Penetrator, it will be the BIGGEST PLAY OF THE GAME. The Penetrator shatters the soil quickly and smoothly because its spring-loaded, edge-bent shanks deliver exceptional stiffness and reduced deflection. Adjustable shank setting allows the load to be set at 1250 or 850 pounds for excellent penetration and shattering in any field. And because of this, it's always the LAST OUT of the field, too.

Up front, separate spring-loaded gangs of three- and four-blade coulters HIT safely through residue and SCORE in uneven terrain. These gangs feature 20 inch rippled blades, to maintain their keen edge.

Adjustable depth stops allow you to STRIKE as deep as 12 inches to rip up compacted soil, while mixing soil and stirring in residue. Shanks spaced on 15 inch centers provide outstanding coverage for the entire HOME FIELD.

Honors for the MOST ERRORS will have to go elsewhere because, unlike other chisel plows, when you drop the Penetrator, it will not bounce or jump, even across compacted end rows.

Penetrator models are available in widths from 9'2" to 17'6", with optional S-tine leveler.

To DRAFT your own Penetrator or for a demonstration of the physical prowess of this tillage star, call:

fine traditional values. In the Jefferson era, 90 percent of education was ethics and 10 percent was application. Today 90 percent of education is application and 10 percent is ethics. We need to get back to basic core values."

Timm used the attitudes of the Penn State and the Natre Dame football teams to illustrate what you need to be successful.

"They are team players," Timm said. "They are the oly college football teams that don't have individual names on the back of their jerseys. To their coaches it doesn't matter who gets the credit. When they win they all win."

We need to change some things. Through youth, Agriculture is going to be successful. They are the future of the schools, the state, the country and the world. Together we will make a difference."

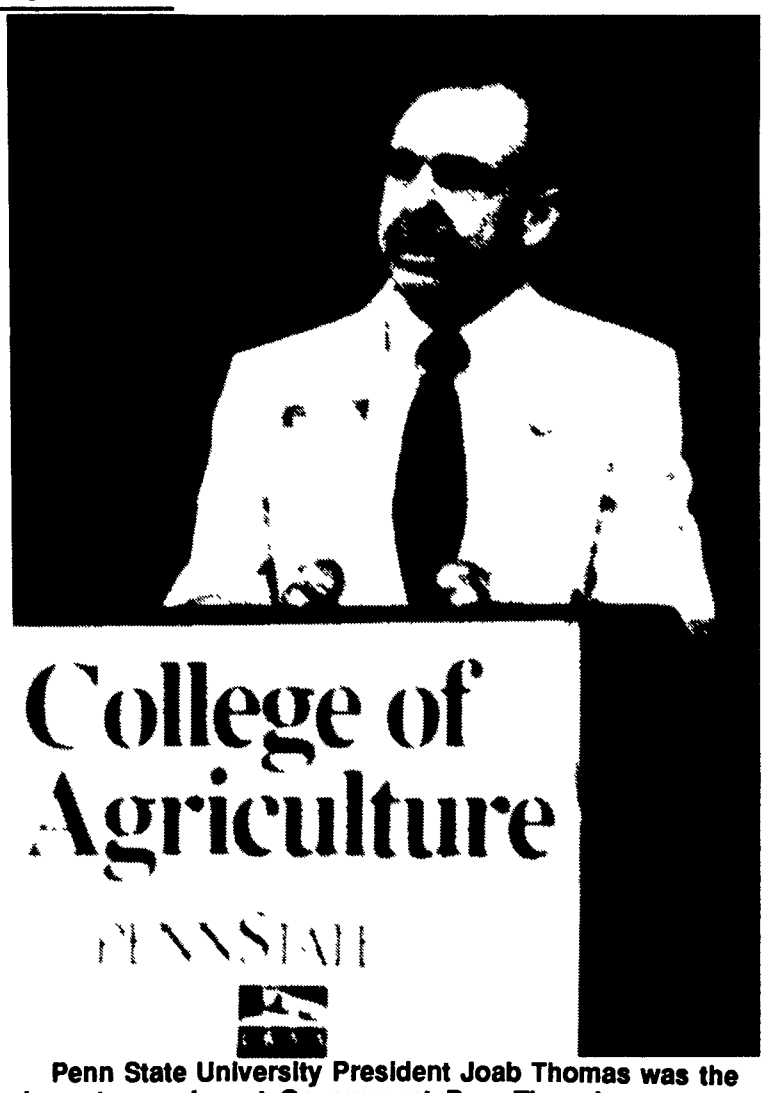
Thomas said that we are reminded of the importance of agriculture three times a day when we eat. But so often we become complacent and take food for granted.

"I have visited practically every major region of Pennsylvania and I have gained a very good impression of both the strength and the diversity of the agricultural industries in this commomwealth," Thomas said. "The impace of agriculture is very well stated in the theme for this year's Ag Progress Days: "Ag Science Touches Your Life."

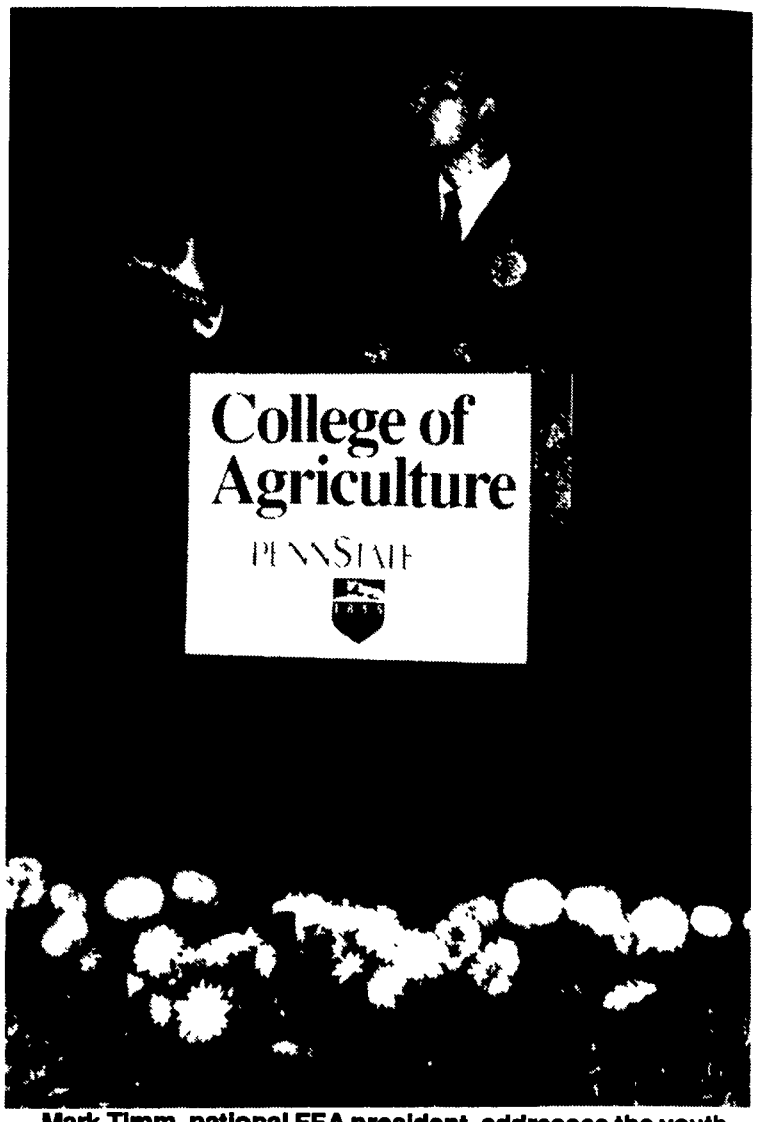
"I can remember when fresh fruits and vegetables were seasonable. We forget the benefits we have in this country. We eat very well, but this is not true in some other areas of the world.

"In the Soviet Union, we hear about food lines and empty grocery shelves. The long lines at the new McDonalds is significant. They don't call it fast food. Its the best food in town.

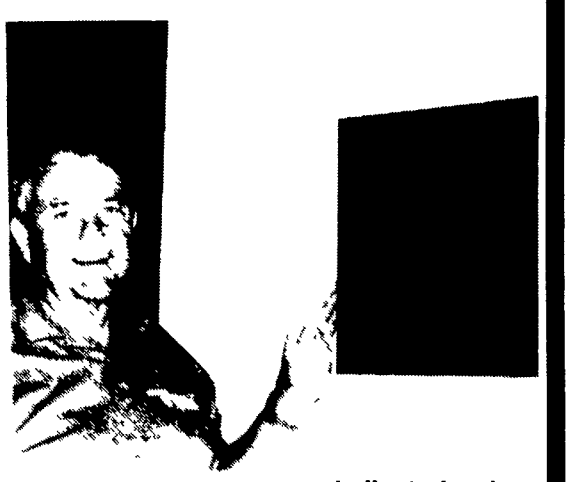
"What if Penn State had been in the Soviet Union over the past 25 years, Thomas asked? "It would have been a different country. Land grand universities are probably the most significient agent for positive change that there is in the United States. And I believe they will continue to be that important agent for positive change.



Penn State University President Joab Thomas was the keynote speaker at Government Day, Thursday.



Mark Timm, national FFA president, addresses the youth day luncheon on Wednesday.



Ag Progress Days were dedicated to Joe Harrington who has headed the event for many years. Recognition was given to Harrington at the Penn State luncheon on Tuesday.

and ethically right. Each came up with the answer which was right for him or her.

Yes, even though our taxes are raised, having been in the midst of the give and take, I can say that our legislators do listen and did their best to be equitable in the end. To those who voted for the budget and tax package, I can say unequivocally that I must applaud their courage and determination to address this state's crisis. Many did so reluctantly and are looking for our help and input to address future troubles we may face. We can't let them down.

A legislator's job is to make tough decisions. They made it, and they did it courageously. We should have the courage to support them and forge a closer partnership with them because, if we are beset with a future crisis, we should be in the fox hole together.

Editor:

As an ex-dairyman, it has bothered me for years that the dairy industry has yielded the non-alcoholic drink market to the soft drink makers by default. With the exception of a relatively tiny amount of chocolate milk, nothing has been done to exploit the tremendous potential of milk as an ingredient of a drink.

What I am suggesting is that someone, anyone, please, experiment by combining low-fat milk with all kinds of pureeed fruits and berries, even in combinations, to come up with drinks which are all-natural, nourishing, healthful, and delicious. The milk should be UHT-treated, or radiated, to give it a long shelf-life. If such a drink cannot compete with carbonated, flavored, colored, water, then the public is in worse mental shape than I thought. With the present emphasis on health and natural foods, I predict it would be instantly popular.

Such a product would make a good project for one of the milk co-ops. Think of how much milk it would take to replace even a small portion of the soft drinks sold yearly in this country!

Editor:

As the Dairy Specialist for the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) I must clarify a misunderstanding printed by Lancaster Farming, August 3, 1991 in a letter from Leroy Rowles of Olanta.

In July, 1988, PFA petitioned the PA Milk Marketing Board for an additional $1.05 for Class 1 milk, prompted by drought conditions affecting dairy farmers across the state. The request was approved and effective until January 1989.

At that time, PFA testified for an extension which was granted until September 1989. Because of excessive wet weather, the $1.05 was extended for nine additional months. In March 1990, PFA testified for another extension of the $1.05 which was granted until June 1991.

In November 1990, a PA Milk Marketing Board hearing was held because of the rapid escalation of fuel prices due to the Mid-East crisis. PFA successfully petitioned the Board for a 30-cent increase which would expire along with the $1.05 on June 30, 1991. The additional 30 cents was granted specifically to assist dairy farmers with extraordinarily high fuel prices.

On May 9, 1991, PFA testified in favor of keeping the $1.05 over-order price. PFA did not testify for retention of the 30-cents fuel increase since fuel prices had already returned to pre-Mid-East War conditions.

It must be noted that PFA provided substantive statistical data, including cost of inputs, milk production, price history, and economic forecasts. This data clearly showed the cost of production had exceeded the price received at the farm, and that increased milk supplies were driving prices down.

PFA testified that if Pennsylvania was to remain competitive in the marketing of milk, we must be cautious in pricing our product. To increase the price of Pennsylvania milk far in excess of surrounding states could cause the movement of milk INTO Pennsylvania, and the subsequent loss of our milk market.

PFA's objective is to provide testimony leading to the highest possible price for dairymen that can be proven through statistical data, and will fit with the most current market conditions.

Since September 1988, more than $150,000,000 has been returned to Pennsylvania dairymen through over-order premiums caused by PFA's work with the Pennsylvania milk Marketing Board.

Regarding our position on national dairy policy, our farmer delegates have clearly stated their opposition to any mandatory supply management programs.

PFA isn't opposed to voluntary programs, or measures to help remove the relatively small amount of surplus which hangs over our heads at times depressing our prices.

We have stated our support for a board of dairy producers to work with USDA to sell surplus products in some non-traditional markets, thus enabling the base price to remain higher. We have also advocated higher solids standards for milk to enable more product to be utilized, rather than sold to CCC as surplus.

Finally, we oppose the multitude of assessments which have accompanied recent national legislation aimed to "help" dairymen. In reality, that legislation would take away our earned income and also our freedom to make individual business decisions.

Certainly, there are not any easy answers to this complex issue. Hopefully, prices will continue to rise as they are doing today as a result of market conditions. Over-order pricing must continue.

Dairymen deserve a good income, but any remedy must be based on sound marketing factors. Otherwise the temporary "cure" could be disastrous to our dairy industry. PFA follows the edict of member policy and the best possible interpretation of market conditions to assist our dairymen.

Cumberland 4-H Dairy Roundup Prepares Youth

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — The 4-H Dairy youth of Cumberland County got a chance to show off their cattle during a recent county roundup held at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

Competitions were not only on type with the six major dairy breeds, but included showmanship as well.

The heaviest breed competition was with the Holsteins and Jerseys.

The judge of the show was Chris Woods, of Littlestown.

In the Holstein breed, The senior and grand champion was 3-year-old Tower Vuew Mandingo Delight, shown by Craig Walton, of Carlisle. The reserve senior and grand was 4-year-old Dyar-Acres Noreen Fortran-Red, shown by Julie Ann Dyarman, of Newville.

The Hosltein junior champion was a summer yearling, Tri-Day Starbuck Tasha, shown by Matthew David Day, of Shippensburg. Day also showed the reserve junior champion, a senior calf, Tri-Day Starbuck Mona Lisa.

Top honors were kept all in the family in the Jersey breed competitions, with the senior and grand champion, 5-year-old Dorina's Legend Delaura, being shown by Melanie Dietrich, of Newburg. Melanie also showed the reserve junior champion, Carrock Boomer Daria.

Mary Deaven, of Newburg, showed the reserve senior and grand champion, Cove Creek Cap's Goody Gumdrop, a 5-year-old.

In the Milking Shorthorn breed, with entries outnumbering the Guernsey and Brown Swiss, the senior and grand champion was Three Springs Ashley, a senior 2-year-old, shown by Christine Young, of Newville. The reserve senior and grand champion was Three Springs Scarlet, a junior 2-year-old shown by James Young.

In the Guernsey breed, Michael Hensel showed both the junior and grand champion and the reserve junior and grand champion cattle. His Green Acres Ben Betsy, a summer yearling, was grand champion and his Mt. view Sergeant Ellie, a senior calf, was reserve.

James also showed the junior champion, an intermediate calf, Three Springs Sunset. Jennifer Miller, also of Newville, showed the reserve junior champion, Three Springs Lilac EXP.

Justin Fuls, of Shippensburg, showed the champion Brown Swiss, a junior calf, Shady Creek Lois Lisa. The reserve grand champion was shown by his sister, Heather. It was a senior calf, Victory Acres Jared Polly-Twin.

In the showmanship competitions, the competition was broken down into three different age classes with the winner class, the top two in each division, qualifying for district level competitions later this month.

In the junior division, for ages 8 to 10, the first place showman was David Day, of Shippensburg, while Sandy Anderson, of Boiling Springs, scored a second place.

In the intermediate division, for ages 11 to 13 years, the first place winner was John Leib Jr., of Machanicsburg, while Matthew Day, of Shippensburg, took second.

In the senior division, for those 14 years or older, the first place honors went to Craig Watson, of Carlisle and second went to Chris Young, of Newville.

Federal Lab's Sludge To Enrich Farmland

ARGONNE, Ill. — About 20,000 acres of Illinois farm land will benefit from lime sludge at the U.S. Department of Energy's Argonne National Laboratory.

Over the next 10 years, about 50,000 tons of lime sludge left over from 30 years of softening Argonne's drinking water will be hauled to Illinois farms to reduce soil acidity produced by fertilizers, said Argonne engineer Judy Wingo-Stalinger. "Corn, soybeans and alfalfa are the major Illinois crops most likely to benefit because they grow best in less acidic soils."

Distribution is to start in October, when Continental Farms Inc., of Peotone, Ill., are to remove about 4,000 tons of lime sludge under a $98,000, one-year contract with Argonne. The lime will go on farms in the Joliet, Ill., area.

Farmers lime their fields in the fall, after their crops are harvested, said Noel Burke of Continental Farms.

Analyses of the lime sludge for the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) show that it contains mainly calcium and magnesium hydroxides and carbonates, inert minerals that can reduce soil acidity. During removal, samples will be taken from each truckload for IEPA-required analysis.

Argonne softens about one million gallons of water a day for human consumption and common use at the laboratory. From the mid-1950s to 1986, lime sludge was placed in a 5.5-acre drying pond on the Argonne site. Since 1986, the laboratory has used a new water-softening plant that does not produce lime sludge.

"Since we no longer need the pond for lime-sludge storage," Wingo-Stalinger said, "we're going to remove the sludge and reclaim the area."

With more than 200 different programs under way in basic and applied science, Agronne is the largest federally funded scientific laboratory in the Midwest. Argonne National Laboratory is operated by the University of Chicago for the U.S. Department of Energy.

State Pricing Orders

market power," Samuel said. "The governor says they (the dealers) should pay the over-order premium...But they're big enough that they don't have to. Because they can't show that this will hurt them."

The dispute has turned a little nasty in New Jersey, according to Charlie Miller, an official with the New Jersey Farm Bureau. Miller said there is evidence that processors have juggled their milk supplies to lower their Class I utilization percentages on milk produced in New Jersey, thereby reducing the amount of the premium paid to the state's dairymen.

Both the state Farm Bureau and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, which has a number of members in the southern part of the state, have filed briefs in support of the New Jersey state order. In addition, the Farm Bureau's board of directors recently asked the office of the state's attorney general to look into the overall issue of farm and retail milk prices in New Jersey.

Wettlin disputed the contention that the Class I utilization percentages for June reflected anything out of the ordinary. He also said the dealers are suffering from a kind of character assassination.

"We have been portrayed as anti-farmer," he said. "We're not. We're pro-farmer."

One indication, he said, has been the processors' willingness to pay premiums even before the state pricing order became effective, at a time when there was no shortage of milk in the marketplace. In southern New Jersey, where marketing is governed by Federal Order 4, the processors have long paid the $1.05 premium charged by the Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency, known as MACMMA. In the northern part of the state governed by Order 2, processors have been paying 40-60 cents a hundredweight even to the independent dairymen (those not associated with a cooperative). The processors are still paying these premiums and holding in escrow only the difference between these amounts and 77 cents, Wettlin said.

The spokesman said the processors have objections to some specific features of the New Jersey order as well as a fundamental disagreement with the imposition of government controls in the marketplace.

"This is a market-wide problem," Wettlin said. "This is not a New Jersey problem. There is too much milk in the Northeast, particularly in Federal Order 2. We're not doing the dairy farmers any favor by imposing a temporary premium that may or may not be in existence at this time next year."

The MACMMA premium, which parallels the one established by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board, is one common ground that has escaped the fallout from this latest battle between producers and processors. Bob Dever, the assistant general manager of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, said the cooperative helped propose and continues to support the New Jersey state order. But he was careful not to criticize the processors for their concerns about the legality and scope of the new state pricing orders. MACMMA leaders, meanwhile, remain committed to a cooperative bargaining approach with area handlers, Dever said.

Wettlin also pointed to the MACMMA example as one the dealers could support more readily than state pricing orders. Its private pricing agreement can be adjusted much more quickly than those imposed by government regulations, he said.

Feed Grain Comments Due

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture is planning the 1992 Feed Grain program and asking for public comments by August 28 on whether the acreage reduction percentage (ARP) for corn should be 5, 7.5, 10, 12.5, or some other percentage within the considered range.

Feed grain producers and the general public are also invited to comment on whether the sorghum and barley ARP should be 9, 5, 7.5, or some other percentage within the considered range. By law, the 1992 oats ARP must be 0, according to Susan Rhode, program assistant of the Schuylkill County agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

She said the department has proposed 1992 corn ARP options, along with an analysis that includes estimated planted acreage, production, domestic and export use, ending stocks, season average producer price, and the program participation rate.

Comments on the 1992 Feed Grain Program should be mailed to the Director, Commodity Analysis Division, USDA/ASCS, Room 3741-S, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013.

State Plowing Contest Invites Family To Fun-Filled Events

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANCHESTER (York Co.) — Think you're too young to enter a plowing contest? Think again! This year, at the 118th Great Grangers Fair and Ag Exhibition at Old Tyme Days '91, a special plowing contest will be held for youth 14 years and older.

In addition, youth 16 years and older can enter the state plowing matches and compete for experience, knowledge, and ability in plowing, said contest coordinator Bob Rentzel, president of the South Central Penn Historic Lifestyle and Power Society.

The seminar will be held at the Old Tyme Days location at the Blaine Rentzel Farm on Thursday, Aug. 22, at 1 p.m. The Pennsylvania State Plowing Contest, including matches in small plow, large plow, contour, and antique tractors, takes place Fri. Aug. 23, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Premiums on placings will be paid.

According to Rentzel, farms these days have "no middle generation." Farm-related activities along with the number of farms are declining. But competition like this can be an outlet for the enthusiasm of the younger farmers.

The plowing seminars and contests teach farmers of any age the steps to plowing straightly, cornering correctly, keeping a uniform throw, turning corners, plowing in line, and plowing under wet or dry conditions.

Those who can handle the tractor of any age are also welcome to the garden tractor plowing contest (8-16 h.p. lawn and garden tractors) on Sat., Aug. 24, at 10 a.m. Also on Saturday, the horse plowing contests begin at 1 p.m.

The fair runs from Aug. 22-25. There are a host of other activities at the fair, including the state Grange program, with guests Bill Ringer, Pennsylvania State Grange Master, and Bruce Smith, (R-Dillsburg).

Other events include a flea market and craft tent, and a pig roast Saturday at noon. Other displays include a Civil War camp and display by the Lancaster Fencibles, Circus Model Builders of Pennsylvania display, and displays of new farm machinery and rural-related items.

A variety of events from threshing, baling, shingle making, and feed grinding to multiple horse hitch demonstrations, dog power units, and many more displays, activities, and entertainment for the family will be held. Admission is $2 and children under 10 are free. For more information, contact Rentzel at (717) 266-4884.

State Grange To Hold Legislative Conference

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— In preparation for its state session in October, the Pennsylvania State Grange is hosting a Pre-Convention Legislative Conference at the Grantville Holiday Inn to familiarize committee members with upcoming issues.

The conference will take place Monday, August 26, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. It will include topics such as Susquehanna River user fees, rural health care, dairy programs, and local taxation options.

Speakers for the day include, Sen. Noah Wenger; Rep. James Gerlach; Gil Hirschel and Richard Cairo, Susquehanna River Basin Commission; Dr. Robert Yonkers, Pennsylvania State University; and Leroy Watson, National Grange legislative representative.

"Our purpose is to keep the members of our various committees updated on the latest breaking issues," said State Master William H. Ringler. "We hope that this day of informative speakers will help our committee members work on resolutions of substance to discuss at our State Session in Altoona in October."

Windy-Knoll-View Ultimate Pala Takes South Central Holstein Show

BETH WHITMAN PITZER
Cumberland County Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Windy-Knoll-View Ultimate Pala, owned by James and Nina Burdette, of Mercersburg, was named grand and senior champion of the South Central Championship Holstein Show held August 10 at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

The aged cow was one of several class winners for the Burdettes who show Holsteins frequently. James also judges at a number of shows.

The South Central show is one of several regional Holstein shows which lead up to the end-of-the year state championship show, scheduled for Sept. 6 in the Agricultural Arena at Penn State University.

Of the remaining regional Holstein shows, the Central Pennsylvania Show is being held 6:30 p.m. today at the Huntingdon County Fairgrounds, the Northeast Pennsylvania Show is to be held 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at Tioga County Fairgrounds in Whitneyville, and the Eastern Pennsylvania Championship Show is scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday at the Kutztown Fairgrounds in Kutztown.

The South-Central show took six hours and saw 152 entries in the ring. The judge was Jason Meyers, New Windsor, Md.

The reserve champion of the senior division was Hearts-Desire AJET Charity, owned by Eugene and June Curl. Charity was also named best udder among her 2-year-old peers.

The open show junior champion was a winter yearling, Windy-Knoll-View JJB Crisey, owned and bred by Justin Burdette. Crisey also was named junior champion in the youth division.

The reserve youth and open junior champion was Tri-Day Starbuck Tasha, owned by Matthew Day.

Enroll In 'Hotspot' Deer Hunt

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.)— The Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) is urging farmers who have suffered crop damage due to game to enroll for this year's "hotspot" deer hunt before the Sept. 1st deadline.

The PA Game Commission has announced no farmers will be able to sign up for the program after Sept. 1. Last season during the first year of the "hotspot" hunt, about 2,600 deer were harvested on 623 enrolled farms. "This time we're hoping for greater participation by farmers and hunters and bigger results," said PFA's Director of Local Affairs, Mel Eckhaus.

"Some changes have been made by the Game Commission which should improve the program," Eckhaus said, "For one thing, farmers will be able to identify their farms as "hotspot" hunting areas by Oct. 1 so signs can be seen when hunters take to the fields beginning Oct. 5 for deer archery season and later during regular deer seasons. The "hotspot" season has also been lengthened by two weeks from Dec. 26 through Jan. 25, 1992. The first two weeks will coincide with the late deer archery and muzzleloader seasons. Hopefully this adjacent hunting activity will deter deer from leaving "hotspot" areas."

Farmers with an interest in the "hotspot" program to alleviate deer damage are urged to contact their regional Game Commission office.

every living person and animal.

People from as far away as Conneticut and Florida — and England — visited the three-day event.

Why do they come?

Some come to admire the tractors, some to learn the latest in scientific development, and some to taste the scrumptious food. Regardless of the reason, all agreed that Ag Progress is a great place to visit.

Every year Kingsley Cone travels the whole way from East Hadddam, Ct., to visit Ag Progress with her husband and son. This year the dairy farm family took a special interest in round balers and wrappers since there aren't too many of them in the New England area.

The couple spent three days at the annual event "because we like to find out everything we can. My husband prefers the farm machinery exhibits while I like the Penn State Building exhibits," said Kingsley who also celebrates her birthday with the trip.

Gladys Burgess traveled the whole way from England — well, actually she came to visit Chambersburg friends Shirley and Paul Lehman who thought their guest would enjoy a look at agriculture since it's so vital to Pennsylvania's economy. When we caught up with her, she was enjoying the cooking demonstration at the Meating Place.

Krystal and Sarah Yoder, from Lewisburg, came with their parents, Miriam and Kore, and brought a Mifflinburg friend Rachel Seigrist, 5, and their 9-year-old cousin Patti Yoder and her parents who live in South Carolina. The girls enjoyed picking up

The Rowe family walks all in a row while enjoying ice cream at Ag Progress. The Mercer farm family includes grandpa Robert, parents Robin and William, and children Justin, 7, Gabriel, 11, and Craig, 12.

These three don't like the heat but they sure enjoy seeing all the new equipment displayed. Said Hopbottem resident Ressel Simpon, center, "I was born 30 years to soon. Look at those nice tractors they have now — why they are bigger than a house."

Gladys Burgess, England, and Shirley and Paul Lehman from Chambersburg test pork tenderloin made in the microwave.

Finding a way to get around the huge tent city of Ag Progress Days with relative ease, Kenneth Fultz pulls the wagon, while Miriam pushes the wagon, while 2-year-old son David rides.

Sampling prize-winning ice cream is the highlight of Ag Progress for Marian Lovell, who lives on a Lycoming County livestock farm.

Glen Boonie of Neffs Mills is now retired, but he still enjoys looking around and eating bean soup made in the steam engine.

the stickers that many exhibits handed out and they indulged in testing ice cream during the ice cream churn-off contest.

Sampling prize-winning ice cream was also a highlight for Marian Lovell, who lives on a Lycoming County farm. Exhibits that pertain to livestock also interest her.

Kenneth and Miriam Fultz pulled and pushed their 2-year-old son David in a wagon as they toured the grounds. The family lives in Snyder County but plans a move to a Chester County dairy farm within a week. "We came to see the latest in everything. We can't live without Ag Progress or Lancaster Farming," the couple claim. They took a special interest in the intensive grazing tour.

Glen Boonie of Neffs Mills is now retired, but he still enjoys looking around and eating bean soup made in the steam engine.

While Ressel Simpon and his wife don't like the heat, they do like to look at all the equipment. "I was born 30 years to soon," Simpon said. "Look at those nice tractors they have now — why they are bigger than a house."

Larry Schrickengast, Millheim, said he prefers to see the sawmills run. This former farmer used to operate a sawmill. "They sure are different now than they used to be," he said.

Six members of the Rowe family made their annual trek to Ag Progress. The Mercer farm family includes grandpa Robert, parents Robin and William, and children Justin, 7, Gabriel, 11, and Craig, 12. Gabriel said the highlight of the visit is collecting bags — he had 30 of them and the day wasn't half over when we talked to him. Justin prefers admiring a pedal tractor while the remainder of the family likes "everything."

Bob Hoffman, from Califon, N.J., has a beef cattle operation and raises hay and corn. He also does custom work. He and Kenneth Hoser, a cash cropper from Stewartsville, N.J., were checking out the exhibitor stands.

Hoser, who retired four years ago from dairying with registered Brown Swiss, said, "I came to see the latest technology in the farming industry."

"I came out to see new equipment and see what's available out there," Hoffman said.

"I haven't been down for a few years, but before that I'd been to about 10 of (Ag Progress Days). It looks like it's a lot bigger."

From the left, Bob Hoffman and Kenneth Hoser, both from New Jersey, visit Ag Progress Days to learn more about the cutting edge of practical agricultural technology.

Rachel Seigrist, 5, Mifflinburg; Krystal Yoder, 7, and Sarah Yoder, 9, from Lewisburg brought their cousin, Patti Yoder, 9, from South Carolina to visit Ag Progress.

WHY GROW WHEAT IF SPELTZ YIELDS 100 TO 150 BUSHELS PER ACRE - 100 IN THIS DRY YEAR, AND BRINGS 10¢ PER LB. BY THE SEMI-LOAD IF NON TOXIC? WHY KILL YOUR EARTHWORMS AND SOIL LIFE IF THEY WOULD HAVE GIVEN YOU MUCH FREE FERTILIZER OF THE BEST KIND, AND DISEASE RESISTANCE IF YOU WOULD HAVE LEFT THEM LIVE?

There is no excuse because our program produces better crops than the neighbors' - up to 250 and more bu. corn per acre, in Lebanon County, and 29% protein hay. The difference is greatest in a drought because our earthworms make the soil and subsoil spongy which holds more spring rains than a brick. Then when the drought comes, the moisture seeps up like a wick effect, and the roots can also go down thru the soft soil to meet it — a happy marriage! And the feed is so much better that the milk comes up and the problems go down.

Cysts and mastitis etc. are toxins giving a warning sign to eyes that see and a heart to understand.

We believe we have the best blend of organic fertilizer at only $154 per ton. It doesn't dissipate, therefore apply it in the fall to condition your precious soil ahead of planting time. Conditioning is the name of the game.

RIGIDPLY RAFTERS INC.

MANUFACTURERS of LAMINATED RAFTERS and WOOD ROOF TRUSSES

701 E. Linden St., RICHLAND, PA 17087

MEMBER

NATIONAL FRAME BUILDERS ASSOCIATION INC

In the summer of 1954, the Shirk family began to manufacture laminated wood rafters in their home in Myerstown, Pennsylvania. Before and after school, several sets of rafters were glued and clamped together in the basement of their house. In time, the family felt that the business needed a name which was truly descriptive of the quality product that they were producing. The name Rigidply Rafters was established in 1954 by Chester F. Shirk, owner and operator of this contracting company.

In the years that followed, a number of changes and challenges occured. 1963 brought the introduction of a new product line, wood roof trusses, and the first crane truck was put into operation in 1964.

In 1971 the business expanded to include yet another market, that being the Post Frame Building Industry. That same year saw Rigidply develop a relationship with Fabral corp as being our supplier of steel and aluminum cladding.

Through the years we have seen a number of changes occur in the "Pole Building Industry," as was formerly called. Today we're seeing the picture change again, but the agricultural buildings we're designing now are far more sophisticated than ever before.

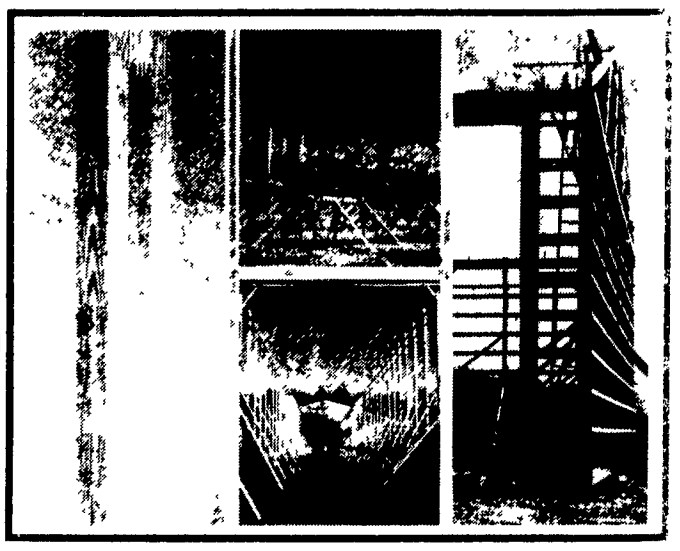
Improve The Quality Of Your Next Post Frame Building By Specifying Glu-Lam Posts.



The term "diaphragm action" is no longer foreign to the industry, but, there are two questions people most often ask.

How does diaphragm action work? and why should I care about diaphragm action?

Diaphragm action is a technical way of saying that the roof and ceiling of a building are being used to help carry lateral (wind) loads.

Diaphragm action is achieved when posts on the endwalls of a building, extend to the top chord of engineered trusses which are connected by purlins two feet on center. The building must then be covered with a steel cladding and fastened with screws or sheeted with plywood and nailed, which in turn helps to strengthen the building. Large openings in the endwalls should have headers installed that are engineered to transfer the load across the opening.

Because of the diaphragm action, post sizes, and their embedment depth can be reduced, and the number of knee braces can be reduced or eliminated entirely. This leads to a stronger building for a more economical price.

In 1985, the post frame building industry received yet another benefit, the developement of "The Glu-Lam Post," which are manufactured in our plant. These posts were tested and approved for use in the post frame construction industry by engineers at The Pennsylvania State University, and Wood Mechanics Personnel. These posts can be manufactured up to 60' lengths. Along with their many benefits, they prove to be very effective in acquiring diaphragm action, because of the possibilities of the longer lengths.

We are confident that with our large inventory of post frame building materials, efficient manufacturing plants, engineering and sales personnel, we are well equipped to meet the needs of you, our customer.

Everyone at Rigidply Rafters, Inc. is fully committed to serving our customers and providing them with the finest products available. The excellence that we strive for is to show our appreciation for our customers continued loyalty to Rigidply Rafters. You deserve the best!

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Early morning phone calls received here can usually be split into two categories.

Number one — problems with cattle or equipment. Numbr two — sales/telemarketing calls.

So when the phone rang before 7:30 one morning last week, I expected to hear a familiar, employee voice. Instead, the pleasant female voice asking for The Farmer immediately switched my guess to category two.

"He's not here right now; can I help you?" I asked, wondering what sales pitch would be forthcoming.

"This is the State Police," was the reply.

Oooohhhhhh. Not quite sure if our son was at that moment on the road or not, or exactly where he was, my stomach did somersaults.

And the voice continued: "We have you on our cow list."

. Instant relief. Or, on second thought, maybe not.

"Where are there cows out?" I queried, already envisioning a bunch of heifers out scarfing grass along the interstate which slices across a corner of the farm. Obviously (embarrassingly!), this is not the first such call we've received.

Late one Friday night a couple of years ago, I'd been talking with a fellow dairy producer for a long time when a voice broke into our conversation.

The state police were trying to ge through to us.

Then, too, the youngest was away and I instantly envisioned the worst — automobile accident. The receiver slammed on our friends's poor ear. And our phone rang immediately.

"This is the state police; we have a report of a cow along Interstate 83 and believe it may belong to you."

The Farmer three-wheeled down to the highway. Didn't come back. And didn't come back. About 11:30, I went looking for some sign, fearfully expecting to see the flashing lights of police cars and ambulances. Nothing. Traffic was flowing normally.

His return momentarily followed mine. He'd found the escapee grazing on the edge of the right shoulder of the southbound two lanes and herded her back into the dry lot. She was a cow we had just turned dry and moved earlier in the day — and apparently just wanted to come back to her milking herdmates. Unfortunately, she headed in the wrong direction for some reason.

It was not a very restful night. Visions of what can happen when a three-quarter-ton cow connects with a car or large truck traveling at high speeds haunted my sleep.

Even more potentially disastrous was the morning about 10 years ago when two dozen bred heifers broke through a fence near the interstate's exit, which is just a field or two away from their pasture.

Badly disoriented — or searching for high adventure — the whole bunch trotted up the southbound entrance ramp and headed for Baltimore. A northbound driver with supreme "cool" and superb timing saw what was happening, pulled over and had the heifers turned around by the time The Farmer got there.

Thus, when cattle are reported out anywhere in this neck of the woods, it is understandable that we get a call. After another question or two, it was determined that these most recent escapees were carousing around the far side of our nearest town — three miles away.

That the group included a bull and steers clinched it. We have no steers or a bull in this herd. I pled innocent this time and offered the name of another farmer closer to that area, wishing the good-natured dispatcher more luck than she'd had with us.

I guess if we have to be on a police list of any kind, "cows" is one of the better categories.

All-You-Can-Eat Ice Cream Benefits Charity

Syracuse, NY — As summer's heat beats down on us, we long for relief. A lone tent lumbers on Empire Court. Anxious dishes await their destiny with a spoon. The fair grounds are abuzz. It's true — eat all the ice cream you want for two-bucks. It's a bargain. Cool refreshment at last. ICE CREAM!

For the first time, SCOOPER BOWL '91 is part of Dairy Day at the New York State Fair on August 26. Fairgoers can eat all the ice cream they want for $2 from noon to 5 p.m. Proceeds will be donated to Camp Good Days and Special Times, an organization which strives to improve the quality of life for children affected by cancer.

Dairy Day is a traditional tribute to the New York state dairy industry. Festivities begin at 10 a.m. with a program hosted by Amy Robbins and Ted Long from Syracuse radio station 93Q.

A media milking contest will be in the Coliseum. Each team member milks a cow for 60 seconds. When all members have finished milking, the team with the most milk wins!

SCOOPER BOWL '91, Dairy Day's main event, begins at noon in Empire Court. Bring the whole family for an afternoon of all-you-can-eat ice cream. Ice cream is being donated by H.P. Hood Inc., Borden, Inc., Marble Farms, Carvel, and Crowley Foods, Inc.

This year's butter sculpture is a rendition of an old-fashioned ice cream cart with a young lad accepting the second scoop of his double dip cone. Located in the Dairy Products Building, the sculpture has been designed and created by Raymond Mackintosh of Ontario, Canada.

Milk, the official state beverage, will be available at the Rainbow Milk Bar for 25 cents. Prize-winning New York state Cheddar cheese, lowfat cheese and other real dairy products will be sold.

Hey! Folks

If your cows are slipping and falling, it ain't my fault because I have a machine called a Scabbler that will fix that concrete so your cows won't keep slipping all the time.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Be looking to hear from you folks right soon.

Gary Barnes: Master Of Modern, Ancient Arts

SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Co. Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, MD.— From the time he was a kid growing up in rural Carroll County, Gary Barnes has had a knack for making things. "I have made things since day one," recalled Gary, now 'thirty-something.' "I had a cousin that I played with, and I always made two of everything. It seemed natural." Gary pursued his interest in making things by hand, and through the years his furniture, knives and jewelry have been sought after by people from all over the globe.

"They just don't make things they way they used to." Often times people are overheard, relenting the fact that it's not easy to find fine quality, handcrafted items in these days of mass production. Such is not the case in New Windsor, where master craftsman, Gary Barnes, uses techniques from the past century to design and produce his sterling silver, gold, gemstone and ivory jewelry.

A master bladesmith by trade, Gary Barnes is one of only a handful of knife makers with a master rating for the manufacture of Damascus steel, a special blend of hundreds of layers of metals, heated and forged together. His knives are much sought after by collectors the world over, with his one thousandth knife landing in the hands of a Japanese collector.

"I started with a cabinet shop in '74," explained Gary. I made reproduction antique pieces while repairing and refinishing antiques. The nicest thing I ever made was a complete bedroom set, including a chest on chest and a bed with ball and claw feet." Gary constructed the set from black walnut, "some of which my grandfather had cut." The intricate carvings were all done by hand.

Soon, the cabinet business gave way to Gary's interest in knife-making. "I always was interested in pocket knives," recalled Gary. "Very few people made them; they made hunting knives. When I thought I had the ability to make them, I tried it in '76." That's when Gary said that the "knives took over and ran the cabinet shop out of business. I had to make a choice then."

The knife business is still going strong. Gary just finished knife number 1,039. His first love is pocket knives. And many people, from Australia to Switzerland, share that appreciation for the handy pocket companion, and they are willing to pay the price for handcrafted, top-quality knives - from $300 to more than $8,000 for an ornate and intricately carved masterpiece.

"I'm concentrating now on jewelry," explained Gary. He uses many of the techniques that he mastered for knife-making, in his jewlery making. And the tools and equipment that he has acquired or fabricated over the years, he now uses for the production of his vintage looking bracelets, earrings, pendants and rings.

Kelly Barnes is her husband's best advertisement. Here, she wears a pair of elegant design drop silver earrings.

"A lot of people think the jewlery looks antique or Victorian," said Gary. "That comes from the techniques that use, rather than by design."

One technique Gary uses in his jewelry making is Repousse, where the design is pushed up from the back of the material. "It stands up in three dimensional relief. It's an old technique," said Gary. "If you make it like it was made one hundred years ago, it will look antique." Gary signs and dates each piece of jewelry that he makes because of its heirloom quality, and to make sure that those who purchase his pieces know that they are contemporary works and not antiques.

Each piece of jewelry that Gary makes is fashioned one piece at a time. If asked how long it takes him to complete a piece, his standard answer is 17 years. I had to cut dies, make the presses, learn the techniques, and put it all together," he mused. "It will take me days to hand carve the master, and then I can take impressions, one at a time, off of that, using 50 to 100 tons of pressure," he added.

Gary makes a negative impression, hand carved and engraved, into hard tool steel. "I've gotten so I can read just as well backwards as I can forwards," said Gary. Each master design must be the opposite of the desired final design.

"People have a tolerance for forms such as vines and birds," he explained. "The human image is the hardest thing to do. It's the highest form of art that I do."

On the master for a design, Gary must think in terms of concave versus convex. Cheekbones, for example must be sunken in on the master so that the piece of jewelry will bear the likeness of a human face, complete with cheekbones which protrude in correct proportion from the face. "It's so delicate that just one swipe can ruin the image. If it looks like it's going to speak to you, then an artist did that," he added.

Gary's wife, Kelly, said that she often wonders, "How did he do that? Everything is opposite!" Kelly is her husband's "greatest advertisement" because she wears his jewelry proudly. "I kind of get a feel for what people like," she explained. Often, the first print of a particular design is given to Kelly.

"My favorite is the panel bracelet with handmade glass beads," said Kelly. "It looks like something from the 1870s," added Gary. She also enjoys wearing the sterling silver drop earrings with an elegant vine and leaf motif designed by her husband.

Prices for the unique pieces of jewelry vary depending on the intricacy of the design, materials used, and labor involved. Sterling silver drop earrings are priced at $30. A four panel bracelet can be made with panels of various motifs, and ranges in price from $50 to $95. A sterling silver cuff style bracelet with hand stamped designs from punches that Gary made costs between $25 and $65. Pendants for men or ladies cost around $25. "I've made a special effort to make interesting pendants for men," added Gary, who is often seen wearing one of his own unique designs. And rings vary from $50 to $100 depending on the size, mount, and stone.

"Carvings are labor intensive," said Gary. "And carving the likeness of a lady is ten times more difficult than a man. Soft and feminine in a piece of metal is extremely difficult to achieve. Men can have rugged features," said Gary. "But you don't want it to have a silly look."

Gary is accustomed to working with gold, silver and gemstones. He also creates unique pieces from ancient ivory. "I do a lot of carvings," said Gary. "Delicate stuff." He has completed several rings and pendants carved from ancient walrus teeth, which he estimates to be about 500 years old.

"I use no contemporary materials," said Gary, with reference to his supply of ivory. Only native American Indians may harvest the teeth and tusks of animals for use or resale. And Gary uses only teeth and tusks that are the remains of animals which died centuries ago. Gary explained that there is an abundant supply of ancient ivory in some parts of the

HOW TO CARE FOR CAST IRON

Good cooks of old always valued old-fashioned cast iron for its durability and superior cooking performance. Now, after many years of being hidden away, cast iron has become high fashion in kitchen decor. Skillets, pots and Dutch ovens, classic in shape and rich black in color, are being displayed on wall racks and kitchen shelves.

There is, of course, the rust problem, but proper care can prevent that. The main idea is to keep the utensil well oiled and dry. Wash your new cast iron pan gently with a soap or detergent solution and a cloth or soft brush. Do not use abrasive scouring pads or powder. Rinse in warm water, and dry thoroughly. Then season by coating with unsalted cooking oil and place pan in a 200 degree F. oven for two hours. Allow the pan to cool completely, and wipe off excess oil with a clean cloth or paper towels. After each use, wash quickly in hot sudsy water, rinse thoroughly and wipe completely dry. If you have cooked with water, reseasoning may be necessary. If food has stuck to the pan or if the pan is already rusted, you can scour gently with steel wool, and then reseason immediately. Never put cast iron in the dishwasher, and always store uncovered, since moisture can collect inside and cause rust.

RECYCLE THOSE METAL HANGERS

What do you do with those extra hangers that tend to clutter up your closet? Rather than allow hangers to become a nuisance in your closet or garbage can, how about returning them to your local cleaner? More and more professional cleaners are involved in the recycling of hangers. The cleaner may ask you to return the hangers to them in small packages tied up. Other cleaners may supply different types of racks or cages than you can slip the hangers on when you visit their store. Those hangers that are not suitable for reuse will be sold for scrap metal so that none of them are wasted.

Recycled hangers could mean more money in your pocket. Some cleaners will give you credit for hangers that you return; usually from one to two cents a hanger. In lieu of this, some cleaners will donate a similar amount to their favorite charity. Recycling hangers does save the dry-cleaner money and he passes it on to you.

Hangers that are received for recycling are steam processed by the cleaner before they are reused. Consequently, customers can be assured that their hangers will be clean.

What about those plastic bags you receive with each order of clothes from the cleaner. Many cleaners have containers in their plants where they will collect these poly bags. They are then sent back to recycling firms that use the recycled plastic to make other plastic material.

Although the hanger and bag recycling programs are relatively new, cleaners have been recycling cleaning fluid for years. The solvent is filtered, distilled, and returned to the dry-cleaning system for re-use.

Eating Out Is No Excuse To Break Your Diet

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — Eating out is no excuse to sacrifice good eating habits!

Recognizing the fact that Americans may eat as many as one out of every three meals away from home, many restaurants are offering their customers healthful options. These options range from special menu items prepared according to the American Heart Association's "Eating Away From Home" guidelines, to offering salt and sugar substitutes, decaffeinated beverages and reduced-calorie salad dressings. Regardless of whether the restaurant you select offers healthy eating options, the following guidelines will help you make nutritionally wise selections:

* Avoid high-calorie first courses. Good choices might include fresh fruit with yogurt dressing, vegetables, seafood with cocktail sauce or clear soup.

* Request low-calorie dressing for the salad and/or ask for the dressing on the side so you can control the amount.

* Select lean meat, poultry or fish as an entree. Pasta also can be a good choice.

* Don't forget that you can order milk or juice as your beverage — to enhance the nutritional value of your meal — instead of a soft drink, coffee or cocktail.

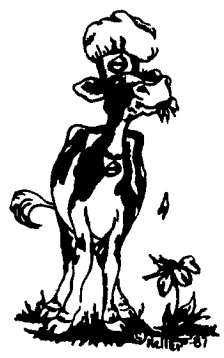
* You don't have to join the "Clean Plate Club." Practice portion control. Restaurants typically serve larger portions than you would serve at home.

* Let dinner guide dessert choices. If you've already indulged, consider fruit, ice milk, frozen yogurt or angel food cake.

* When you know you will be eating dinner out, don't skip breakfast or lunch. Instead, eat fewer calories at both meals or get some extra exercise (or both) to accommodate the extra calories you're apt to consume in the evening.

* If you are eating at a fast food restaurant, fortify your meal with nutrient-dense milk or fruit juice instead of a soft drink.

* Be smart about salad bars. Salad greens, raw vegetables and sprouts are low calorie choices. Kidney beans are higher in calories, but good sources of protein as are cottage cheese and hard-cooked eggs. Macaroni salad, potato salad, marinated vegetables and coleslaw are higher in fat and calories. Use dressing sparingly or opt for fresh lemon juice.



Gary Barnes

country. "There is enough that there is a trade which benefits native peoples," he explained.

Gary also uses ivory from ancient wooly mammoth and mastodon tusks. "The mammoth tusks are about 20,000 years old, and the mastodon tusks are probably twice that old," remarked Gary. Commenting on the abundant supply, Gary said that he saw an exhibit at the Smithsonian Institute which stated that "something like 66,000 pairs of mastodon tusks had been harvested by the mid 1800s. It is plentiful." The address of Gary's supplier is simply "The North Pole."

The ancient ivory that Gary works into his own masterpieces is beautifully colored and has the appearance of petrified wood. "It sometimes surfaces in gold mining operations where water canons are used to erode a hillside and the minerals and tusks surface." When Gary receives a shipment of ancient ivory from the North Pole, no one would even bother to steal it because it looks like bark. The fragments of tusks that he begins with must first have the outer rough layer removed.

"I can tell when he's working on ivory," said Kelly. It smells like teeth — it makes me cringe." The whir of a dental drill signals Kelly that Gary is working with ivory. He uses the instrument to chip away and carve into the tooth-like surface. Gary said that the sound of the dental drill doesn't bother him because he has no cavaties and has never had the unpleasant experience of a dental drill grinding away at his own teeth.

The ivory has a distinctive coloration from the absorption of minerals for thousands of years. "I take advantage of the different layers. I can achieve a cameo effect with a figure more intense on the outside," said Gary. The image carved into the ivory is often consistent with the age of the material. "Ancient man is a theme I enjoy, " he commented. His pendants are then hung on a titanium loop "a high-tech material." "It has an interesting air about it like a cave man in Gucci slippers."

Gary Barnes' creations are on display in a small gallery at the New Windsor Inn's Whistlestop Dining Room, where he and wife Kelly run the restaurant with their partner, Fred Ross. They can also be found at Antique Station in Frederick, Maryland, or by appointment. Gary will fill custom orders for jewelry or knives. He may be reached by calling (301)635-6243 or (301) 875-0021, or by writing to him at P.O. Box 138, New Windsor, Maryland 21776.

Whether he is carving an intricate piece of jewelry, designing a knife, painting a landscape in oils, puttering around his Victorian home, or serving up a bowl of Kelly's secret recipe Cream of Crab Soup at the restaurant, Gary Barnes does it to perfection in a fashion uniquely his own.

"What I make, nobody needs. When someone reaches into his pocket and pulls out something handmade, an heirloom... I provide enjoyment," he said.

Low-Fat, Low-Sugar Recipes

When we asked for low sugar and low salt recipes, readers sent in numerous delicious recipes that prove that people really do want to have their cake and eat it too.

This is partially possible, thanks to sweeteners such as Sunette and Sweet and Low, and to chefs who use spices and herbs to cut down on the sugar and salt needed for flavor. Lowfat dairy products are one good way to cut the fat in recipes.

Remember to read labels and find out what they mean. Even if a recipe does not list salt as an ingredient, it may be high in sodium because sodium is naturally present in many foods. Even if you do not add salt to your food, a normal diet provides enough sodium for the body's needs.

If you are on a strict low sodium, low sugar diet, check with the American Heart Association and your County Extension office. They have extensive information and recipes for heart healthy living.

GREEK SALAD A LA WINDY MEADOWS

1 box pasta shells
2 small onions, sliced thin
1 red pepper, sliced thin
1 green pepper, sliced thin
1 medium tomato, cubed
½ pound sliced pepperoni, cut in quarters
8 ounces Feta cheese
⅓ cup water
⅓ cup olive oil
⅓ cup vinegar
Fresh basil, to taste
Fresh parsley, to taste
Fresh chives, to taste
Powdered garlic, to taste
Pinch salt
Pepper, to taste
Red pepper, to taste
1 teaspoon sugar

Cook shell al dente and set aside. Combine water, oil, vinegar, sugar, herbs, and seasonings and mix in large mixing bowl. Add shells to mixture and stir. Add onions, pepper, and pepperoni, and mix. Crumble feta cheese and stir. Add tomatoes and gently mix. Chill at least 4 hours, stirring occasionally. Serve on bed of lettuce with pita bread. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PECAN TASSIES

Heat oven to 350 degrees.
Crust:
Combine and cream together:
1 8-ounce package light cream cheese
⅓ cup reduced calorie margarine
Add and continue to beat:
1 cup all purpose flour
Add and work in with fingers:
¼ cup all purpose flour

Divide into 48 pieces the size of an acorn. Press dough into ungreased mini-muffin pans; set aside.

Filling:

In a medium mixing bowl, beat together:
4 large egg whites
½ cup dark brown sugar
1 cup brown sugar
4 tablespoons dry instant skim milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons reduced calorie margarine, melted
Stir in by hand:
1 cup chopped pecans

Fill the crust shells ⅔ full. Bake for 20 minutes or until filling is set. Cool for 15 minutes in pan. Remove from pan using a knife to go around the crust. Cool completely on a wire rack. SUBSTITUTIONS from Janet Oberholtzer

- Substitute honey for sugar in most recipes, but only use ½ the amount of honey (1 cup sugar = ½ cup honey) as honey is sweeter. Some recipes require some practice until the results are okay. You may need to add slightly more dry ingredients.
- Substitute plain non-fat yogurt for oil in some baking recipes. Use same amount or half yogurt and half oil.
- Substitute unsweetened applesauce for oil. In some baking recipes, again results will be different. Some recipes are improved with applesauce, others fail.
- Substitute plain, non-fat yogurt for sour cream.

What we eat and how it affects our chances of developing coronary heart disease has been the subject of continuous investigation by the American Heart Association for more than 25 years. They offer many recipes and ideas for making heart-healty substitutions in your eating habits.

Check with your county American Heart Association for more information on heart-healthy living. Here are a few of their ideas for substituting low-fat for high-fat ingredients.

MOCK SOUR CREAM: Blend equal parts of low-fat cottage cheese and low-fat yogurt in a food processor until smooth and thick.

YOGURT SOUR CREAM: Plain low-fat yogurt works well as a substitute for sour cream on such things as baked potatoes. To use yogurt as a sour cream suststitute in sauces, add 2 tablespoons of flour for each cup of yogurt so the sauce will thicken properly and not curdle.

EGG SUBSTITUTE: 1 dozen egg whites, ½ cup nonfat dry milk powder, 2 to 3 drops of yellow food coloring, if desired. Mix together in a covered jar and store in the refrigerator. Good for omelets, scrambled eggs, French toast, etc. To use for baking, add one teaspoon oil for each ¼ cup of mix is equal to 1 large egg.

MAYONNAISE: ½ cup regular mayonnaise, ½ cup plain low-fat yogurt. Combine and use as mayonnaise.

LEMON CHEESE TRIANGLES

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Line 8-inch square baking pan with aluminum foil with foil extending 2 inches on all four sides. Spray foil lining with non-stick spray and set aside.

Crust:

Sift together in a medium bowl:

1¼ cups all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons white granulated sugar
Sugar substitute for 2 tablespoons white granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt

Add and combine with pastry blender:

½cup reduced calorie margarine
½ teaspoon lemon zest, fresh

Add and work with hands until dough holds together:

1 tablespoon lemon juice, fresh

Press into bottom of prepared pan. Bake for 20 minutes.

Topping:

In a medium mixing bowl, combine and beat until well blended:

⅓ cup white granulated sugar
Sugar substitute for ⅓ cup white granulated sugar
1 large egg
2 large egg whites
2 8-ounces light cream cheese, softened
½ teaspoon fresh lemon zest
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

Pour over baked crust. Return to oven and bake 30 to 35 minutes more until set. Cool completely in pan before cutting. Cut into 2-inch squares, then cut each square in half diagonally. Makes 32 triangles. 1 triangle has 75 calories, 1 gram protein, 8 grams carbohydrates, 4 grams fat, 91 mg. sodium, and 16 mg cholesterol.

These are fantastic!

ANSWER — Mrs. Jonas Troyer, Wyoming, Del., requested recipes for both lemon filling and peanut butter filling used in doughnuts. Thanks to Anna Joyce Martin, East Earl, for sending a recipe.

ZUCCHINI COOKIES

Mix well:

2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup margarine
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 eggs

Add:

2 cups grated zucchini

Sift together:

4 cups flour
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon salt

Add dry ingredients to first mixture, chill 2 hours or overnight. Add chopped nuts, dates, or raisins. Drop by teaspoonful on lightly greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 minutes. These are delicious iced also.

Lemon Filling

Combine ¾ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch and ½ teaspoon salt in a saucepan. Add ¾ cup water, 2 slightly beaten egg yolks, and 3 tablespoons lemon juice. Cook and stir over medium heat until thick. Remove from heat; add 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel and 1 tablespoon butter.

ANSWER — Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Troina, East Hanover, NJ, would like a recipe for garlic pickles. Thanks Anna Joyce Martin, East Earl, for sending a recipe.

Garlic Dill Pickles

3 cups sugar
2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
2 tablespoons salt

Combine syrup and add to pickles. Slice pickles ¼ -inch in quart jars. Add to each jar:

½ teaspoon garlic powder or juice
½ teaspoon dill seed

Add syrup to pickles in jars and seal. Put in canner and bring to a full boil. Remove from canner. Best if let set 2 weeks before using.

ANSWER — A Millmont reader requested a recipe for vegetable lasagna. Thanks to Roberta Graham, Bolivar, for sending a recipe.

Vegetable Lasagna

1 10-ounce package frozen leaf spinach
1 head broccoli or use frozen
½ large carrot, grated
1 large carton ricotta cheese
Mozzarella cheese
4 eggs, beaten in ricotta
½ pound lasagna noodles, cooked and drained

Add cooked spinach, broccoli, and carrot to ricotta cheese and beaten eggs; mix well.

Line baking dish with vegetable mixture, a layer of noodles, and thinly sliced Mozzarella cheese. Continue layers until ingredients are used, end with ricotta cheese mixture and cover with Mozzarella cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for about 40 minutes, covered. Uncover and bake until top is browned. When serving, sprinkle McCormick garlic-bread mix over top or use Romano cheese, garlic, and parsley salt.

Contributor writes that she prefers to add the mozzarella cheese after the the casserole has been in the oven about 15 minutes; otherwise it becomes too brown. The garlic-bread mix sprinkled over the top really makes it tasty.

ANSWER — A Virginia reader requested the recipe for Lo-Cal chicken gravy sent in by Betty Light.

Lo Cal Chicken Gravy

1 packet Weight Watchers broth
1 cup water
1 tablespoon cornstarch

Put ¾ cup water and broth powder in small sauce pan; bring to a boil. Dissolve cornstarch in ¼ cup water, add to broth and bring to a boil until thickened and serve.

Contributor writes that she prefers a light gravy. If you prefer a thicker gravey, add 1 teaspoon more cornstarch.

CHOCOLATE APPLESAUCE CAKE

1¼ to 1½ cups sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
2 eggs
2 cups applesauce
2 cups whole wheat flour
2 to 3 tablespoons cocoa
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons baking soda

Cream sugar, butter, and eggs. Add remaining ingredients and blend well. Place in greased 8x10-baking pan and sprinkle the following mixture on top:

4 ounces chocolate chips
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup nuts, optional

Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes. Variation: omit topping. After removing cake from oven, sprinkle with ½ cup chocolate chips and place dabs of peanut butter on warm cake. When chocolate chips are melted, spread evenly.

I don't think this recipe is low fat or low sugar, but since it uses whole wheat flour, it may be a bit healthier.

ZUCCHINI-RAISIN COOKIES

1 cup butter softened
¾ cup honey, warmed
2 eggs
¼ cup sour cream
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
2 cups whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 cups rolled oats
2 cups raisins
1½ cups shredded zucchini

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. In large bowl, beat butter, honey, eggs, sour cream, cinnamon, and cloves.

Mix together flour, baking soda, and mix with liquid ingredients. Fold in oats, raisin, and zucchini. Drop by teaspoonful on cookie sheet. Bake until golden brown about 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 4 dozen.

Recipe is low-sugar, not low fat, but delicious.

The 3900 flex-wing... good news for today's farming.

It's time to take a new look at disk harrows. Especially the new Case International 3900 flex-wing disk harrow. It's the easiest-pulling, level-est-working disk harrow you can hook up to today's high-horsepower tractors.

Here's how the 3900 meets performance, reliability and durability challenges like nothing else in the field:

■ It offers superior gang strength from a massive welded tubular unibody frame — good for years of trouble-free operation.

■ A unique self-leveling spring-loaded hitch transfers weight between tractor and disk to maintain ground-hugging performance regardless of ridges and gullies. The 3900 stirs and mixes soil, chemicals and residue consistently — even at high operating speeds. This promotes uniform germination.

■ A new mechanical stop depth control eliminates variances common with master/slave systems. It's great for uniform incorporation.

■ Earth Metal® crimp-center blades give you sharp penetration and an easy pull that saves fuel. Plus extra durability that means fewer replacements.

Want more good news? Stop in today.

Check out the 3900. Also available with Cushioned Gangs® for rocky conditions or coil-tine mulchers for seedbed grooming.

Adults, Kids Work To Make 4-H Fair Profitable

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Last week, about 1,500 people admired the projects that kids learned to make in 4-H clubs scattered throughout Lancaster County.

Projects from cake decorating to rocket building were displayed at the Solanco Fairgrounds where judges examined the projects to decide if superior, first or second-place ribbons were achieved. Unlike other fairs, the 4-H fair does not give money prizes for the top placings, but that doesn't detract from the honor of winning a ribbon.

In keeping with the 4-H diversified program, the traditional livestock shows were intertwined with flower arranging and tye-dying projects.

The 4-H clubs in the county have about 4,000 members with 579 adult volunteer leaders and 89 teen volunteer leaders. Many of these volunteers attended the fair to help with the food stands, judging, or the entertainment.

Sausage sandwiches are "hot" at the Lancaster County 4-H Fair. Michelle Winters of Willow Street flips the charcoal patties while Karen Cassel of Penryn serves a pattie topped with cooked peppers and onions, a recipe developed by her mother.

Three-year-old Joellen Donough, daughter of Ed and LaRue Donough of Manheim, watches sheep competition at the Lancaster County 4-H Fair.

Allison, 5, and Andy, 3, watch the sheep show at the 4-H Fair, held at Solanco Fairgrounds. The children's parents are Marie and Chet Hughes, Lancaster Extension agent.

If the air conditioning were turned off in the Houston Astrodome, the entrance of warm humid air could cause it to rain in the stadium

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

As I've mentioned before we're building a log house. To look at the outside, you would think that it is finished, but the inside will take a few more months of work. Allen spends his days at the site with the workmen. He has brushed a preservative on all the outside logs. It is a job that I would not like — especially being high up on a ladder.

The large fireplace will be made of sandstone and I'm hoping it will not disintegrate the way that our walk-in limestone one has. the stone crumbles and needs to be swept up quite often. We'll use a hand-hewn beam from our old cornbarn and a board from my father's barn for the mantel.

We showed the building to our children when they visited and they were surprised at the size of the rooms. The house is 44-feet long and the full basement seems huge. My husband tells me that half of it will be his workshop. Will he be able to make a bookcase that we need?

I'm a bit concerned about the colors that I've selected for the kitchen cabinets and counter top. But, I'm hoping that I can live with them. We have not chosen our lights or rugs as yet and that will be another agonizing decision. However, we have more than enough outlets in each room as the regulations require six in the living room.

The house is built against a hill and there is no view from the back. However, this is not the case from the front as there is a spectacular sweeping view from the two bay windows of a large meadow and woods. A deer was seen there this spring and that is unusual for our area.

Women's Clothing Reflects Past

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — For Fall '91, fashion is drawing much of its inspiration by looking back to the '60s and '70s. Sixties-revisited looks, include pantsuits, A-line dresses, shifts, plastic and vinyl. Surfacing from the Seventies are patchworks, batiks, beads, scarf shirts and crochet. But, in true 1990's style, both decades are happily mixed and often garnish with space age touches. Newest looks include cat suits, spandex leggings and dresses that are nothing but a long jacket over opaque tights and lots of leg. For the young - and daring - there are plenty of Madonna-inspired, pop-icon looks in beaded corsetry that is printed, even feathered, for "outside" dressing.

Other '90's touches include Native American motifs, from fringe to Indian beading, on everything from jackets to cocktail dresses. Popular, too, are quilted motifs in vivid colors based on Amish patchwork patterns. Zippers, functional or strictly for looks, show up on center fronts, adorning wrists, securing pockets, or simply spiraling around the body. The season is full of color. Greens and blues, especially turquoise, are making it big, as is brown, fuschia, purple and all the tartan colors, Trans-seasonal fabrics have spawned trans-seasonal colors, with spring-like pastels, often paired with white, showing up for fall and winter.

For those with a more classic bent, plaids are prominent, whether fashioned into Scottish kilts, or sequin-adorned for evening dresses and suits. Daytime jackets are often punctuated by velvet collars and brass-band buttons. Suits sport unmatched, but tonally related, plaids for jacket and skirt. For the ultimate in plaid mixing, there are plaid-patched coats worn over coordinating plaid suits and plaid-patched jackets worn over just about everything.

Watch for skirts with hemlines that slant to one side and poncho skirts created from large rectangles that fall into handkerchiefs points. There's renewed interest in dirndls and pleated skirts. They look freshest in short versions, such as a flirty pleated chiffon with a matching wool jacket, or short, full skirts propped up with petticoats for evening dressing. The trench is reinvented over and over again, as as jacket, coat, or dress, in fabrics as diverse as sateen, gabardine, crepe and polyurethane. The bomber jacket is interpreted in even more fabrics than the trench. Consider wool, suede, bright vinyl, fur trimmed, quilted or sequinned.

Melinda Tercha, 34, of Kutztown R.D. 2, Berks County, displays her photos that have won prizes. The triplet lambs won the grand prize in 1989 from "Country" magazine, and the shot of Shana Boyd, 5, of Mertztown, was published in November on the cover of "Pennsylvania Farmer."

Berks Farm Wife Snaps Prize Photos

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

MERTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Melinda Tercha is one of those lucky people whose moments of serendipity at neighboring farms have paid off with a lot of attention.

Those moments are embodied in a few of her photographs that were published in farm magazines and one, nationwide, in "Country" magazine. The latter is known for its beautiful photographs of rural living.

In fact, Tercha, 34, of Kutztown R.D. 2, was the grand prize winner in 1989 of "Country" magazine's annual contest.

This was the photo subscribers liked the best of all the winners in four categories. For the grand prize, Tercha won a trip touring Midwestern farm country via a Mississipi riverboat.

She explained that she got the shot one day while visiting their owners, Ernest K. and Marion Angstadt of Kutztown. A few weeks after they were born, she grabbed her Pentax K-1000 camera and went with her father, John Greis, into the barn.

There was something about her father's voice that the lambs responded to, Tercha said. So the two decided on a plan — that Greis would snap his fingers to make the lambs look up.

When he spoke, they scampered over, she said.

"He snapped his fingers and they stopped and looked up." They were perfectly still, and Tercha began shooting.

"That was a once-in-a-lifetime moment," she said. "Then they rushed off."

"Country" magazine is using the photo on a wall plaque and notecards it offers for sale. Unfortunately, Tercha will not receive any proceeds from sales of these items. All rights to the photo belong to the publication, she said.

On her own, though, she has sold copies of it to people from all over the country who have written to her after seeing it in the magazine.

A snapshot of a scarecrow in a garden also won a place in an Agway photo competition and was published this year in "Agway Cooperator."

Another of her winning photos is that of 5-year-old Shana Boyd, daughter of William and Karen Boyd of Mertztown, in cowboy boots, sitting pensively atop a stack of feedbags.

The colors and texture of the shot suggest that it was done 50 years ago, or that it is a painting by Norman Rockwell.

Perhaps that's why "Pennsylvania Farmer" decided it deserved first place and to be the cover of their November 1990 issue.

Tercha submits her work to most any photo contest that's not too critical. A shot of a misty, wintry morning on a Utah farm she took during a Young Farmers convention in 1987 won a prize in the national grange photo competition, she said.

She never took any photography courses, she said. Her art instruction encompassed what was available at Kutztown Area High School from which she graduated in 1974. But that was a lot, as the high school was influenced by Kutztown University's prominence in art instruction.

Through the years, Tercha said, her artistic side has been expressed in ceramics, and she has done quilting, crocheting, knitting, and embroidery.

Taking photos was something Tercha grew into. She remembers grabbing the family camera when

We can help you prevent silo bottleneck

There's no need to slow down silo filling by using an inefficient blower. The New Holland Model 28 forage blower will put a halt to that. It's built to reduce plugging and save time. The Whirl-A-Feed® table breaks up heavy clumps and spins the crop into the blower at high speed. This means less drag on the fan and more efficient use of your tractor's horsepower.

Stop in soon and let us show you how the Model 28 can save silo-blowing time for you.

Watermelon: Any Way You Slice It

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — For all the people who believe watermelon is a fruit — surprise — they're wrong. The watermelon is a member of the cucubitacae or gourd family, so it's technically a vegetable and not a fruit.

That doesn't mean you can't serve it as a fruit. About 72 percent of people in a recent survey said that they use watermelon as a snack and 48 percent serve watermelon at a picnic. But the National Watermelon Promotion Board doesn't want you to limit your watermelon to those methods of serving. They have a whole lot of ideas. According to the Watermelon Board, once you learn to regard watermelons as kin to cucumbers and zucchinis — also cucurbits — the possible preparations grow wild with your imagination.

Already innovative chefs use watermelons often in salads and sauces. Some of these recipes are printed with this article, but before you try them, read about the watermelons that grow to a tremendous size from what appears to be an insignificant and inadequate root system.

It is believe that watermelon cultivation goes back at least 4,000 years to the Egyptians whose artistic remains have recorded them. In the 1850s, David Livingston, the famed missionary explorer, said that Africa was the place that watermelons originated. He found great tracts of watermelon growing wild in the Kalaharie Desert and the semi-tropical regions of Africa.

Although colonists brought watermelon to the U.S., early French explorers found Indians growing watermelons in the Missippi Valley.

According to Don Robinson, Eastern Lancaster County Adult Farmer program instructor, more people grow watermelons in the area than previously. While many watermelons were transported from the South to here, that is now changing during the watermelon season. Now many farmers grow them and sell them to supermarket buyers at the Leola Produce Auction and other outlets.

Watermelon plants are trailing annuals with stems as long as 15 feet and branched tendrils. Watermelon needs large quantities of space and nutrients to grow well.

The most popular varieties are the Sangria, an oblong melon with a nice rind color, and a solid, heavy melon; the Mirage, similar to the Sangria, has a sandier grainier flesh that some people prefer; and the old-time favorite Crimson Sweet is used as a standard with which new varieties are compared.

In keeping with smaller-sized households, the smaller watermelons are popular today. The Yellow Babies with their yellow flesh are a novelty melon that add variety to the menu.

Watermelons are also popular because they are a nearly perfect food for dieters. 100 grams of melon has only 30 calories. They are low in sodium and provide a good source of vitamins A and C, potassium, and other minerals.

Although three out of four homes serve sliced watermelon, those families that do not serve it say it's because watermelon is too messy and seedy. For this reason the seedless varieties are really growing in popularity. Although the seedless varieties taste great, they are a bit more expensive since they are much harder to germinate.

The greenhouse is the best place to germinate these melons, which adds extra cost and time for the required transplanting.

But new ideas for cutting the costs for growing the seedless varieties are surfacing. This year, a local grower tried something different. To create a mini-greenhouse effect, he laid black plastic mulch on the ground, cut holes in the plastic to plant the seeds, put an old tire on top of the hole and covered it with the black plastic. This created heat, which the seeds need to germinate, and created a mini-greenhouse effect by allowing him to plant early.

Watermelons do meet some obstacles while growing. The melons need to be sprayed to protect them from spider mites. Robinson suggests Kelthane.

Melons are also susceptible to mildew disease. Regular sprays control the mildew disease that is more prevalent in larger fields.

Growers seldom have a problem with watermelons splitting. If the melons do split, it is a result of heavy rains that produce too rapid growth.

Generally, the prime harvest for melons is from July 10 to Labor Day. This year, the weather induced earlier melons.

Prices vary depending upon the watermelon crop in the South. Last year, area watermelons brought high prices because the South didn't have much rain. This year drought in Pennsylvania has produced significantly smaller watermelons, although the flavor is good.

Customers often ask the age on question: How can I tell if a watermelon is ripe? There are no easy answers for the store customer, but for the grower, several methods are reliable.

An instrument called a refractometer tests the sweetness of melons. It costs about $100, too steep for individual use, but researchers, growers and buyers for grocery stores use them. The refractometer measures the percentage of sucrose, which enables the grower to determine when the melon is ready to pick. To test the sucrose, the melon must be cut and a piece of the flesh placed on the glass of the refractometer. Within a few seconds, the percentage can be read similar to a thermomenter Recently Robinson tested melons at the Leola Produce Auction in Leola. The melons registered between a 10 to 12 reading, which is good. An excellent reading may go as high as 14, although that is unusual.

Don Robinson checks the tendrils on the watermelon to see if it is ripe.

Don Robinson tests the sweetness of the watermelons with a refractometer.

Generally, growers check the ripeness of melons by examining the tendrils on the vine. If the tendrils next to the watermelon are dead, that indicates the melon is ripe. The underbelly, where the melon lies against the soil, of the melon also changes from a light green color to yellow to white when ready to pick.

Watermelon sugar content does not increase after it comes off the vine. Melons are like books — you can't always tell the content by the cover. When you buy a watermelon, look for symmetric shape and a velvety bloom — a dull, rather than shiny surface.

Thumping will get you nowhere. "Most people really don't know what they are thumping for," Robinson said. "Some think it should sound hollow, but that is how an unripe melon sounds."

Many consumers believe the only sure way to tell if a watermelon is ripe is to cut it. It's often worth the extra cost to make sure they have top quality. If a watermelon is fully mature, seeds are usually dark brown or black. Avoid white heart — a hard white streak running lengthwise through a watermelon.

After melons are picked, they should be kept at room temperature, as chilling affects flavor and color. They are best consumed within a few days of purchase.

If you eager to give watermelon a new twist, here are some recipes worth trying.

MELON SEEDS

Melon seeds are edible. Dry them, put them in a fry pan, and pour some salted water over them. Stir over the heat until the water has evaporated. Eat them for a snack.

WATERMELON ONION FRESCO SALAD

4 cups cubed watermelon
½ cup thinly sliced and quartered sweet onions
2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
¼ cup raspberry and blueberry vinegar
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
Lettuce leaves

If seeds are present, remove from the watermelon; toss watermelon, onions, and basil until well-mixed. Pour vinegar over watermelon mixture; toss gently to combine mixture. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve on lettuce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

WATERMELON FIRE AND ICE SALSA

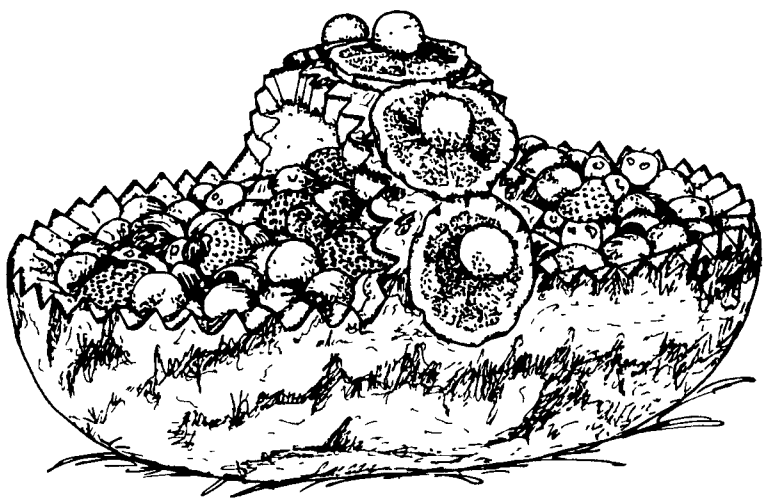
3 cups chopped watermelon
½ cup green peppers
2 tablespoons lime juice
1 tablespoon chopped cilantro
1 tablespoon green onion
1 to 2 tablespoons Jalapeno peppers
½ tablespoon garlic salt

Combine all ingredients in melon shell; mix well. Cover and refrigerate at least 1 hour. Makes 3 cups. Serve with chips or on sliced oranges or cheese-filled manicotti.

FROZEN WATERMELON

Melon can be frozen to last all year long. Cut firm melon into balls or cubes and place them in freezer containers. For each pint, mix ½ cup sugar with 1½ cups water and heat until the sugar dissolves. Chill this mixture, then pour over the melon pieces and freeze.

If you grow or sell watermelons, the National Watermelon Promotion Board has tips to help increase your profits. Send for information: NWPB, P.O. Box 140065, Orlando, FL 32814-0065 or call (407) 895-5100.



Make a watermelon fruit salad boat. Cut the rind into a natural fruit bowl, and fill with watermelon balls and slices of other melons, pineapple, grapes, and apples. A book "Melon Garnishing" is available from International Culinary Consultants, P.O. Box 2202, Elberon Station, Long Branch, N.J. 07740. The book has more than 30 different sculptures to carve out of melons. Check with them about the price.

Depite its hardy appearance, watermelon is actually quite fragile and susceptible to breakage, bruising, and temperature extremes. That's why growers handpick watermelon. This picture was taken at the Leola Produce Auction where many Lancaster County growers bring wagonloads of the melons to sell to wholesale buyers.

Prize Photos

she was a teen-ager and shooting photos. She never stopped.

When she takes a roll of film with her Pentax, which she calls her "third arm," she's not always sure how they will come out.

"I don't think about it," she said about her methods of committing something to film. She said she is picky about what's in her shots and will move things out of the way in order to get a good shot.

Most of her work hangs on her walls in the ranch house she shares with her husband, Robert J., who works on his father Stanley's neighboring 500-acre corn and grain farm.

She doesn't sell the stacks of matted prints she has tucked away in a closet in a spare bedroom, but she does submit them to contests.

Recently, she said, she has taken old photos of herself and her family and enlarged them, just for her own pleasure.

Her favorite subjects are animals and children, both of which also happen to be the most difficult to shoot.

Md. Grain Producers Vote Yes To Checkoff

FREDERICK, MD — Maryland grain producers supported the grain checkoff referendum held recently. More than 75 percent of the eligible grain producers who voted said "yes" to the all grain checkoff.

"We are extremely pleased with the results," said President of the Maryland Grain Producers, Lawrence Meeks. "Maryland farmers have shown that they are good at producing a quality grain crop, now we can go out and market our products."

An assessment of one half of one percent (½ percent) of the net value of grain will be collected at the first point of sale starting October 1. The funds will be collected by the Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB), which is made up of 17 members. The 13 voting members on the board will be grain farmers from throughout the state to be elected at the annual Grain Producers Association meeting. The remaining four nonvoting members will represent government and agribusiness.

The funds will be used to expand grain markets through research, education and promotion. "Many new and unconventional uses for grain, such as road de-icers, building materials and biodegradable products, have the potential to increase the demand for grain," said Drew Stabler, Chairman of the Checkoff Committee, "We just need to work with industry and universities to help sponsor research and promote these new products."

MGPUB will be meeting at the Maryland Department of Agriculture to set their agenda for the next few busy months. "We are hoping to design our reporting system to be the same as the federal Soybean Checkoff which will be going into effect at the same time," said Lynne Hoot, who works for the Maryland Grain producers. "We want to make it as simple as possible for grain dealers and producers."

Any producer who does not wish to participate in the checkoff will be able to request a refund from the MGPUB. "For now it is all systems go, and we are very enthusiastic," said Meeks.

For further information, contact Lynne Hoot, (301) 956-5771.

Farm Chores Part Of Top Athlete's Training

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

PARKSBURG (Chester Co.) — It's no surprise that the best female athlete in Lancaster County comes from the farm. Hard work, perseverance, endurance are qualities that go hand in hand with farm work and athletic prowess.

Actually 18-year-old Melissa Hostetter lives in Chester County, but won the Lancaster County honor because she attended school in Lancaster County. It was at Lancaster Mennonite High that Missy scored more than 1,000 basketball career points and hit some breathtaking home runs.

Being named the county newspaper Intell's Athlete of the Year was something Missy dreamed about in ninth grade, but she did not think she could attain it. She thought the winner had to play three sports. Because she had farm chores, she was only allowed to take off for two sports. So, the honor is a great delight to Missy who throws plenty of hay bales on her parents farm located four miles from the Lancaster-Chester Counties line.

The youngest child of Donald and Dorcas Hostetter, Melissa credits her parents and four siblings with practicing with her. Her brother, Jay, also a star sports person, especially spent lots of time shooting basketball and teaching Missy moves she imitated on the basketball court.

The lanky teenager prefers to play point guard because it gives her more feel for the floor.

The biggest highlight of Missy's sports life.was winning the Section Three championship. "We were undefeated except for the team we were playing against. We had lost one and they had lost one to us. The final game, we won by six points," Missy said.

In softball, Missy's team went to district where Missy's team was losing until the fourth inning. With two people on base, Missy hit a home run, which helped the team to score nine runs in one inning.

Melissa Hostetter, named top athlete in Lancaster County, finds time to care for one of the puppies she raises on the farm.

The Hostetter family lives along Route 30, 4 miles east of the Lancaster County line. Pictured are Donald and Dorcas Hostetter with daughter Melissa and grandsons Jeff, left, and Brian, 4. The grandsons are the sons of Bev and Steve Landis who farm in Indiana.

Missy prefers tough competition. "I hit better against better pitchers," she said. "I think confidence."

Confidence is the key to success Missy believes. "I self think, "I can do this, give it 110 percent, and have fun."

There were a few games where Missy's confident attitude didn't reap victory, but for the most part, success has trailed her throughout her playing years.

"Other players have a lot to do with it," Missy said. "We worked good together as a team. We didn't have one individual wanting to do it all."

Missy also made the all-state team at the end of the season, but couldn't play in it because she had already played in two all-star games for Lancaster-Lebanon and the Roundball Classic in Harrisburg. USA Today also named her the All-State Basketball player and she plays with the Junior Olympics.

At 5'9", Missy said that she was one of the shorter members on the Junior Olympic team, something unusual for her. According to Missy, it was a real thrill to play with them because they are better players.

With all her talent, Missy, who graduated from LMH in the spring, had opportunities for college scholarships. She turned them down because she never enjoyed school work.

"I'd rather work outside on the farm," she said.

The Hostetters farm has 100 acres, but they rent 250 additional ones where they raise corn, wheat, beans, alfalfa, and hay. In years past, the Maplebound Farm was well known for its show cattle. At one time, six of the family showed, but three years ago after most of the children had married and moved away and Hostetter suffered some health problems, he sold the herd. Now he concentrates on field work and on cattle dealing.

The Hostetters also raise 16 Vietnamese pot belly pigs, two

Top 10 Chosen From 60 Fashion Revue Finalists

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Special honors went to 10 contestants at the annual State 4-H Fashion Revue, held July 30 at Eisenhower Auditorium on Penn State's University Park Campus.

Sixty regional finalists modeled outfits constructed as part of a 4-H project. Judges based honors selections on construction skill, garment fit, appropriateness and modeling poise. The Fashion Revue was part of Penn State 4-H Achievement Days, held from July 29-31.

Abbey Remaley, Snyder County, modeled a black and white tea-length formal gown. She was selected to represent Pennsylvania in the National 4-H Fashion Revue, held at the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Alisa Mizikar, Westmoreland County, modeled an ivory satin and lace tea-length formal dress. Tracy Ruby from Westmoreland County modeled a blue linen summer dress and white linen jacket.

Myranda Caputo, Northampton County, modeled a two-piece grey suede skirt and jacket with a fuchsia camisole and floral lace blouse. Stephanie Heimer, Northampton County, modeled a floral dress with a matching child's dress.

Suzanne Miller, Lancaster County modeled a blue and green plaid wool jacket, navy blue skirt and creme blouse.

Jacki Sterner, Adams County, modeled a grey and grey plaid two-piece wool suit and off-white blouse.

emus, and several dogs.

"Our family are dog lovers," Missy said. "We keep two schnauzers in the house and raise two labs and two dalmatians outside."

Missy also feeds dogs at the Forest Ridge Stables and Kennels. In the fall, she will begin waitressing at Country Gardens, a local restaurant, but as long as she lives on the farm, she will be helping out with farm chores.

Make Nursing Home Visit Comfortable

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.)— Visits with relatives and friends in nursing homes are sometimes strained for many reasons. Penn State Cooperative Extension can show you how to become more comfortable when you visit others, give you ideas for visiting that will benefit you and the resident you care about, and teach you how to make these visits enjoyable memories.

A program designed for persons with relatives or friends in nursing homes or extended care situations or persons who do visitation for their church or other organization is being held at the Montgomery County Geriatric Center, Black Rock Road in Royersford on Wednesday, September 4 at 7:00 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Chapel and the public is invited to attend. All participants will receive a handbook full of ideas for visiting. The meeting is free of charge and no registration is required. For more information, contact Nancy Stevens at 489-4315.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Local Teen Chosen 4-H Ambassador

Carrie Bryant, daughter of William and Debra Bryant, Calkins, participated in the third annual Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference June 24-26 at the University Park Campus.

Penn State 4-H ambassadors promote the 4-H program and the land-grant university system and are available to speak to groups about the connection between Penn State, cooperative extension, and 4-H.

The conference featured workshops on interviewing skills, public speaking, and marketing. Participants also learned how to answer commonly asked questions about 4-H.

Guest speakers at the reception at Penn State's Nittany Lion Inn included William W. Asbury, Penn State vice president and honorary chairman of the Penn State 4-H Ambassador Conference; Richard E. Grubb, senior vice president and dean for the commonwealth education system; and Dr. Wayne A. Schutjer, associate dean for cooperative extension in the College of Agriculture.

The conference was sponsored by the Penn State 4-H and youth development program in the agricultural and extension education department, the office of the vice president for student services, and Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H.

Pennsylvania Friends of 4-H provides partial scholarchips for 4-H'ers to attend the conference. About 100 youth from across the state attended the three-day event. Bryant was selected for the State 4-H Ambassador Team based on her public speaking skills.

If your group would be interested in learning more about youth development through 4-H, please contact Wayne County Cooperative Extension, Wayne County Courthouse, Honesdale, PA 18431, (717) 253-5970 ext. 239.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Cedar Crest FFA Participates in Land Judging

The Lebanon County FFA land judging contest was recently held in the ELCO School District.

Seventy contestants from county chapters of the FFA participated.

The contestants' scoring took into consideration aspects of the land such as, slope, stoniness, texture, depth of soil, and internal drainage.

The students also had to identify conservation practices to be used on the land and hazards in special uses such as home building and ponds.

The Cedar Crest team placed third. Tim Eimenheiser, from the Soil Conservation Service, was the judge for the contest.

Owen J. Roberts FFA Banquet

More than 190 members, parents, faculty, district administrators, and guests celebrated the 54th annual Owen J. Roberts FFA banquet.

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of the Honorary Chapter Degree given to an outstanding person in our community. This year, Dr. James F. Thompson, Jr., a local veterinarian, was honored by the FFA for his help, support, advice and expertise with 4-H and FFA members in the community. He was also cited for his outstanding contributions to the local farmers who he has served over many years.

After opening remarks by Dr. Terrance L. Furin, Owen J. Roberts School District superintendent and William Faulkner, high school principal, the FFA students presented their own slide show, entitled "FFA - Leading The Challenge." The slides depicted every students' out of school Ag project as well as an overview of the education activities in school.

Chester W. Raught, vo-ag teacher and FFA advisor, presented the student awards. Among those students receiving awards was Ray Heston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heston, Chester Springs, who won a cash award for the cover design of the banquet program.

Cathy Horvat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Horvat, 881 E. Schuylkill Road and George Inhof, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Inhof, RD 1, Spring City were cited for being recipients of the Pennsylvania State Keystone Award.

Cathy, who is serving this year as vice president of the OJR FFA was also awarded a trophy for her working-for-experience project ast Manatawny Manor. Cathy was also awarded the Neal R. Burtner Trophy as one of the outstanding ag seniors.

George, who is serving his chapter this year as president, won the corn trophy for his production or 161 bushels per acre. He also won a working-for-experience trophy for his project - working on his family's dairy farm. His project book for this project won a gold medal at the state contest held at Penn State University and the book also won the Keystone Farm Credit award for being the most outstanding project book in Chester County.

Inhof also was presented with the Chapter Star Farmer Award.

Among the other award winners were Jarrod Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Scarinci, Cherry Hill Lane. Jarrod, who was named Chapter Star Greenhand, won a working-for-experience trophy (working at Lundale Farm) and also won a dairy trophy for his outstanding record this past summer in showing his Holstein dairy heifers.

Ted Horvath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Horvath, Chester Springs was awarded the horse trophy.

Tami Rouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kozak, Harvey Lane, Pottstown, won the Outstanding Service Award for the second year, and Brian Lupold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Biddle, RD, Spring City, won a working-for-experience trophy.

Stacey Graves and Dawn Patterson, of Westield, are greeted in Washington D.C. by Ben Nessmith, president of the national southern region FFA. Graves and Patterson recently attended the week-long National FFA Washington Conference program.

Plans For 64th National FFA Convention Under Way

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — More than 24,000 FFA members, advisors, supporters and guests are expected to attend the 64th National FFA Convention Nov. 14-16 in Kansas City, Mo. The meeting is the world's largest annual youth organization gathering.

The national convention is the culmination of a year's activities for FFA members. Delegates representing 382,643 members will discuss topics affecting the national organization and hear educational and motivational speakers. Exceptional FFA members and supporters will be recognized for their achievements and commitment to the organization.

Business and industry supporters of the FFA are represented at the convention through the National FFA Foundation. The 1991 Sponsors' Board Chairman Robert Reynolds, vice president and general manager, crop protection products division, Monsanto Agricultural Company, stresses the educational role of the FFA in meeting the needs of the industry.

"Students have to have a completely different set of skills than we've developed in the past," Reynolds said. "They have to understand how to deal with diversity. Diverse opinions, diverse cultures and diverse educational backgrounds. They have to be able to communicate well and they have to have more integrative skills to be successful. That's what agricultural education has to provide to us for the future."

The National FFA Organization will recognize outstanding members in 29 agricultural proficiency areas and in 11 judging and skill competitions. Also to be honored are 1,086 members who will receive the American FFA Degree, the organization's highest degree. Two of the American FFA Degree recipients will be named Star Farmer and Star Agribusinessman of America.

In addition, chapters will receive recognition for excellence in safety, community development and chapter activities. Winners in the Computers in Agriculture, Agriscience Teacher of the Year and Agriscience Student Recognition award programs will be named.

A new agricultural sales contest will also be inaugurated at the convention this year to encourage development of sales and marketing skills.

Mark Timm, national FFA president said, "The new contests and awards at the convention indicate how much our industry has changed. Today, young people in agriculture can further their interests in computers, agriscience and agrimarketing. By seeing the positive rewards of hard work and initiative, members are motivated to excel in agriculture and the FFA."

"Today's agriculture is a dynamic field in which to be involved," said Larry D. Case, national FFA advisor. "By interacting with people who are involved in the many different facets of the agricultural industry, our members realize the remarkably broad scope of opportunities which are open to them. This allows them to return home and evaluate what they've done up to now, and to look ahead to a promising future."

ident, Howe, Texas; Matt Lohr, eastern region vice president, Broadway, Va.; and Ben Nessmith, southern region vice president, Statesboro, Ga. The officers were selected on the merit of their outstanding agricultural leadership ability.

"FFA — Leadership for a Growing Planet" is the theme for the 1991 convention. The theme reflects young people's concern for their environment and the willingness of FFA members to tackle today's problems to ensure a better future for themselves and others.

The National FFA Alumni Convention and the National FFA Agricultural Career Show are scheduled in conjunction with the FFA convention. They are held in H. Roe Bartle Hall, located adjacent to the Municipal Auditorium.

National FFA Organization Announces Star Farmers

ALEXANDRA, Va. — Four of the FFA's best agricultural producers have been named regional Star Farmers of America for 1991.

David DeLoach, 22, Eatonton, Ga.; Blake Johnson, 21, Holdrege, Neb.; Todd Schmitmeyer, 19, Versailles, Ohio; and Kent Erickson, 21, Ferndale, Wash., were chosen as the best of 1,086 American FFA Degree candidates. One of them will be awarded the FFA's highest honor, Star Farmer of America, during the 64th National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 14-16.

Selection of the regional stars is based on the management, quality and growth of their production agriculture enterprises. The candidates' leadership and FFA activities are also considered by the national, state and local FFA officials who select the regional winners.

Each regional winner will receive $1,000 from the National FFA Foundation. The national winner is awarded an additional $1,000. In addition to the cash awards, the four regional winners will participate in the FFA Stars International Experience Tour of Europe, as will the four regional star agribusinessmen. The tour is sponsored by Federal Crop Insurance Corporation of Washington, D.C., as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

The American FFA Degree recognition program is sponsored by the American Cyanamid Company, Agricultural Division, of Wayne, N.J.; Case IH of Racine, Wis.; Farm Credit System of Washington, D.C.; Na-Churs Plant Food Company of Marion, Ohio; and Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. of Des Moines, Iowa, as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc.

FFA Selects Schmitmeyer As Eastern Region Star Farmer

Todd Schmitmeyer isn't afraid to try something new. Although it would have been easy to follow his family's lead and enter the dairy industry, Schmitmeyer instead developed his own swine operation. His success is recognized by the National FFA Organization, and he has been selected as the Eastern Region Star Farmer of America for 1991.

While in high school agriculture Schmitmeyer, 19, Versailles, Ohio, began his Supervised Agricultural Experience (SAE) program with 18 breeding swine, and 83 market hogs. His program has expanded ten fold. Schmitmeyer now owns 68 breeding swine and 801 market hogs.

"When I first started, I had to use dirt lots and old dairy pens," Schmitmeyer said. "That wasn't efficient, so I revamped an old barn to serve as a gestation barn and feeding facilities."

Samuel Custer, Schmitmeyer's FFA advisor, has witnessed his dedication to the swine industry. "He started with few facilities, and worked to establish his operation," Custer said. "This is a tremendous accomplishment, especially when you consider that every hog on the farm belongs to Todd. The rest of the family is not involved with the swine industry."

Schmitmeyer plans to expand his operation even further by building a confinement farrowing house this summer.

"The new facilities, which will be completed in September, will allow me to expand to more than 100 sows," Schmitmeyer said.

Schmitmeyer's development of his SAE has been recognized on the national level. He was selected as the National FFA Swine Proficiency award winner in 1990. The award package included a ten-day travel seminar to Europe to study international agricultural practices.

"Going to Europe allowed me to compare production techniques," Schmitmeyer said. "We have about the same facilities, but they have a definite genetic advantage with the breeds of swine they have available over there."

Schmitmeyer is a member of the Versailles FFA Chapter. He is the son of Ted and Connie Schmitmeyer.

ADJUST FORAGE FEEDING FOR DAIRY CATTLE NOW

Walt Bumgarner
Wayne Co.
Extension Agent

The rates and types of forage for dairy cattle need adjustment on many farms because of the drought conditions in some areas of Pennsylvania.

However, numerous farmers, because of the low milk prices, are in a bind in terms of cash flow and cash reserves. Dairy farmers need to consider the adjustments that best meet their situation. Dr. Richard Adams, dairy nutritionist at Penn State, offers the following advice.

Dairy farmers who are short of forage now, or expect a considerable shortfall if the drought continues persist, should consider reducing forage feeding levels to extend supplies. Forage often is difficult and expensive to purchase in quantity when a drought is widespread.

A bare minimum level of forage intake for producing cows is about 1.4 to 1.6 pounds of forage dry matter per cwt of bodyweight. But, such a low level should not be used for more than three to four months. Longer would increase the risk of problems with animal health and milk fat test depression.

A level of 1.7 to 1.9 pounds of forage dry matter per cwt of bodyweight is more reasonable early in a drought or for a relatively long period. These higher practical minimums also apply to using excellent and good forage in order to meet fiber needs.

Farmers who are not short of forage and need to minimize cash outlay for concentrate feeding should consider maximizing forage intake. Maximum forage intake will depend primarily on forage quality and energy or TDN content. A practical maximum intake on excellent forage (average of 66 percent TDN or higher) is about 2.5 to 2.7 pounds of forage dry matter per cwt of bodyweight. Somewhat lower intake may be expected when corn silage provides most of the forage dry matter.

On good forage with 61-65 percent TDN on a dry matter basis, a reasonable maximum is 2.0 to 2.3. Suggested maximum intakes for fair forage with 55-60 percent TDN and poor with 54 percent TDN or lower are 1.7 to 2.0 and 1.5 to 1.7 pounds of forage dry matter per cwt of bodyweight daily, respectively.

Heavier use of high-protein forage for milk cows could reduce purchased feed costs on numerous farms. Use lower protein forages for young stock and dry cows, which need less protein in the diet.

Dairymen should be working closely with reputable nutritional consultants to establish new forage rations and to properly balance the entire diet using least-cost ration formulation. For further information on feeding during drought conditions, contact your local extension office.

COBA/Select Sires Pays Back Thousands

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Larry Neel, general manager of COBA/Select Sires, Inc. announced that the COBA board of directors has approved payment of patronage refunds to COBA members.

Later this month, a total of $377,596 will be retumed to COBA members in proportion to the amount of business they have done with the cooperative.

This total figure represents 30 percent of the member margin form 1990 and the retained saving from 1985. In an effort to assist farmers with their cash flow, this 30 percent cash portion is 10 percent more than is required by law.

The retained savings from 1985 is being revolved tax-free, because the taxes were paid at the time of allocation. COBA/Select Sires, Inc. members can expect to receive their checks later this month.

SELECTING, PREPARING, AND FREEZING POULTRY, EGGS, AND GAME BIRDS

Thomas S. Dimick
Sr. Extension Aide
Dept. of Food Science

Poultry can be frozen in various forms: whole, cut-up, cooked, or prepared as a casserole.

In selecting poultry to purchase, it is important to look for a product that is fresh, well fleshed, and unblemished.

Home-slaughtered poultry and game birds should be defeathered, eviscerated, rinsed several times in cold water, and chilled promptly in ice water until the meat temperature is below 40 degrees F.

Chilled carcasses may be left whole or cut-up for freezing. If frozen whole, tie the legs together and press the wings close to the body. Packaged giblets may be inserted into the body cavity. However, remove them before cooking thawed poultry.

To package a whole bird, insert the carcass, neck first, into a freezer bag. Tightly squeeze the package, bottom to top, to remove excess air, then twist the neck of the bag several times before sealing it with a twist tie, tape, or string.

Never stuff whole carcasses before freezing. This practice adds more bacteria and increases the time needed to freeze and thaw the carcass.

Halves and pieces may be wrapped individually or in meal-size packages. When packaging more than one piece at a time, pack the pieces together tightly in a freezer bag or paper. Thawing time will be lessened if freezer film is placed between pieces to permit easy separation.

Broilers, young hens, and roasters may turn dark around the bones when frozen. This is normal, harmless, and does not affect the flavor or nutritive value.

Specific instructions for freezing poultry include:

• Whole birds — Tie legs together and press wings to body. Pad wings and leg tips with foil and insert neck first in a freezer bag. Remove air and seal. Do not stuff before freezing. Thaw bird in refrigerator 1 day for each 5 pounds. Cook immediately after thawing.

Halves and quarters — Split carcass down the back and quarter if desired. Wrap halves or quarters with freezer film or paper, package as for whole birds, and seal. Thaw in refrigerator and cook immediately after thawing.

• Pieces — Cut chilled carcass into desired pieces. Tray freeze one layer deep or place freezer film between each piece and package entire cut-up bird together, or place like parts together in a single package. Thaw in a refrigerator. If floured or crumb-coated before freezing, cook without thawing and allow extra time for cooking.

• Giblets and livers — Clean and wash thoroughly. Tray freeze if desired and package in a freezer bag. Thaw unopened package in refrigerator. Cook as soon as possible.

• Poultry, cooked — Cook as desired. Debone if appropriate. Package pieces individually, freeze, then store in a freezer bag.

When preparing eggs for freezing, select fresh, clean eggs. Remove from shells and freeze whole, or separate into yolks and whites. Salt (eggs for use in scrambled eggs, add 1 teaspoon salt per cup) or sugar (eggs for use in cakes or desserts, add 1 tablespoon sugar per cup) should be added to minimize gumminess. Do not freeze uncooked eggs in shells or hard-cooked eggs. Whole eggs expand upon freezing and crack the shell. Hard-cooked egg whites become rubbery when thawed.

Freeze eggs in the amounts you will use at one time. For those who use small quantities of eggs at one time, it may be convenient to freeze eggs 2 to 3 hours in ice cub trays and then package in a freezer bag. Each cube will contain about 1 whole egg, 3 egg yolks, or 2 egg whites.

For bulk quantities, freeze whole liquid eggs, yolks, or whites in rigid freezer containers.

Looking For Big Trees

The Montour County Conservation District and Wyoming District Bureau of Forestry are sponsoring the "1991 BIG TREE CONTEST" in Montour County.

Prizes will be a $50 savings bond in each of the categories of biggest coniferous, biggest deciduous and the oldest tree in the county.

To receive an entry form and a list of rules and instructions contact the Montour County Conservation District, 112-C Woodbine Lane, Danville; or telephone 271-1140. Entry deadline is October 11, 1991. Winners will be notified by October 31.

Winners Named At Lancaster 4-H Beef Show

Jason Stoltzfus won the Intell calf for his showing efforts.

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Only 18 market steers were entered in the Lancaster County 4-H steer show last week, but Judge Ralph Hoerchler, Lebanon County, said the quality ran deep.

Casey High came away with the grand champion with his light heavyweight entry and later won the $300 prize given by Lancaster Farming as the reserve champion showman in the Intell showmanship contest.

Travis Donough had the reserve champion from the heavyweight class and Jason Stoltzfus won the Intell calf for his championship showmanship.

Swackhamer Receives Outstanding Education Award

BALTIMORE, Md. — Gene Swackhamer, president of the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore, recently received an award for outstanding achievement in vocational education from the National Council on Vocational Education.

The award was a recognition of the partnership the Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore and its affiliated associations have with the educational community through the agricultural education programs in the Maryland public schools.

The bank has provided numerous types of services to these programs, their teachers, students, and the associated student organization, the Future Farmers of America.

The Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore has provided financial resources for many activities that have significantly improved the quality of the educational experiences that Maryland students in agricultural education courses receive. Bank sponsorship included the Agribusiness Management Contest, the Junior Prepared Public Speaking Contest, and the Maryland FFA Convention.

Upon notification of the award, Swackhamer said, "We are both pleased and honored to receive this award. I anticipate and look forward to our continued participation and support of the many educational programs and services which strengthen and promote agricultural education."

Polled Hereford Youth Celebrate National Junior Show

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The spirit of youth and Polled Herefords was celebrated in Lone Star style when American Junior Polled Hereford Association (AJPHA) members and their families converged in Abilene, Texas, for the 18th Junior National Polled Hereford Show and Forum recently.

Hosted by the Texas junior and senior Polled Hereford associations and the Texas Poll-ettes, the red carpet was rolled out for 1,200 Polled Hereford enthusiasts, including 250 juniors from 27 states who exhibited 333 head of Polled Herefords.

Incorporated into the five-day "Lone Star Extravaganza" were numerous leadership activities and contests that provided educational opportunities for all participants.

Show Results

Selected as the grand champions of the 293-head heifer show were females sired by Trustmark. Grand champion of the open show was Canadian-bred WLB 62U Ldy Pleasure 35Z, an early junior yearling shown by 16-year-old Stephanie Lorenzen, Chrisman, Ill. The show's grand champion bred-and-owned heifer was Escapade, an early summer yearling owned by 19-year-old Susan Griffiths, Kearney, Mo.

The Junior National's reserve grand champion honors went to two early summer yearlings. Named the open show's reserve grand champion was BSF Special Lady 21Z, a 5E SF 4WF 38 Special daughter, owned by 16- year-old Carlynn Wolfe, Wallowa, Ore. Tammy Riffel, 18, won the reserve grand champion bred-and-owned honor on PVF Rocknroll Angel 059, a daughter of Trustmark.

Champion in the 16-head cow-calf show was Will-Via Nascar Queen, a 2-year-old RH Formula One daughter, and her February heifer calf sired by DR P183 Rebel 926Y. The pair is owned by 12-year-old Steven Soules, Skiatook, Okla. Nine-year-old Precious Atlas, Grandview, Texas, exhibited the reserve champion cow-calf pair that included 2-year-old Atlas Ms Julie lOY, sired by Kilmorlie 12P Steel 359S, and her January heifer calf by Beau Donald Rival.

Junior members from Nebraska and Minnesota took home the highest awards from the 24-head steer show. Nine-year-old Darbie McMahon, Blue Hill, Neb., owned the champion steer, a 1,240 lb. BB MSU 15S Wisdom son. Tony Heins, 18, of Hewitt, Minn., exhibited the reserve champion steer, an 1,150 lb. son of JKS High Summit.

Joel Birdwell of Eletcher, Okla., was recognized with the Joe and Walter Lewis Memorial Award, the Junior National's recognition award for overall achievment in team and individual endeavors.

The show's premier exhibitor was Tammy Riffel. Riffel also shared premier breeder honors with fellow Kansan, Kristi Moser of Effingham. ACE Land & Cattle Co., Skiatook, Okla., was the senior premier breeder for the second consecutive year.

The first place state group of five heifers was shown by the junior members from Oklahoma. Officials for the two-day national junior show were lead judge Kevin Jensen, Courtland, Kan., and associate judge Dick DeMuth, Senatobia, Miss.

Junior Merit Award

Along with the Polled Hereford show, numerous contests and awards highlighted the 18th Junior National.

The Junior Merit Award, the AJPHA's most prestigious honor that recognizes achievement in beef cattle production, leadership and citizenship, went to Stacy Tankersley, Elkins, Ark.

The award's first runner-up was Rick Aden, St. Joseph, Ill., and second runner-up was Mary Shirley of Seneca, S.C.

Junior Council Elections

Also a feature of the Junior National week was the election of Junior Council officers and six new board members. The 12-member Junior Council is the governing body of the AJPHA and its 37 state junior associations.

Guiding the activities of the AJPHA in 1991-92 will be Chairman Tony Heins. Joining him on the officer team are Vice Chairman Dustin Lewis, Grass Valley, Calif., Secretary Katy Beckett, Birnamwood, Wis., and Reporter Susan Waters, Stet, Mo.

Beckett and Waters are two of the AJPHA's six new directors who will hold two-year terms on the national board. Other new directors include Judy Anderson, Gold Hill, Ore.; Jock Beeson, Wayne, Neb.; Cari Webster, Carthage, Tenn.; and Cynthia Kirby, Lucama, N.C. They join Junior Council members Michael Poss, Harlem, Ga.; Stephen Fritz, Manns Choice, Pa.; Michelle Tankersley, Elkins, Ark.; and Keri Prestridge, Purcell, Okla.

Contest Results

This year's salesmanship contest, known as team marketing, drew stiff competition from junior and senior three-member teams well-versed in the breed, its pedigrees and performance information.

Using their knowledge, the junior team from Alabama and the senior team from Wisconsin were the most successful in selling their marketing plan to a panel of judges.

Runners-up were the junior team from Missouri and the senior team from Oklahoma. Third place was won by Oklahoma in the junior division and Kansas in the senior division.

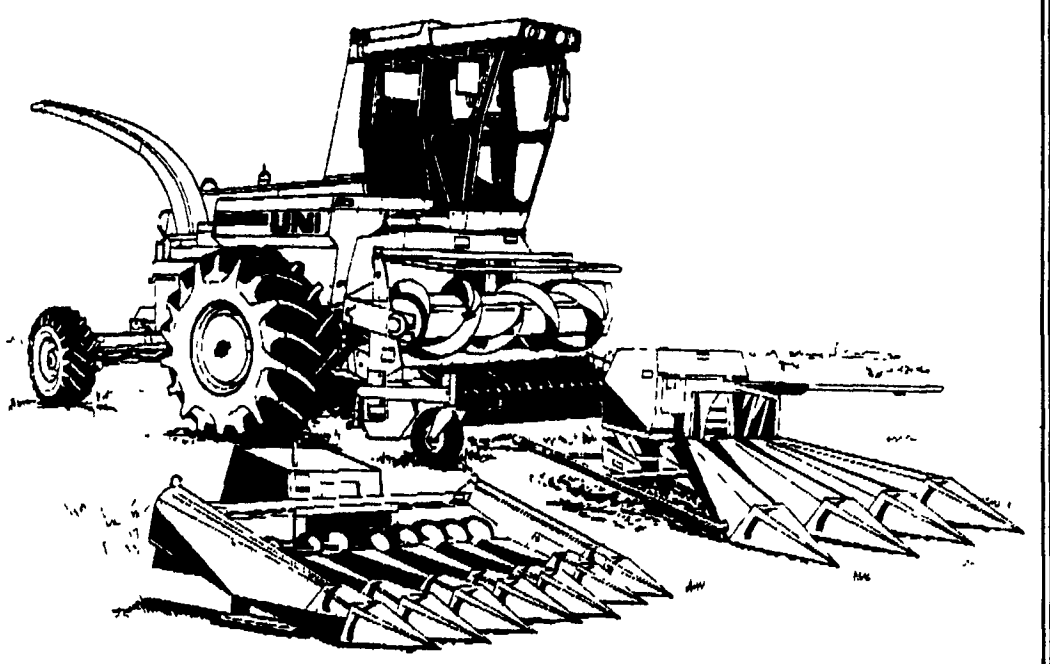
The National Illustrated Speech Contest, sponsored by the National Organization of Poll-ettes, drew junior and senior competitors that addressed the topic, "Animal Rights — A Cattleman's Point of View." Presenting the first place senior speech was Angie Stump, Blue Rapids, Kan., while the junior was Tevarhee Ray, Jacksboro, Texas. Second places went to senior Susan Waters and junior Jami Stump, Blue Rapids, Kan. Winning third place were senior Jock Beeson and junior Tracey Clagett, New Windsor, Md.

Competition was tough in all divisions of the showmanship contest officiated by Mark McClintock, manager of Rocking Chair Ranch, Ft. McKavett, Texas. Earning the senior division titles were champion Jock Beeson and reserve Tammy Riffel. Topping the junior division were champion Sherri Soules, Skiatook, Okla., and reserve Cammie Kirby, Lucama, N.C. Peewee winners were champion Karla Delaney, Lake Benton, Minn., and reserve Kevin Rooker, Uniontown, Pa.

During Beef Bowl competition at the Junior National, the four-member team from Texas came out on top. The team from Alabama was the runner-up in this competition that tests junior members' knowledge on the breed and beef industry in a quiz bowl format.

Juniors from the host state, Texas, captured the title to the coveted Sweepstakes award this year. Ohio junior members took prize money for compiling the best state scrapbook, while Kansans took home the award for the best state exhibit.

UNI Self-Propelled Harvester Handles Them All



Switch back and forth between haylage, silage and ear corn with ease...with a UNI forage harvester.

- You can easily change heads from chopping silage to haylage or ear corn in less than 30 minutes.
- The moderately priced 3-row (wide or narrow) silage heads have a suggested list of around $3000 per row. The heavy-duty 4-row (wide) head is ideal for custom harvesters and large acreages.
- 7-foot hay pick-up head features exclusive automatic header height control standard. Narrow tine spacing effectively picks up hay in a variety of conditions for a clean field.
- Ear corn head and adapter for efficient high-moisture corn grinding also available.
- UNI self-propelled choppers retain resale value because the harvesting modules are interchangeable You trade-in only the portion you want to upgrade, not the entire machine. Or you trade power units while retaining the use of your old heads and harvesting module.
- Ask your dealer about special low-rate financing.

Test Kit Improves Reproductive Efficiency

DeFOREST, WI — American Breeders Service announces the marketing release of a fast, accurate, and economical progesterone test to increase efficiency of cattle breeding programs.

BULLSEYE®, ABS' new milk progesterone test, helps to improve reproductive efficiency by shortening the calving interval and reducing services per conception by confirming heat in cows; identifying open cows early; checking pregnancy suspects and monitoring heat detectors' accuracy.

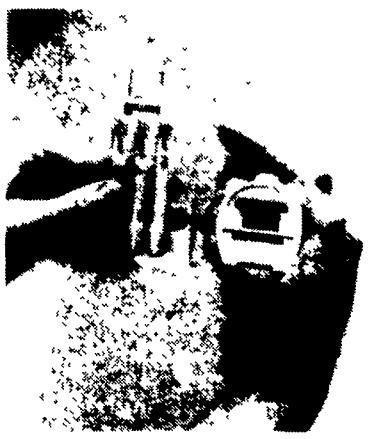
"BULLSEYE® is not a pregnancy test," said Linda Peterson, technical advisor at ABS. "This product measures the high and low levels of progesterone in a post-milk sample. If progesterone is low, the cow is in or near heat and the dairy producer can make a more-informed decision about whether to breed or not."

She said, "With research showing 97.4 percent accuracy in identifying low progesterone milk and an overall accuracy rate of 91.6 percent, BULLSEYE® is the most reliable test on the market." Peterson said the test is one of the easiest and fastest tests to perform allowing users to do three tests in six minutes.

BULLSEYE® has been field tested on dairies across the U.S., plus Dr. Ray Nebel of Virginia Polytechnic Institute has verified the test's performance.

"For several years ABS has looked for quality products that would fit our high technology image and positively impact the production level and efficiency of our customers' herds," said Dr. John Sullivan, vice chairman of ABS. BULLSEYE® meets these criteria.

BULLSEYE® allows dairy producers to conduct tests quickly with reliable accuracy using antibody-coated membranes on a dipstick that utilizes two controls. Each kit contains 15 tests, each with an internal reference making BULLSEYE® economical since no separate reference tests are needed. It is also the only test with a valid/not valid indicator. The tests remain usable for up to one year if refrigerated.



BULLSEYE®, a new Milk Progesterone Test Kit developed by American Breeders Service of DeForest, Wisconsin improves reproductive efficiency by shortening the calving interval and reducing services per conception by confirming heat, identifying open cows early, checking pregnancy suspects, and monitoring heat detectors' accuracy.

The Milk Progesterone Test is available from your ABS Representative and should be used as a part of a total reproduction program. American Breeders Service, a Grace Animal Services company, markets dairy and beef semen, and related products throughout Canada, the United States, and to more than 60 foreign countries.

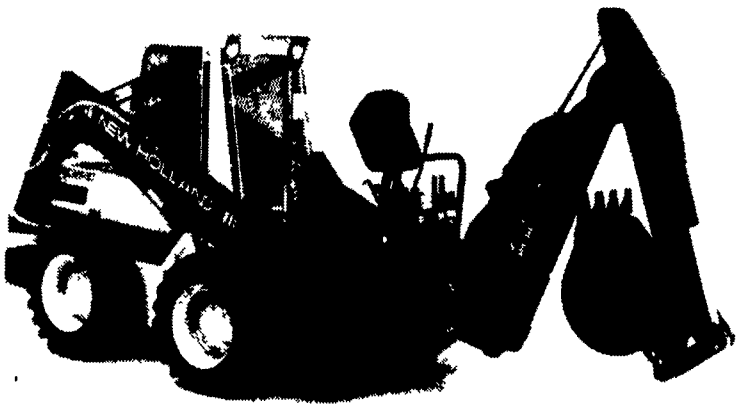
For more information about the test, contact your ABS representative or call (800) ABS-STUD.

Backhoe Boosts Bucket Digging Force

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The Model BH 114 backhoe boom-mounts on mid-size or large-frame New Holland skid-steer loaders. The heavy-duty backhoe has 22 percent more bucket digging force and 60 percent more dipper digging force, thanks to improved design and larger diameter hydraulic cylinders, says Ford New Holland product manager, Bill Sauber.

Digging depth is nine feet. Like the larger "BH 124" for large-frame loaders, the new "BH 114" features open-center hydraulics with built-in relief for boom, dipper and bucket circuits and grouser stabilizer pads. Power-dig buckets are available in 12", 16", and 24" widths.

The fast mounting feature and the ability to mount on all mid-size or large-frame skid-steers give the new "BH 114" flexibility for contractors, builders, utilities and landscapers, according to Sauber. It is compact for work in close quarters but has the digging capacity and reach for maximum productivity.



The new Model BH 114 heavy-duty backhoe fits both mid-size and large-frame New Holland skid-steer loaders. Bucket digging force is boosted 22 percent by design and component improvements.

DEKALB Names Outstanding Ag Student

DEKALB, Ill. — Robert Franklin, son of Mrs. Rose Franklin of Spring Mills, was recently named winner of the 1991 DEKALB Agricultural Accomplishment Award.

The award, sponsored nationwide by DEKALB Plant Genetics, is presented to the outstanding senior agriculture student demonstrating superior scholarship, leadership and supervised agricultural program.

Robert attended Penns Valley High School, where he has been an active leader in his FFA chapter serving as chairman of many important committees. His agricultural program consists of a dairy cow and field corn. Following graduation, Rob plans to work with his uncle for one year and then enter Penn State to study agriculture.

As this year's winner, Robert receives a pin and certificate, and his name will be inscribed on a special plaque displayed in the Agriculture Department. The DEKALB Award, often considered the highest honor a vo-ag student can receive on the local level, is presented at nearly 3,000 schools annually.

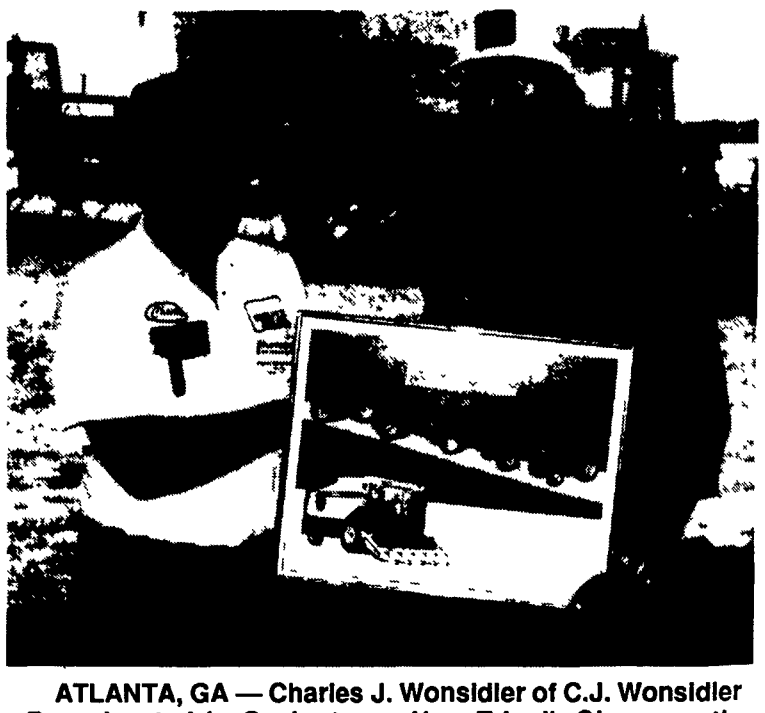
Wonsidler Attends Product Intro



ATLANTA, GA — Charles J. Wonsidler of C.J. Wonsidler Bros. located in Quakertown, New Tripoli, Oley recently attended a major new product introduction held in Kansas City. The program was sponsored by AGCO, the parent company of Deutz-Allis, Hesston Corporation and White Tractor Company.

The new products introduced included 12 new models of AGCO Allis tractors in five distinct series, ranging from 40 through 130 PTO horsepower, and featuring the popular "Allis orange" color; a new "DX" line of six tractors, ranging from 50 through 120 PTO horsepower; and a series of completely re-engineered rotary Gleaner combines.

Ag Teachers Go To Biotech School

PRINCETON, N.J. — Twenty-four high school agriculture teachers from the Northeast recently attended a two-day Biotechnology Workshop sponsored by American Cyanamid Company's Agricultural Research Division.

The purpose of the workshop is to give teachers an opportunity to see, firsthand, how biotechnology currently affects and will continue to affect agricultural education and how the new science will influence what they teach in their classrooms.

Hands-on activities, facilitated by Cyanamid research scientists, included plant tissue culture, conducting in vitro bioassays, and isolation of plasmid DNA.

Additionally, members of Cyanamid's Employee Relations staff discussed the bright outlook for job opportunities in the agricultural sciences. Recent reports from the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture indicate that there will be an 11 percent shortage for qualified workers in agriculture each year through the mid-1990s.

Round Three Signup

The Lebanon County Agricultural Land Preservation Board is accepting applications for round 3 of Lebanon County Agricultural Preservation Program.

Application forms are available from the Lebanon County Conservation District at 2120 Cornwall Road, Suite 5, Lebanon, 17042-9788, or call (717) 272-3377.

To be considered for round 3, applicants need to submit information between August 1 - Sept. 30, 1991.

Nitrate Danger Lurks During Drought Years

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Most livestock farmers know that nitrate-poisoned forage feeds are a definite possibility in drought years such as 1991. But timing of the harvest and proper feed management afterward will cut the incidence of sick animals to almost zero.

So says Lester R. Vough, forage crops specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System.

Dr. Vough said that nitrate poisoning occurs when livestock eat too much forage that is high in nitrates which have not yet changed to protein in the forage plants.

This situation occurs when plants have not been growing normally because of stress — usually drought stress. It is most common in corn that has been fertilized for high grain yield and then harvested for silage because its stunted growth has shattered hopes for a profitable grain yield.

Other forage plants, such as sudangrass, sorghum, pearl millet, oats, orchardgrass, and tall fescue also can accumulate nitrates at high levels. The same applies to most weeds found in cornfields — including redroot pigweed, common lambsquarters, ragweed, velvetleaf, witchgrass, Canada thistle, and black nightshade.

Drought conditions during or immediately after pollination usually cause the highest accumulation of nitrates in corn plants, Vough said. And the heaviest concentration is typically found in the bottom one-third of each stalk.

Resumption of normal plant growth after a heavy rainfall will reduce that accumulation considerably. So Vough advises farmers to delay forage harvest in a drought year for three or four days after a heavy rain.

If soaking rains have not occurred, set the cutter bar high to avoid the heavy nitrate concentrations in the lower part of each stalk. Make sure cutter knives are sharp, with the length of cut set at ¾ to ½ inch.

Dry leaves do not infer dry stalks or dry kernels, Vough said. When at the proper moisture level for silage, corn ears should have the milk line (dark area) about halfway down each kernel.

After harvest, consider these management practices to further reduce the risk of nitrate poisoning:

- Store chopped forage as silage. Allow three to four weeks for the fermentation process to be completed. This will reduce nitrate concentrations by one-third.
- Add 20 pounds of limestone per ton of silage going into the silo to reduce nitrate levels still further. More limestone than this, however, could adversely affect fermentation and silage quality.
- Assure proper moisture level in forage before ensiling. Adequate fermentation will not occur if forage is either too dry or too wet. Optimum moisture level is 65 percent. Oxygen-limiting silos, however, work best at 60 percent; bunkers at 68 to 70 percent. Adding water to dry forage is usually not worthwhile.
- Test all drought-stricken forage before feeding it to livestock. Laboratory analysis is necessary. Measure nitrate level as silo is being filled and again just before you start feeding it to livestock. The latter test should include a full nutrient analysis, since a balanced ration is good insurance against nitrate toxicity problems.
- Dilute known high-nitrate forage with low-nitrate feed such as grain or legumes. Grain is especially helpful in the process of converting nitrate to protein in an animal's rumen.
- Feed high-nitrate forage in limited amounts at frequent intervals. This will help animal rumens adapt to nitrate toxicity. Extreme caution should be used, however, with dry cows and bred heifers.

For more information on nitrate poisoning, ask for Fact Sheet 426 at your county office of the Cooperative Extension Service. It's free. Your county extension agricultural agent also can help in locating a feed-testing laboratory.

There is at least one commercial feed-testing laboratory in Maryland and several in Pennsylvania. Testing services also are available from the New York DHIC laboratory on the campus of Cornell University at Ithaca, N.Y. Most major feed companies offer free testing service to their customers.

Alar Suit Prompts Farmers To Form Group

YAKIMA, Wash. — The Washington apple growers who filed suit against CBS and the Natural Resources Defense Council announced today the creation of a nationwide association called Farmers for Responsible Media (FARM) to fight against unfair and inaccurate reporting.

"FARM gives growers the chance to draw a line in the sand and say, 'This is it. We're not going to be the victims of bad science and irresponsible reporting any longer,'" said Bob Brody, a member of the board of directors of FARM and one of the original 11 plaintiffs in the lawsuit over the Alar scare.

Brody said FARM will keep the public informed about the apple growers suit, stage grassroots campaigns, hold rallies, and be the primary fundraising apparatus for the costly legal battle against the network and the environmental pressure group.

Grady Auvil, widely regarded as the father of the Granny Smith apple and one of the nation's most prominent apple growers, said FARM was formed to give farmers a way to fight one-sided, misleading information from being reported.

"As we have traveled around the country, farmers everywhere have told us that our fight is their fight, that what happened to apple growers in Washington state over the Alar scare could happen to them tomorrow," Auvil, also one of the original 11 plaintiffs in the suit against "60 Minutes" and the NRDC, said. "We formed FARM as a trade association with one purpose: to do all we can to put an end to the irresponsible reporting of junk science."

Brody said the courts are growing increasingly receptive to holding the media accountable for reporting inaccurate information that damages a product in its marketplace. Many experts believe that the apple growers case over the Alar scare will ultimately be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court and will set a new standard for media accountability.

"There's not a lot of gray area in the Alar case," Brody said. "This is a product dispargement case. It has nothing to do with the First Amendment. We have a good chance of winning, but we're in a David and Goliath battle. We just keep reminding ourselves who won that fight."

Brody said persons interested in learning more about FARM should write FARM at 4700 Tieton Drive, Suite C, Yakima, WA 98908, or call (800) 275-3646.

Breeders Parade 217 Cattle At Angus Futurity

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus breeders from throughout the nation exhibited 217 head of bulls and females at the 44th American Angus Breeders' Futurity held recently in Louisville, Kentucky.

Judge Jack Ward, Roanoke, Indiana, and associate judge Scott Schaake, Lexington, Kentucky, judged the two-day event in the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center.

The judges selected Da Es Ro Casey 629 as the grand champion bull among the 59 bull entries. The bull was also named the supreme champion entry of the show.

An April 1989 son of Brost Power Drive, he is owned by Whitestone Krebs, Gordon, Nebraska, and Eric Schlutz, Letts, Iowa. First named the senior champion, the bull weighed in at 2,566 pounds. He had a frame score of 9.3, a rib eye area of 17.39 square inches, and fat thickness of 0.53 inch.

Prior to the show, all bulls were weighed and measured for scrotal circumference, and all cattle were measured for height and scanned with an ultrasound machine for rib eye area and fat thickness. This information was provided to the judge and show spectators.

The reserve grand champion bull was R&J Distinction owned by JAC's Ranch, Bentonville, Arkansas, and R & J Ranch and Distinction Breeders, both of Briggs, Texas. A May 1990 son of V D A R New Trend 315, the bull weighed in at 1,696 pounds. He had a frame score of 8.1, rib eye of 16.72, and 0.22 inch fat thickness.

Grand champion of the 125-head heifer show was S A V Mac Jestress 1761 owned by Sarah Hill, Bidwell, Ohio, and Champion Farms, Gallipolis, Ohio. A February 1990 daughter of Grubbs Mac Kenzie, the heifer first topped the early junior division. She was a frame score 9.3 and a rib eye area of 13.18 square inches with 0.5 inch fat thickness.

The judges then selected the reserve early junior champion heifer, Nelson Elba Lassie 0357, for reserve grand champion female. A January 1990 daughter of Nelson Iggi, the heifer is owned by Toby Bolsen, Lovington, Illinois. She had a 9.4 frame score, 0.5 inch fat thickness, and 12.98 rib eye area.

The grand champion cow with natural calf was Whitestone Blackbird 9524 owned by Whitestone Farm, Aldie, Virginia, and Michael Roddey Jr., Travelers Rest, South Carolina. Her calf was Whitestone Mc Mahon sired by T C Stockman. This cow was also reserve champion in the best udder division.

The reserve grand champion cow with natural calf was Kruegers Bellona exhibited by Whitney Dalton, Altavista, Virginia. Her calf was Daltons Jack of Spade WAR Sara 0209 7142 is the name of this heifer that won grand champion honors at Performashow '91 held in conjunction with the 44th American Angus Breeders' Futurity held August 4-6, 1991, in Louisville, Kentucky. Three judges evaluated the entries in the first-ever Angus performance show. Points were awarded for both phenotype and genetic merit based on expected progeny differences (EPDs).

Whitestone Blackbird 9524 is the name of this grand champion cow with natural calf at the 44th American Angus Breeders' Futurity held August 4-6, 1991, in Louisville, Kentucky. The cow is a January 1989 daughter of Grubbs Mac Kenzie, and an April 1991 bull calf sired by T C Stockman is at her side. The cow also won the reserve grand champion udder award. She is owned by Whitestone Farm, Aldie, Virginia, and Michael Roddey Jr., Travelers Rest, South Carolina.

1991 BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed.)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it. Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years Southern exposures usually wear faster.

Livestock Ledger

By
Chester D. Hughes

Extension Livestock Specialist

WINNING LIVESTOCK TEAM

In my writings of the Livestock Ledger, I attempt to keep producers of beef, pork, and lamb informed by addressing current topics of interest and concern.

In my work as an extension livestock agent, much time is devoted to 4-H livestock programs, in which our youth can learn (by doing) about the production of beef, swine, and sheep. A more intense program, for those with a keen interest in animal husbandry and stockmanship, is our county 4-H livestock and meats judging program, which has produced 10 state champions in the last decade.

I'm happy to recognize this year's winning senior livestock team from Lancaster County, who will represent Pennsylvania in the National 4-H Livestock Judging Contest in Louisville, Kentucky in November. They are Peter Hoffines, Marietta; Wendall Landis, Manheim; Dwain Livengood, Lancaster; and Mark Tracy, Elizabethtown.

All of these young men have been successful with their 4-H livestock projects and exhibit leadership in their clubs. My thank you's for hours of time and dedication go to Coach Greg Musser, Elizabethtown and all of you who hosted practices at your farms and homes throughout the summer or provided livestock for the judging contest we hosted in July. Good luck to the team this fall.

For Cattle Feeders

A recent cattle feeders discussion hosted by the Upjohn Company focused on Bovine Respiratory Disease or BRD, more commonly referred to as "shipping fever," because clinical outbreaks almost always occur after infected animals have been shipped or exposed to recently transported cattle.

Calves are infected with respiratory viruses by exposure to other cattle on the farm of origin, during marketing and shipping, or upon arrival at the feedlot. These are at least 28 different viruses that can predispose calves to BRD. Of these the most important are IBR, PI3, BVD, and BRSV.

By the time calves arrive at the delivery site, some are on the verge of getting sick, while others will go several days before symptoms start to show. Once delivery of the calves is completed, they should be processed as soon as possible. A successful processing program includes administering a seven way clostridial vaccine, along with vaccines for IBR, PI3, and BRSV. All of these viral agents are involved in the BRD complex.

Poor calf selection, purchasing, and shipping practices will increase the incidence of BRD. Mixing newly arrived calves with started calves will virtually assure continuing problems with BRD. It is important that animals be treated for an adequate length of time in regards to BRD — at least three days after the clinical signs of sickness are observed and one day after signs of illness have disappeared.

According to Dr. Raymond W. Loan, professor of pathobiology, Texas A & M University, there are many stressors to be aware of that contribute to the onset of BRD. They are:

- Changes in the environment, disturbing calves' normal activities
- Dehydration from lack of water during shipment
- Transportation irritation from diesel fumes and standing
- Changes in the climate during shipment
- Dietary stress from pasture grazing to feedlot receiving diets
- Overcrowding and commingling during the marketing process.

Starting Purchased Feeder Pigs

More than one-fourth of all market hogs in the United States were purchased as feeder pigs, according to Purdue University's Pork Industry Handbook. While a majority of these pigs are fed in facilities relatively close to the purchase site, a large number are transported long distances for finishing.

Be prepared for the arriving pigs. Prior to the pigs' arrival, thoroughly clean and disinfect the facility. Upon arrival, especially in cold weather, provide a dry, draft-free sleeping area.

In cold weather, supplemental heat and/or hovers and/or bedding may be necessary. For non-bedded inside facilities, provide 3-4 square feet of floor area for 30-60-pound pigs.

Group pigs by size at arrival. Limit the weight range within a pen to plus or minus 10-15 percent, if possible. Put no more than 25-30 pigs per pen, especially inside pens. More than this may reduce performance due to excessive fighting and other aggressive actions.

One watering space is required per 10-15 pigs, especially if nipple devices are used. Provide at least one feeder space for every 3-4 pigs.

Formulate the diet for the newly arrived pigs based on the expected nutritional needs of the lightest 25 percent of the pigs. Increasing or decreasing the protein level for the first week following arrival generally does not improve performance.

Furthermore, research has not demonstrated any improvement in performance to market weight by the addition of vitamins and trace minerals at levels higher than those normally recommended for growing pig diets. After the 2 to 4 week receiving period, pigs may be switched to a balanced grower diet.

The major health problems affecting newly arrived feeder pigs are respiratory distress (pneumonia) and diarrhea (scours). Expect death losses. Currently, records indicate that the average purchaser of feeder pigs loses 3-4 percent of the pigs purchased to a variety of health causes. All-in/all-out management is strongly recommended. Do not put newly arrived pigs in a facility which contains pigs from a previous purchase. Never put purchased feeder pigs in the same facility or on the same building site as home-raised finishing pigs. Frequent observation is essential. Close scrutiny at least twice a day for the first few weeks and daily thereafter may prevent a serious disease outbreak.

Farming With Family

Farming with family is many times at best a problem. Emotions, financial pressures, and personal relationships are all heightened when dealing with family.

Alan Strock, multi-county extension farm management agent, offers the following suggestions about problems to avoid and ways to prevent problems so your family business operates and transfers to the next generation more smoothly:

• Don't burden the farm with more family members or employees than it can support. Generally, at least 40 cows or 100 sows are needed to support a family. The cash flow should supply at least $22,000 for living expenses per family unit.

• Welcome family members into the business based on ability to contribute to the business. Do not allow the business to become a haven for incompetent or overpaid family members.

• Do not think a change in business structure or relationship will change a person's personality or business style. Family members must first get along at home before they can get along in business.

• Communicate regularly. I suggest that all couples at least once a month go eat at a restaurant or other neutral spot and talk out differences and farm strategic planning issues. Family members must also leam to praise their children or parents. It may be very difficult to do, but it is a real key to keeping the younger generation motivated and interested in the farm. You must really communicate and be aware of what the family member is doing to be able to praise your family member for a job well done. Correction must be balanced with praise. Family members must learn to be open with each other and share hurt feelings, lack of management responsibilities, and the like.

• Develop written job descriptions and responsibilities. Give the incoming partner authority to make change and then hold them responsible. The younger generation must be given the opportunity to fail or succeed on their own.

• Be open in the discussion of the farm's finances. Keep the books open so that if income margins become minimal or the risk increases, both generations may carefully evaluate their positions and goals. Be sure to calculate a cash flow statement for all family members, so the younger generation may accumulate equity without a large cash outlay.

• Have a written business agreement such as a partnership, joint venture agreement, rental agreement, or family security agreement. It is easier to solve problems before they arise than in the heat of a battle when everyone is looking out for their own interests. The agreements should pro-

Angus Compete At Virginia Breeders Show

HARRISONBURG, VA — The 30th Virginia Angus Breeders Show was held July 27, 1991, in Harrisonburg. Angus breeders paraded 121 cattle to compete for championship honors awarded by judge Gary Minish, Blacksburg.

Among the 70 heifer entries, grand champion honors were presented to the winner of the junior division, Northcote Marielle. Dixeylands Ranch, Raphine, exhibited the grand winner that went on to be selected the supreme champion entry of the show. The heifer is a January 1990 daughter of Jacs Hudson.

The reserve grand champion female was the reserve junior winner. Kamaro Angus, Aldie, and Waldeck Farm, Crestwood, Kentucky, together own the reserve grand entry named Waldeck Carla. She is a January 1990 daughter of Harmony Hill Concorde.

In bull competition, Circle G Epicenter 141 won grand champion honors. The January 1990 son of G D A R Equalizer 6148 first topped the junior division. He is owned by Dixeylands Ranch and Circle G Angus Farm, Hampton, Georgia.

Reserve grand champion bull laurels were presented to the senior bull calf champion. AF Bold Ruler 057 is the name of the reserve grand entry owned by Albemarle Farms, Charlottesville. The bull is a September 1990 son of Nelson Bold Ruler.

Whitney Dalton, Altavista, exhibited the grand champion cow with natural calf. The May 1989 cow is Kruegers Bellona and a May 1991 bull calf was at her side.

The reserve grand champion cow with natural calf was owned by Scott Updike, Washington. The April 1989 cow is Pride Gal of Skyway Hill and a March 1991 bull calf was at her side.

Jane Saunders, Richmond, owns the grand champion cow with embryo calf. White Hall Janessa E92 is the name of the May 1983 cow. The calf at side was a December 1990 bull.

vide exit provisions that protect all parties.

• Consider a one- or two-year trial period or apprenticeship before entering a binding legal agreement. This allows all parties to practice being partners, develop their communication skills, and to evaluate the business and their role in it.

• Get off-farm experience before coming home to farm. The incoming partner then can make a conscious informed decision to return and has work experience on which to fall back. The incoming partner will then know how the other half lives and have experienced bosses other than their parents. These skills gained from off-farm employment will also benefit the business.

• Be sure to ask for help. An outside mediator, educator, or counselor can help families sort through the myriad of details and sensitive issues surrounding transitions. Contact cooperative extension for help in the areas of estate planning, partnership formation, or other ideas on adding family members to the business.

Purple Peppers Pack Surprise

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The chemical that makes Pretty Purple pepper plants and fruit purple, is being studied by a team of Penn State researchers.

"What we found is that the level of total biomass production in the purple plants was nearly the same as in the conventional green pepper," said Dr. Kenneth L. Steffen, assistant professor of vegetable crop physiology. "This was not what we expected.

"The overall dry matter accumulation, soluble protein content, leaf area and photosynthetic productivity were comparable, however the amount of anthocyanin was 70 times higher and the amount of chlorophyll was 60 percent greater in the purple plant.

"We also found that the Pretty Purple pepper was more tolerant of water and fertility stress."

The Pretty Purple pepper has dark purple leaves and a dark purple to black fruit that turns red when ripe. The fruit is very hot.

Initially, the researchers believed that a plant which puts metabolic energy into producing anthocyanins, shading chloroplasts and therefore reducing the harvest of solar energy, would be less productive than a plant that harvested all the sunlight it could get.

"We had evidence that Pretty Purple grew very slowly, so we thought we would find that productivity was lower," Steffen told attendees at the annual meeting of the American Society for Horticultural Science in University Park.

"Now we would like to know why the purple peppers are so efficient."

According to Steffen, one theory suggests that anthocyanins help shade out excess sunlight and reduce a plants susceptibility to light and oxidation damage.

"Plants are more at risk from oxidation than most other organisms because they not only produce oxygen, but also concentrate high levels of solar energy," said Steffen.

"If more solar energy is collected than can be used to make sugars and other plant products, some of the energy may be transferred to oxygen, creating reactive oxygen molecules — major oxidizers.

"One protective mechanism that plants have is the production of antioxidants such as vitamins A, C and D," said Steffen.

"Plants may also increase the production of enzymes to better use solar energy for food production."

Plants that have anthocyanin in their epidermal cells are thought to use the red to blue-purple pigment as a sunscreen. However, by screening out the sun, they reduce the amount of energy they receive and by producing anthocyanin they use energy that could otherwise be used for growth.

The researchers, who include Steffen, Brian D. Bahler, senior research aide and Michael D. Orzolek, professor of vegetable crops, are interested in determining anthocyanin's role in differential responses to stresses such as water stress.

Mower Has Advanced Dual-Hydrostatic Drive

MOUNDRIDGE, Kan.— Grasshopper announces the addition of the Model 612 its new 600 Series of mid-size zero-turn front mowers.

Offering smooth, efficient operation in a wide range of applications, the 612 joins the Model 614 for 1991. Grasshopper's 600 Series sets new levels of performance for mid-size zero-turning-radius mowers in the 44-inch to 48-inch class.

Along with many other professional features, the Model 612 combines an advanced dual-hydrostatic direct drive system with Briggs & Stratton's 12.5 h.p. Vanguard engine. The air-cooled gas, twin-cylinder OHV powerplant was developed for improved efficiency and reliability. Grasshopper's new advanced dual-hydrostatic direct drive system incorporates internal filtration and reservoir diaphragms for smoother, cleaner operation and extended service life.

Comfortable foam-padded dual levers -- adjustable tomatch operator's arm length -- put complete control of speed, steering, turns, braking and alternating forward/reverse motion in the palm of the hand, with no gears to shift and no pedals to push. Control levers spread wide for easy-on, easy-off mounting and dismounting.

The Model 612's true zero-turning-radius and outfront PTO-driven decks in 44-inch and 48-inch cutting widths provide ease of maneuverability in and out of congested and hard-to-mow areas. Low-profile deck design allows the 612 to reach under trees, shrubs and split-rail fences to reduce hand-trimming around obstacles. Torsion-Action also allows the decks to float front-to-front-to-rear, independent of the tractor, ensuring a level, high-quality cut in changing terrain. Padded, high-back seat with arm rests and spring suspension provides panoramic view.

Attachments and accessories for the Model 612 include an 8-cubic-foot Quik-D-Tatch Vac® Grasscatching System, a 48-inch multi-purpose dozer blade, and a PTO-driven 48-inch snow thrower.

For additional information on any of Grasshopper's line of nine zero-turn-radius front mowers, write or call The Grasshopper Company, One Grasshopper Trail, P.O. Box 637, Moundridge, KS 67107, (316) 345-8621.

Grasshopper brings a new standard of performance to the 44-inch to 48-inch class with the introduction of the Model 612. Joining Grasshopper's all-new 600 Series mid-size line, the 612 offers smooth, efficient operation in a wide range of applications. A 12.5 hp Briggs & Stratton twin-cylinder OHV powerplant combines with Grasshopper's advanced dual-hydrostatic direct drive and many other professional features for improved efficiency and reliability.

CULTIVATE GOOD NEIGHBORS ON YOUR FARM

Nuisance complaints about agricultural activities occur regularly now as suburban developments encroach further onto land once reserved for the business of agriculture. More than ever, non-farm people live near farms, and their grievances are directed at livestock operations, more specifically, hog operations. Confrontation between farmers and non-farm neighbors solves nothing. But a little consideration and planning on the producer's part go a long way toward good neighborly relations.

Some hog producers have been threatened with legal action (a few have actually been shut down) as a result of odors generated by their operations. The people filing lawsuits don't know the first thing about agriculture. They can't be blamed for their ignorance of rural life, I suppose, but you can't let them interfere with your livelihood either.

The current rate of suburban development on the peninsula is staggering, and many people who are planning to buy houses in the country are unfamiliar with agricultural practices. No doubt about it; their first whiff of hog odor will come as quite a shock!

Those of us in the swine industry have become accustomed to the odor; regular exposure has neutralized our sensitivity to it. But newcomers to the country seem to have a harder time getting used to the smell. People really should be warned before they purchase homes in an agricultural area, but realtors certainly won't tell prospective buyers the home they are considering is located within nose-shot of a hog farm or livestock operation. So when you start spreading that first load of manure on the ground, their olfactory senses are bound to be stunned, tempers will flare, phones will ring off the hook and you and your neighbor will be on the verge of an old-fashioned feud.

As a swine producer, how can you protect yourself? Nuisance complaints are here to stay, I'm afraid, but you can do several things to avoid major problems. The time you set aside to spread manure is one way you can minimize conflict with your suburban neighbors. Don't apply it in the evenings, weekends or holidays when neighbors are likely to be at home. There's no sense in aggravating an already difficult situation. Swine producers can take the lead in reducing potential problems by remaining open and sensitive towards their neighbors' position.

Avoid selling road-frontage lots that will put possible complainers within reach of your operation. Farmers who already are targets of nuisance complaints only compound the problem by selling lots near their operations or, worse yet, by establishing their operations near neighbors' homes. Be realistic. Even your fellow farmers may not like to be on the receiving end of hog odors.

Manure management and storage helps contain odors. Follow the guidelines recommended by your state; consult your local Cooperative Extension office for help in this area. Swine producers only defeat themselves when they continue to think that just because they were there first they are automatically protected against lawsuits. This kind of thinking may encourage some producers to disregard state regulations, which will only serve to malign the entire swine industry.

It's a good idea to inform city folk who are moving to the country about animal production units that are in the area of their prospective home. Maybe a visit to the farm in question for a closer look at the operation would help people know what to expect and prepare them for real country living.

The same rules for warning about manure odors hold true for pesticide application as well. Potential home owners should be made aware that pesticides are sprayed routinely on agricultural land.

Poet Robert Frost wrote that good fences make good neighbors. Today, as suburbs move closer and closer to agricultural lands, I suggest a few good-neighbor amendments. Information, open dialogue and the spirit of compromise make good neighbors, too.

Reduce Fly Numbers Around Poultry House

Herbert C. Jordan
Assoc. Prof.
Poultry Science
Penn State

Flies are a nuisance within 300 yards of some laying, pullet, or hen houses every spring and/or summer. A few complaints by citizens claim flies cover a wall at many flies per square foot.

Some questions to ask or actions to be taken are as follows: Is this fly the common house fly or is it the fania fly, which is much smaller? High populations of fania flies usually occur in March or October; whereas house flies are usually in high numbers June through August or in any warm month.

To control a fly population, the reproduction must be prevented by control of manure quality. Here are some methods to prevent high numbers of house flies:

•Keep (animal) mammal or poultry manure below 50 percent moisture content in storage. Below 30 percent moisture is better. Fresh normal poultry manure at 75 percent moisture can be dried to less than 50 percent moisture.

• Remove manure from the stable every seven days and spread it and turn it into soil to break the reproductive cycle of the fly. Rain on manure laying on soil surface can produce more flies.

• Turn manure into top 3-6 inches of soil the same day it is spread and no later than two days after it is spread. Rapid incorporation into soil prevents flies, odor, and loss of nitrogen.

• Move air over manure surface in pits at 500 feet per minute or a faster speed to dry manure as it drops.

• Stir and aerate manure as it drops to allow it to compost or dry or prevent anerobic bacteria from growing.

• Be careful as you add slack lime to surface of manure in pits every 3 days at the rate of 4 pound per 100 birds. Slack lime can cause respiratory damage in humans. Add this lime one month before fly season through the end of the fly season.

• Prevent all water leaks from waterers so pit manure is allowed to dry. Any water leaking into manure from any source usually increases fly numbers, so do not allow rain water, surface water, ground water, or any water into manure.

• Keep birds bowel healthy so it can produce normal manure stools. If bowel produces wet droppings or diarrhea, fly and repulsive odor problems are usually worse. Also, when bird has wet droppings more water, tissue, body fluids, and fresh feed is passed into manure which is costly to the farmer and makes more nutrients in the manure.

• Spray an approved fly or larvae control pesticide directly on manure in pit as a last resort. Follow label directions and question the manufacturer as to whether manure applied to cropland later will damage anything because of the pesticide.

• Purchase and spray a compost culture of microbes on manure by following label directions.

• Apply black compost from the floor of a hardwood forest directly to pit manure at the rate of 1 pound of black compost to 4 square feet of pit surface as needed. This may be feasible on flocks with a few thousand birds.

• Mix ¼ cup of Chlorox™ per 6 gallons of water (be careful) and spray it in fine mist on manure surface in pit twice a month or as needed. This will denature or destroy insects or larvae it touches. Do not inhale chlorine-water spray mixture and do not get it on skin or in eyes. One 6-gallon mix should treat manure under 1,000 birds once.

• Design ventilation system to bring air into poultry house, pass it through birds, then pass it over manure surface and out of the house. If cool air enters a poultry house from a shaded area and is warmed 17°F, it can double its moisture-carrying capacity as it dries manure and leaves the house.

• Flies reproduce when it is warm or hot in moist organic matter, so rid your property of any piles of manure, garbage, or rotting organic matter.

Every animal farm has flies. We can only hope to reduce fly numbers. Start a fly control and a quality manure management program now — never wait until flies are in high numbers to start a program.

WAIT!

Having roofing problems? Considering a new roof in the next 3-5 years? Before investing big dollars in an expensive new roof consider Poxy Coat II!

Poxy Coat II is good for most roofs.
- extremely flexible for long life
- is heat resistant up to 1000°.
- resists acid rain
- seals and protects
- comes in seven colors, plus black and white
- a fraction of the cost of a new roof.

For more information and a free estimate and consultation on coating your roof with Poxy Coat II contact:

Paul Brosey at (717) 426-3833 or
Steve Bowman at (717) 684-8642

CUSTOM DRYING & STORAGE

Wet brewers grain is more than a good feed. It's a good business ingredient.

Each day, up to 100,000 U.S. dairy cows feed on rations containing wet brewers grain. That's because their owners know it minimizes feed costs while it maximizes production.

Wet brewers grain is a high-protein feed ingredient. It's always fresh, because it's delivered directly to your dairy. It fits into most programs, is easy to handle, and easy to store.

Call us today. One of our professional feed consultants will help you work wet brewers grain into your ration, so you can make it a profitable ingredient for your business.

CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

Look over these outstanding features.

- Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction.
- Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting.
- Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

E-Z Dumper

TURN YOUR PICKUP INTO A DUMP TRUCK IN LESS THAN ONE HOUR.

E-Z Dumper is the original hydraulically operated dump unit for pickup trucks. With E-Z Dumper you can unload your pickup truck bed in under thirty seconds with the turn of a key. You'll never have to unload your truck by hand again!

The E-Z Dumper can hold and unload up to 4,000 lbs or two cubic yards of firewood, topsoil, gravel, mulch, grain, or whatever, depending on the weight-carrying capacity of your truck.

Easy To Install And Operate.
Do-it-yourself installation of E-Z Dumper is a breeze. No alterations are needed for most trucks. Just slide the dumper into your truckbed, secure it with bolts and holes already on your truck, and you're ready to go. We even include the hydraulic fluid!

A Durable Investment.
E-Z Dumper is designed to take a beating from the toughest loads, from two yards of cordwood to two tons of crushed stone, while providing you with years of reliable service.

FAIR DAYS

Franklin Co. Fair

An all-new National Brands Food Fair, sponsored by Sunnyway Foods of Greencastle and Chambersburg, will be one of two new features of the 1991 Franklin County Fair.

This Food Fair, the first event of its kind ever held in Franklin County, will feature 50 national-brand food producers offering free samplings of hundreds of their products.

The Food Fair, housed in two huge tents beside the Warner Building, will be open to the public between 5 p.m. and 10 p.m. on August 19 and 20.

A second new event, according to Franklin County agricultural agent John Shearer, is the appearance on August 20 of Cynthia Kereluk, "The Dairy Industry's Fitness Educator, as seen on the Lifetime Network." A former Miss Canada, Kereluk will be presenting an aerobics performance for physical fitness for children on the Midway Stage starting at 7:30 p.m. A second 25-minute performance, primarily for an adult audience, will start at 8:05 p.m. Both will be set to music, with opportunities for audience participation. Kereluk will be promoting physical fitness through the use of aerobic exercises and by drinking milk. Her appearance is being sponsored by the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association.

Auction Benefits Clinic For Special Children

STRASBURG (Lancaster Co.) — A special benefit auction will be held Sept. 28 at the Martin Sales Pavilion to benefit The Clinic For Special Children. The clinic's address is Box 128, Strasburg, PA 17579.

The clinic is a nonprofit organization for diagnostic and primary care service for children with inherited diseases. Glutaric Aciduria and Maple Syrup Urine Disease (MSUD) are two comon biochemical disorders that require a complex approach for successful treatment.

The clinic's approach includes an infant testing program for early diagnosis, primary medical care to prevent devastating effects of metabolic diseases during common childhood illnesses, clinical research to improve treatment, and services to support the needs of parents.

In addition to these two diseases, the clinic cares for children who have complex needs due to other genetic disorders, some of which are yet to be identified. Research at the clinic seeks to unlock these riddles. Although fees for services help meet some of the costs of operating the clinic, they will never cover the entire cost, particularly the research component which is so vital in imporving treatment and increasing understanding of metabolic diseases.

Many children seen at the clinic require extensive review of previous records, test results, lengthy talks with parents, and thinking time. This costs a lot in time and effort. Many of these children previously had not received the medical care they needed for this very reason.

In order to meet these complex medical needs without government support or high-fee schedules, the clinic needs continued support.

Donations for the auction can be anything, new or used, that will sell. Accepatable items would included quilts, crafts, baked goods, tools, housewares, farm items and supplies, furniture, groceries, and gift certificates.

Anyone who would like to donate items may call Leonard Hurst, (717) 626-4863; Enos Hoover, (717) 354-5415; Harvey Hoover, (717) 656-9694; or Ernest Zimmerman, (717) 733-2645 (evenings) or (717) 738-1121 (daytime).

The Clinic for Special Children is a registered charitable organization. The committee will appreciate anything you can contribute to the auction.

The Martin Sales Pavilion is located along Route 340, east of Intercourse. The sale starts at 9 a.m.

Boar Patrol Polices Pigs

FORT COLLINS, Colo. — Watch out for boar patrol. . .if you're a pig, that is. Boars won't put up with any funny business between pigs, two Colorado State University researchers proved last spring.

"It's like Arnold Schwarzenegger entering the room," said Temple Grandin, assistant professor of animal sciences at Colorado State. "Fighting stops. The pigs just straighten up when the boar approaches."

Pork producers find pigs fight more when mixed with pigs from other pens as they are sorted for market. Fighting injures and stresses pigs prior to slaughter. "Fighting is detrimental to their welfare and causes economic loss to the pork industry," Grandin said. The animal behaviorist noted that few methods to reduce in-fighting among pigs seem more effective than introducing several resident boars.

The reason is androsterone, found in boar saliva and fat. When used as a concentrate on feeder pigs, fighting diminishes, another researcher discovered. But the substance requires further testing before it can be marketed to pork producers.

Grandin, who has a penchant for finding practical solutions for difficult problems, decided resident boars might be an economical and easy way to introduce androsterone. She and Jennifer Bruning of Denver, one of Grandin's students, tested the hypothesis at Comanche Livestock Co. near Strasburg, Colo.

They observed 200 pigs as they were sorted from five pens. Two groups of 50 entered pens with three young, sexually mature boars. The resident boars, Grandin said, had to be friends or they wouldn't work together to manage the unruly pens of pigs.

They also observed two other pens of pigs mixed without benefit of boar patrol. On comparison, the researchers discovered resident boars reduced injuries by more than half.

"We found resident boars kept the newly mixed pigs in line," Grandin said. "We observed that the pigs moved out of the way and even stopped fighting when a boar was near. The few fights that occurred in the presence of boars were less intense."

Grandin and Bruning expect the boar patrol will continue to get respect from pigs and, they hope, from pork producers as well.

PSU Battles Gray Mold

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Gray mold is the major factor keeping inexpensive, long lasting black and red raspberries out of supermarket produce areas, according to a Penn State researcher.

"Raspberries are extremely perishable," said Dr. Barbara L. Goulart, assistant professor of horticulture.

"They have loosely connected drupelets, a very high rate of post harvest respiration and when picked, removal of the green receptacle leaves a cavity that is perfect for mold growth and makes the berries very crushable."

"Raspberry production for fresh market consumption is severely limited by the rapid deterioration of the fruit," Goulart told attendees at the annual meeting of the American Society of Horticulture Science, on Penn State's campus in University Park.

"The most common cause of post harvest decline is gray mold fruit rot, caused by Botrytis cinerea. Even if the mold is controlled, after a week the fruit discolors and is unsalable," Goulart said.

"There are commercial fungicides available to deal with gray mold, but we are losing fungicides continuously either because manufacturers find it unprofitable to keep the fruit listed on the labels or the fungus becomes resistant to the chemicals."

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which regulates fungicides for use on consumable crops, requires that manufacturers list on their labels the crops for which the chemicals have been approved. If a fruit or vegetable is not listed, the chemical cannot be used on a commercial crop.

Goulart and a team of researchers have been working on a potential fungicide, Pyrrolnitrin, which is derived from a bacteria and is currently used in Japan to treat human fungal infections of the skin.

"We are interested because it is probably a relatively safe chemical," said Goulart. "Initial tests, dipping strawberries after harvest, also showed excellent fungal control."

The researchers — who include Goulart; Philip Hammer, graduate student in horticulture; and Dr. Kathleen Evensen, associate professor of post harvest physiology, from Penn State; and Wojciech Janisiewicz and Fumiomi Takeda, Appalachian Fruit Research Station, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Kearneysville, W.V. — tested both red and black raspberries in field tests using pyrrolnitrin.

Berries were treated in the field with either commercially available fungicides, sterile water or pyrrolnitrin; picked one, four or six days after treatment, and stored at 32 or 64 degrees Fahrenheit.

Some of the berries were also stored in a high carbon dioxide environment to determine if carbon dioxide could prevent the growth of gray mold.

"Unfortunately, the effects for the pyrrolnitrin have been intermediate between no treatment at all and the standard commercial fungicides," said Goulart.

The Penn State researcher said he believes that the poor results are due to methodological problems rather than an inherent problem with Pyrrolnitrin as a fungicide.

"Commercial fungicides have a surfactant — a chemical that makes the liquid spread and stick — combined in their formulation," said Goulart. "We did mix an off-the-shelf surfactant with the pyrrolnitrin, but it's not the same as something that is designed for a particular chemical.

"We would like to find a chemical company to formulate a pyrrolnitrin fungicide for us, but in these tight money times we are not sure anyone will be willing to take the risk."

Until a formulation exists, the researchers have suspended their field studies.

Experimentation with carbon dioxide had mixed results, according to the researchers. While the high carbon dioxide environment did prevent gray mold from forming, the berries degraded unacceptabley after eight days.

"Even if we extend shfl like using high carbon dioxide and fungicides, after a week the berries discolor and look very unattractive," Goulart said. "The red berries turn dark red and the black berries get dull and turn light pink around the drupelets."

Juniors Lead Out 58 Angus

HARRISONBURG, VA — Fifty-eight cattle competed for championship honors at the 1991 Virginia Junior Angus Breeders Show in Harrisonburg. Charlie Boyd II, Clemmons, North Carolina, judged the cattle and selected the champions.

In bred-and-owned heifer competition, Anne Jones of Forest made a clean sweep. Jones exhibited both the grand champion and reserve grand champion bred-and-owned heifer entries: Grand laurels went to Annes Beauty Lass 721, a January 1991 daughter of Hoff Hi Spade S C 491. The reserve grand champion female was Annes Queen Lady 440, a July 1990 daughter of Gallaghers Jack 670.

Jones also paraded the grand champion "owned" cow-calf pair entry. M B Beauty Lass 7200 was the winning cow that is a July 1987 daughter of Broadway. A January 1991 heifer calf was at her side.

The reserve grand champion "owned" cow-calf pair was exhibited by Whitney Dalton, Altavista. Kruegers Bellona, a May 1989 daughter of Grubbs Mac Kenzie, won the honors. A May 1991 bull calf was at her side.

Pride Gal of Skyway Hill won grand champion bred-and-owned cow-calf pair honors for Scott Updike, Washington. The cow is an April 1989 daughter of Skyway Hills Big Time. A March 1991 bull calf was at her side.

In "owned" heifer competition, Robin McCall, Waterford, paraded the grand champion. The winner was B H Patti Gal 130, a March 1990 daughter of R&J Extraordinary 1345.

Reserve grand champion "owned" heifer laurels went to Northcote Star Rachel shown by Wynn Dalton, Altavista. The reserve grand winner is a May 1990 daughter of F F Starstruck.

Randolph Clary III, Brodnax, exhibited the grand champion bred-and-owned bull named A C Janes Hammer 801. The bull is a March 1991 son of Springfield Leadway 7246.

The reserve grand champion bred-and-owned bull was J E B R A A B A Heritage 146 exhibited by Allison Cross, Leesburg. The bull is a January 1991 son of B A Heritage 02.

Byrnley Equalizer 8350 was the grand champion market steer and the grand champion "On Stage" steer. Chan Smith, Lovettsville, paraded the double winner that is a March 1990 son of G D A R Equalizer 6148.

The reserve grand champion market steer was also named the reserve grand champion "On Stage" steer. Robin McCall, Waterford, paraded the reserve winner named Byrnley Bolder 4090. The steer is a May 1990 son of Nelson Bold Ruler.

An Angus-cross steer won grand champion feeder steer honors for Tommy Carper of White Post.

William Walther, Bluemont, exhibited the reserve grand champion feeder steer that was a registered Angus. The steer was Pride Power of Paradise, a February 1990 son of Brost Power Drive. In showmanship competition, Anne Jones was the champion senior showman, and Robin McCall won champion intermediate honors. Chan Smith won the junior division, and Jacob Grove, Forest, was named the champion novice showman.

Aquatic Farming Conference To Explore Opportunities

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Mention livestock, and probably the least likely animals to come to mind would be fish. They may be making a new splash on Pennsylvania farms in the '90s and have an effect on the food industry in the region.

Penn State Cooperative Extension and The Juniata Valley Model Aquaculture Project, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Aquaculture Association, will hold an Aquatic Farming Conference for those interested in raising fish commercially.

The conference is set for Thursday and Friday, August 22 and 23, at the Juniata Valley High School in Alexandria, Pa.

"The planning committee has selected an excellent array of topics to be presented by leading experts and producers to answer your questions on the fish farming business," said Larry Yager, extension marketing agent and conference organizer. "Our goal is to provide information that will help potential producers make sound, informed decisions on whether or how to get started in this business."

Though catfish is the predominant fish of the warm south, other species may have potential in Pennsylvania. That's good news because consumers have increased per capita consumption of seafood 24 percent between 1980 and 1989 to 15.5 pounds.

In 1989, the United States imported $5.5 billion worth of edible seafood. Consumers now pay 20 cents of every seafood dollar to foreign suppliers.

The conference features speakers from various agencies, universities, and producers. Topics will cover overviews, regulations, systems, species, processing, marketing, risks and roundtable discussions. Friday morning will feature a tour to Spruce Creek Trout Farm, Benner Springs Fish Research Station, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Northeast Fishery Center.

"Pennsylvania aquaculture is poised for growth," said Rich Colantuno, one of the speakers and president of the Pennsylvania Aquaculture Association. "But there is no one fish species, production system, or market that's right for everyone. I'm excited about the conference because several viewpoints will be presented. People in attendance will have a chance to weigh their choices with others who have 'been there'."

For a registration brochure, contact Bill Sipple, Short Course Office, Penn State, 307 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-8301 or Larry Yager, Adams County Extension Office, 1135 Chambersburg Rd., Gettysburg, PA 17325, (717) 334-6271.

Keep Pigs Cool, Boost Productivity

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — High temperatures take their toll on the performance of hogs and sows and can reduce the fertility of boars. Keeping your pigs cool in hot weather can boost productivity and save you money, said a swine expert in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Pigs in a typical confinement building are at your mercy to stay comfortable," said Kenneth Kephart, associate professor of animal science. "When the temperature is too high, a pig usually finds a wet spot in the pen. If there is none, the best it can do is lie on its side and pant."

When pigs experience heat stress, they eat less and their growth slows. Sows that are too hot can have trouble conceiving, and heat hampers sperm development and fertility in boars. "When any of these things happen, it costs you money," Kephart said. "The bottom line is we need to do whatever we can to keep the pigs comfortable."

Getting them wet is the most effective way to cool hogs. "Spray nozzles are good for finishing houses or breeding areas because they make the animal wet and cool without adding significant moisture to the air," Kephart said.

"Choose a nozzle size and regulate the spraying time so that each hog receives at least .02 gallons per hour. For example, if you have 25 hogs per pen and one nozzle that puts out three gallons per hour, the nozzle should run about two minutes out of 10."

Kephart notes that spray nozzles shouldn't be used in farrowing houses because they can chill baby pigs.

"Drip coolers are a better alternative for farrowing houses, since you can wet the neck and shoulders of the sows without affecting the baby pigs," he said. "Use nozzles rated between one-half and one gallon per hour, and run them one minute out of 10."

Foggers that spray a fine mist and evaporative coolers that draw incoming air through wet pads can help, but Kephart said that they add to the humidity and are least effective on the hot, muggy days when pigs need cooling the most.

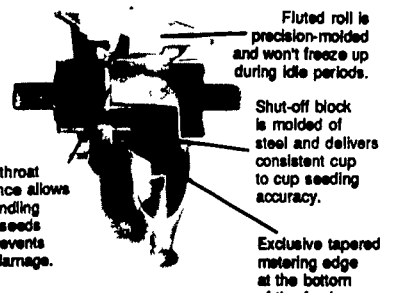
A Special Feature For All Case IH Grain Drills

Fluted Roll Feed Cup Assemblies Save Seed and Save Time

A Known Fact That Case IH Die-Cast Zinc Alloy Feed Cups Are Superior To Other Competitive Brands Long Life Comes From Oil-Impregnated, Molded Sintered Metal Inserts Acts As A Positive Bearing Surface To Surround And Support The Fluted Roll



Fluted roll is precision-molded and won't freeze up during idle periods.
Shut-off block is molded of steel and delivers consistent cup to cup seeding accuracy.
Large throat clearance allows the handling of big seeds and prevents seed damage.
Exclusive tapered metering edge at the bottom of the feed cup provides unexcelled seeding accuracy, even seed flow, and more uniform spacing.

For replacement parts for your existing drill, buy Case IH quality from our Parts Dept. Now!

Precision engineered to fit your grain drill exactly!

REMEMBER: Quality Drills Come From Binkley & Hurst - Let's Get Together Now!

Why settle for inferior look alikes when you can have genuine Case IH fluted roll feed cup assemblies — renowned for accuracy, smooth operation and long life

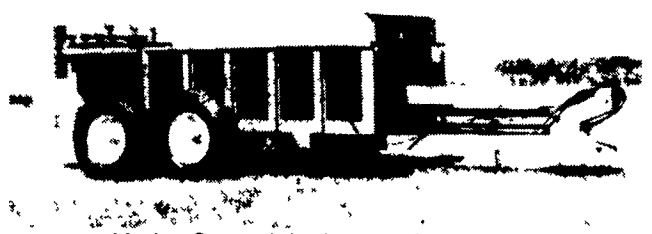
FREE YOURSELF FROM SPREADER CHAINS AND SAVE MONEY



The proven Hydra-Spread design can free you from the grief and maintenance of spreader apron chains for good!

This low maintenance spreader features solid poly boards both on the sides and the floor for slippery, no-stick performance. Hydraulic push power replaces the extensive mechanism needed in ordinary spreaders.'

Why pay more for yesterday's ideas and designs? The design of tomorrow is PRICED RIGHT and will be on the job for years. We deliver to your farm.

MAXIMIZER™ COMBINES DELIVER ON THEIR PROMISE. EVEN WHEN CONDITIONS AREN'T PROMISING

"Bigger capacity. Cleaner grain and more of it." That's what new-technology Maximizer combines promise. And they deliver in all harvest conditions—good, bad and indifferent.

Threshing capacity is thorough and gentle with a larger slower-speed cylinder and large concave area. Samples are cleaner, thanks to the Quadra-Flo™ system with its precleaner, four high velocity fans, chaffer and sieve.

Stop in. You'll see that the total feature combination, along with traditional John Deere reliability and dealer service, gives you more reason than ever to go Maximizer.

That's a promise.

IN STOCK, READY TO GO! A MAXIMIZER WITH THE HORSEPOWER YOU NEED.

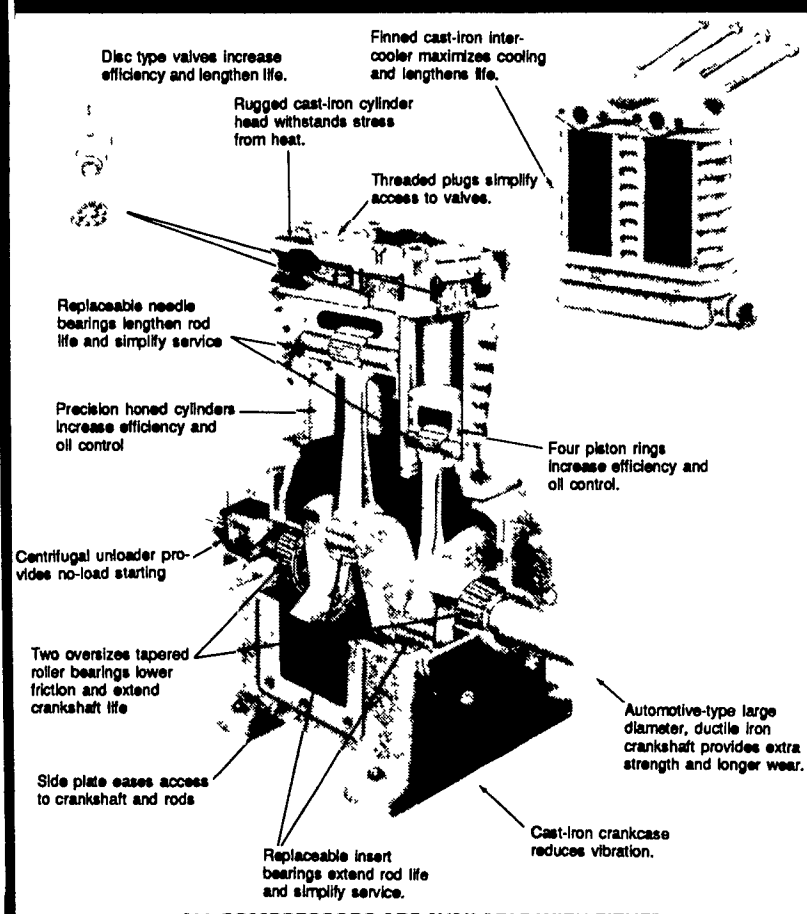
WHAT MAKES A SAYLOR-BEALL AIR COMPRESSOR?



Disc type valves increase efficiency and lengthen life.
Finned cast-iron inter-cooler maximizes cooling and lengthens life.
Rugged cast-iron cylinder head withstands stress from heat.
Threaded plugs simplify access to valves.
Replaceable needle bearings lengthen rod life and simplify service
Precision honed cylinders increase efficiency and oil control
Four piston rings increase efficiency and oil control.
Centrifugal unloader provides no-load starting
Two oversizes tapered roller bearings lower friction and extend crankshaft life
Automotive-type large diameter, ductile iron crankshaft provides extra strength and longer wear.
Side plate eases access to crankshaft and rods
Cast-iron crankcase reduces vibration.
Replaceable insert bearings extend rod life and simplify service.

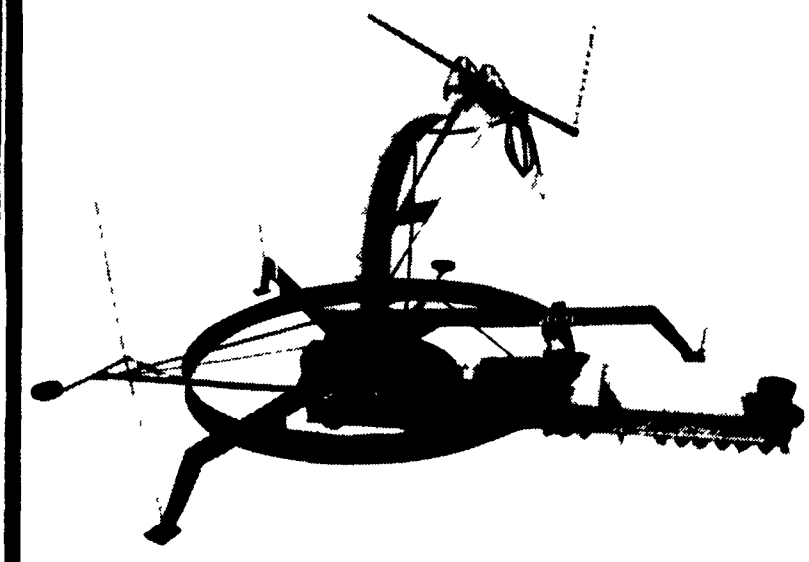
JAMESWAY
VOLUMAXX
High-Capacity Silo Unloader



VOLUMAXX™
The seventh generation is here!

VOLUMAXX silo unloaders are the culmination of 38 years of ring-drive unloader experience. Jamesway ring-drives are well-known for high capacity, easy service and low maintenance. That all adds up to top performance and trouble-free operation.

VOLUMAXX features the POWERMAXX distributor option that lets you stretch your silo with up to 35% more capacity. POWERMAXX power distribution gives you a better pack, higher nutrient retention and better feed value. The result is higher production income and lower production costs.

RUFF-TUFF POLY SILO LINERS for Upright Silos

If Your Silo Needs New Life...

Try Our Poly Silo Liners

-THE ADVANTAGE OF A POLY LINER-

- Spoilage is reduced around doors.
- Feed is exposed to less oxygen - better fermentation.
- Allows storage of high moisture grains or dry grains in a conventional silo.
- Delays repair or replacement of corroded silos.
- Prevents corrosive acids from contacting silo wall - extends silo life
- Quick installation.
- Effectively seals silos from air and weather.

Ruff-Tuff Poly Silo Liners Are Designed to Work Well In Silos Without Unloaders
The Liners Are Manufactured To Fit Most Standard Diameter Silos

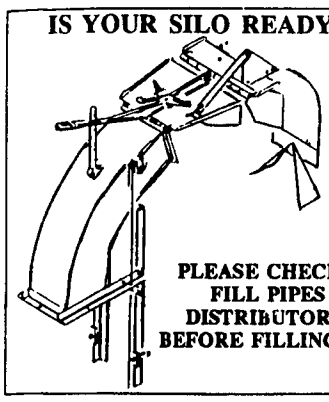
S & S SILO SERVICE

ATTENTION FARMERS
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH CORN SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

"This Is The Kind Of Silo You Need For This Fall's Corn Silage!"

CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF POURED CONCRETE

WE WANT TO HELP!!!!!!

Contact us soon to discuss "special discounts" for early orders on silos for fall. During the "lull" between our busy spring season for wilted hay storage and the even busier fall season - we are anxious to help during this period when milk prices and cattle prices are down.

"NOW IS THE TIME TO MAKE YOUR BEST DEAL ON A POURED CONCRETE SILO FOR 1991."

No used silos!
No rebuilt silos!
No preowned silos!

Since 1908, SOLLENBERGER SILOS CORP. has been providing the Silo Structures now in demand by more and more farmers concerned about "silage quality." "Nothing keeps feed better than our poured concrete silos."

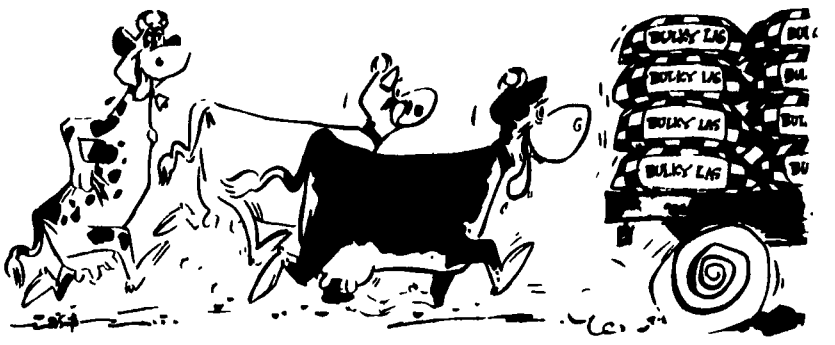
PROOF OF PERFORMANCE!



In June of 1989, Bedford Farm Bureau became a Purina dealer servicing Bedford and Blair counties, an area where previously there were almost no Purina products found on local dairies. With locations in Bedford, Everett, and New Enterprise and led by general manager Bill Popovich, farm consultants Lisa Ferguson and Warren Kornes, as well as the Purina team of Rob Hinton and Bill Stewart, Bedford Farm Bureau has become the leader in supplying high quality performance dairy feeds in addition to professional nutrition consulting and service. What follows is a 2-year summary showing the performance of each individual herd that has been on a Purina ration for 4 months or more and is on official DHIA test. This list includes all final results, both positive and negative.
